SECTION II

Descendants of Samuel Farwell of Marblehead, Mass.

St. Botolph's Church, Boston, England

St. Botolph's Church is of especial interest to the descendants of Henry and Olive (Welby) Farwell, for it was in this stately old edifice that they were married. Also is it worthy of note that their marriage, which was solemnized April 16, 1629, took place while the Rev. John Cotton was still vicar of the parish, the Rev. Cotton who also came to America and was a forceful religious leader in early days in New England.

St. Botolph's, founded in 1309, is one of the historic buildings of England. It is one of the largest churches without aisles in the Kingdom, and is the principal building in the Parish. Its high tower, crowned by a beautiful octagonal lantern, forms a land mark which can be seen forty miles out at sea.

This beautiful old church has been a subject for the brush and pencil of some of the greatest artists, and has long been a Mecca for Americans, who associate closely the early history of the American Colonies with the "Renouned Church of Boston Stump."

Posterity gives to every man his true honor.

FOREWORD

When, in 1637, Henry Farwell and Olive Welby his wife came from Boston, England, and settled in Concord, Mass., there was founded in America one of those sturdy, virile, colonial families who were the makers of our Republic.

The present volume is not the first attempt to collect the records of this family. More than half a century ago there was published in New York a genealogy compiled by David Parsons Holton, M. D., A. M., and Mrs. Holton. The work was a creditable one for that date. At that time genealogy was still in its pioneer stage and this earlier volume, like many of its contemporaries, was fragmentary and incomplete, except in a very few lines of descent.

The idea of a Farwell Genealogy which would supplement and carry on lineages not traced in the earlier book on the family originated with the late Mr. John Dennis Farwell, and for a long period of years he collected material for it. He expected to issue the book himself, but owing to advancing years, was unable to carry the work to completion, and the records which had been collected were turned over to the writer.

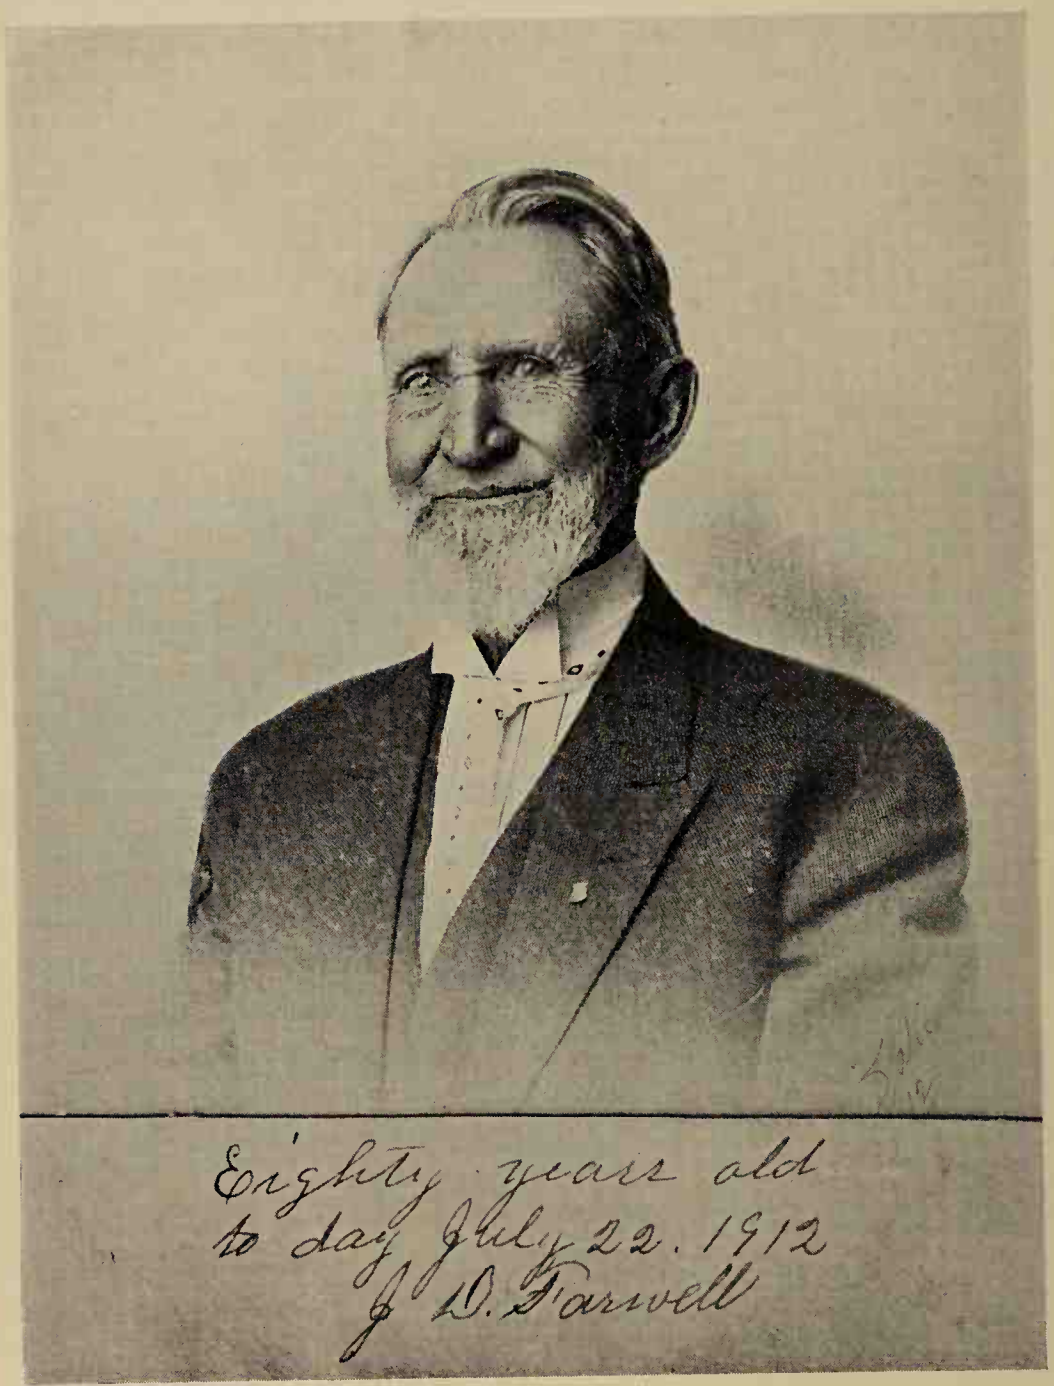
After assembling nearly complete records of the first four generations and tracing several additional lines down to the present day, she found that to prepare an adequate genealogy would require much more time than she could give to it. So with the consent of his son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Henry Farwell, the records already collected were placed in the hands of Miss Jane H. Abbott, a research librarian of long experience. It is mainly to her ability and patient efforts that the volume owes its present proportions and its degree of completeness.

Acknowledgments are due to Miss M. B. Fairbanks of Boston, Mass., who did valuable work during the early stages of the book in searching original records; also to Mr. C. A. Torrey, of Boston, who checked the part of the manuscript the writer had prepared with original records and made important additions and corrections.

In the compilation modern methods of research have been adopted and authority is given for each record.

If the compiling of a genealogy is merely to record the transmission of a name from father to son, with an endless array of dates; or if it only ministers to pride of family by recording achievements of a few illustrious ancestors, then it is a bootless task and not worth doing. But if the records here presented shall serve as an incentive to present and future generations to keep spotless the name they have inherited; and ever in recurring periods of decadence in morals and ideals, to carry high the standards handed on to them by ancestors who have been foremost of the nation, then will the best hopes of the sponsors of this book be fulfilled, and Genealogy, like Wisdom, will be "justified of her children."

—Lillian M. Wilson



JOHN DENNIS FARWELL[8] No. 2956

From whose inspiration and enthusiasm in collecting his own family records this book has grown to its present size.

HISTORY OF THE BOOK

So many interesting things have happened during the twenty years and more that this genealogy has been in process of assembling, that it has been thought worth while to give the Farwell descendants a short history of how and why it came to be compiled.

When Mr. John Dennis Farwell decided to trace his ancestry (and it is to his desire to know about the lives of his forbears—who they were and where they lived—that this work is largely due) he had little difficulty in finding records of the Farwell family. There had been others who had pioneered in this field of research and he soon traced his line in unbroken sequence back to Henry Farwell[1], of Concord and Chelmsford, Mass.

After he had traced his Farwell lineage he determined to find the wives and mothers in his ancestry and discovered a woeful lack of data about the women. Many of the early mothers had been recorded by their given names only, and it was by following clues, studying deeds and wills and old Bible records, etc., that he learned what his inheritance had been from the long line of women who had borne and reared the Farwell men.

In 1910 he had printed a small pamphlet which gave the records of his immediate branch of the family. This done, he determined to go further, and with the help of his son, Elmer Selah Farwell, and of his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Frederick Henry Farwell, he began gathering records for a more comprehensive book. They worked together until advancing years, and the death of his son, led Mr. Farwell to give over his manuscript and records for other hands to complete.

He did not live to see his cherished book in print, but when he handed over the material they had collected for his book it was with the injunction to the editors to trace the lineages of the mothers and daughters of Farwell lineage for at least three generations, if it could be done, and further if records came in unsolicited. Thus it came about that the lineages of descendants in female lines have been more painstakingly traced than is often done, and more records of women Farwells are given than is usually the case in a genealogy.

We believe no son or daughter of Farwell female lineage will be sorry to find the ancestry as set down in the following pages. To have proper pride in our ancestors let us search out and know who were our mothers as well as our fathers.

After Mr. Farwell gave over his work the search of records went on and all available material was studied. The correspondence with descendants and friends grew in volume and ultimately became one of the best sources of information, and also became a very interesting feature of the work. Through the letters the editors came closely in touch with the Farwell "clan", and learned many intimate details of family history which could not have come to their knowledge in any other way. They discovered traits common to persons of distant kinship who had grown up in widely separated localities, and traced certain characteristic abilities which appear to have come as an inheritance from an ancestor three and four generations back of them. Through this correspondence the editors were also impressed with the fact that in all lines of descent persons of the Farwell name were proud of their lineage, and showed a strong love of family and a deep interest in things pertaining to it.

In a woman living on a ranch in a western state was this love of family especially exemplified by a letter written by her small granddaughter, which ran about as follows: "I am sending the leaves out of an old Bible. Grandma took them out. These are the records from her grandpa's Bible. Please send them back. I do not know how to write very well yet, but I am adding the records about us for grandma as she cannot see to write." The records that little girl enclosed proved of inestimable value as they gave correct information of the early members of a family in one line of descent which we had despaired of tracing; nor was that the only instance of a Farwell mailing to the editors a Bible record, which could be "pasted back." A busy New England gentleman did the same thing; from another busy man came a painting, old and valuable. The sender would not have time to see about having a copy made for some weeks so he entrusted his treasured heirloom to Mrs. Farwell. From others came invaluable daguerreotypes, and priceless relics, loaned to be photographed for illustrations for the book. A lady in Vermont, whom a village librarian asked about some Farwell graves, "hitched up" and drove to a country cemetery. The result of her trip to the country was a letter a week later containing gravestone records which completed a link in a lineage that otherwise must have remained untraced. A librarian in New York mailed a copy of a county history to the workers in Texas because of interesting data it contained pertaining to their work, and so on. When you study the volume, please remember the helpful assistants scattered about in remote places who so ably assisted in this work.

And still the book is incomplete, for there were some who could have sent records who did not do so, and some descendants to whom word of the genealogy did not reach, and there are records which perhaps might have been located, but which were not found, and it also doubtless contains mistakes, but any one will readily see the difficulties encountered in an attempt to bring together and assemble a compilation such as this is, and we trust the critics will not be too severe. We hope the majority of the persons interested in this volume will be thankful there are no more errors than appear.

To those of you who have never tried to compile records, we will relate the following: Birth, death and marriage records were sent in by the eight living members of a family. In the records received three dates were given for the birth of the father, and three months named in which he was born. For the mother, four dates for the day of the month on which she was born were given, and two months named, and one member of the family disagreed as to month and day of the month for date of birth, with all the others, and besides all the dates given by the family there was a state official record which was still different and had to be reconciled with the others.

The matter of handwriting was also found to be a stumbling block in the way of accuracy. What is likely to happen when a 3 looks as much like an 8 or a 5, as it does like the number it is intended for? Who can say what the letter g is, when it resembles a y as much or more than a g? W and m, e and o and i may have been mistaken one for the other. Almost any letter looks like some other letter if "characteristically" written, and yet, who would ask correspondents to do their letters into type? How many persons realize that what is plain to them may be exceedingly difficult reading for some one else?

Aside from correspondence and the collecting of records, there are numerous other elements that lend interest to the compiling and editing of a genealogy. One learns, for instance, that the Farwell name has become so well known in a locality, because of the exceptional ability displayed by some member of the family, that a town has been named for him. That places have been called Farwell Hill, Farwell Point, Farwell's Mills, Farwell's Ferry, Farwell's Corners, etc., because of a Farwell association with them. These place names began early in the history of our country, and a number of them are still retained in New England and in other sections, and each of the following states, Louisiana, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska and Texas, has honored a town by giving it the name of Farwell. In a number of villages throughout our country, and in one city, there is a Farwell Hall, either built by or named for a person belonging to the family.

Women born Farwell have been proud of the name and what it stands for, and to show this have bestowed it upon their sons and daughters as a Christian name. You will find it so borne by about 400 descendants in this volume.

Persons of Farwell lineage have ever been found advocating forward movements, fighting for the best cause in every war, upholding and maintaining for the right in all parts of the country at all times. There have been prominent lawyers, skilled physicians, eminent scientists, great soldiers, well known writers and artists, successful business men and competent agriculturists among them, and also ministers of the gospel. It is also quite worth while to mention that some of these well known and successful professional Farwells have been women.

Vital records in many states have been studied, church registers have been scanned, private accounts perused, obituaries and newspaper accounts read, and court records investigated, and from all these sources we find the name Farwell has been well and honorably borne. The past generations of the family are remembered with respect and their lives recalled with pleasure. The men and women of the present day carry on each in his own sphere, doing what lies near to be done, and we are glad to say that a study of the family covering many years shows that each one of the name is active, persevering, loyal and just, that many of the lineage are talented, some gifted beyond ordinary expectation, and that a few carry the great responsibility of genius.

A descendant sends a letter which he received from a New England lawyer, the closing paragraph of which his kinsmen may enjoy reading with us, "Allow me to congratulate you on belonging to so fine a family as the Farwells. For many years I have investigated Court Records of Cambridge, and have a line on many families of early date. I find that certain families constantly did things which brought them into court. Avoiding murder, they were guilty of about all other misdemeanors, so that Court records bristled with their ill deeds. The Farwells were not of this class. They broke no laws, were never 'hauled into court,' and, by absence from Court records, left a handsome record for honesty, etc. I say this only in justice to the early settlers of your surname."

"And I said his opinion was good."—GEOFFREY CHAUCER.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

We take this opportunity to acknowledge the help given the compilers of this genealogy by Farwell descendants and others interested in the book.

For special assistance rendered while the book was in the making, thanks are also due the following persons:

Mrs. Margaret De Forest of Syracuse, N. Y., who loaned valuable material which her sister, Mrs. Jane Elizabeth (Chase) Welch had collected and arranged. Mrs. Welch had access to private records of Farwell families in Maine which the editors had been unable to secure from other sources.

Mr. Albert Lemuel Farwell of Boston, Mass., who loaned the records his deceased brother, Dr. William Arms Farwell, of Sherbrooke, Canada, had collected over a long period of years. Dr. Farwell's records included many letters, and the data he secured while making searches in England in 1902. During that year he visited old Manor Houses and studied many records relating to the Farwell family in the British Museum and other depositories of ancient documents throughout England.

Mr. John Villiers Farwell of Chicago, Illinois, who secured from the York Genealogical and Biographical Society the favor of having Farwell records stored in their library opened. This was material about the family which was collected by Dr. David P. Holton before 1879, and not included in his book, "The Farwell Memorial," published that year. These records were searched and the findings transmitted to us by Mrs. Josephine C. Frost of New York City.

Mrs. Ella F. O'Gorman of Washington, D. C., who sent the results of researches which she had made for records of Farwell descendants who early went to make their homes in the Middle West.

Mr. Oliver Atkins Farwell of Detroit, Michigan, who aided us in many ways, besides sending records he had collected, and Mr. James Frederick Farwell of Augusta, Maine, who collected data, searched grave records, and who put us in touch with descendants whom we had previously been unable to reach.

Mr. Herbert Bradford Farwell of Palacios, Texas, and his son, Capt. Neal Bradford Farwell, of the U. S. Navy, who loaned the manuscript and notes which had been collected by them with the aid of Miss Charlotte Abbott, of Andover, Mass. This material formed the ground work of the History of the Samuel Farwell branch of the family, and was supplemented by records received from Mrs. R. A. Dunn, of East Sullivan, N. H., who sent the material on the Samuel Farwell family which had been collected by her grandfather, Darius Farwell, of Nelson, N. H.

HOW TO USE THESE BOOKS

In compiling this work the subject matter has been arranged so that one generation of the descendants follows another: Henry Farwell, the emigrant ancestor, being considered as the first generation, his children the second generation, his grandchildren the third generation, and so on down to the present generation.

The members of the family in each generation are arranged in sequence: the oldest child named first, the second child next, and so on down to the present generation.

Each individual is given a personal number, and the numbers follow consecutively: Henry Farwell, the emigrant, is number one, his oldest child, number two, his second child, number three, and so on.

When a name is carried forward and the family is given, a + sign is placed before the name where it first appears in the manuscript. To find the history of this family turn to the number in the following generation.

The letter h after a number in the index refers to a person who is head of a family; thus, to find Ezekiel Richardson, see 13h, look under No. 13, bold type, not where record as a child is given.

All the records of the Farwell family in England are given in the section of the book preceding the history of the family in America.

The sources of information follow the records of a family. In the early generations the information is from state and town vital records, probate records, deeds, town and county histories, biographies, memoirs, newspapers, grave and church records, and other published records. For the later generations the authorities are chiefly given from information supplied in correspondence carried on with descendants who have sent in Family Bible records and Family papers of various sorts: charts, letters, death notices, newspaper clippings and pictures, and have supplied current data from their personal knowledge. We have also used published records as sources in the later generations. All records have been carefully edited and true and correct accounts given in so far as we know. Any misstatements (if there be such) appearing are in no case intentional.

THE FARWELLS IN ENGLAND

An attempt to give a history of the Farwell Family in America requires that we take somewhat of a journey back into the archives of England, and also make a short trip to the shores of France, in order to trace the name and the movements of the families who bear it.

Farwell, we are told, is a name of French origin and in its earliest form was Varaville, known first in Calvados, France, from which place persons of the patronymic migrated to England. There were a number of variants in use at one time, but the best known forms of the present time are Farewell and Farwell. Spelled "FAREWELL," as in the 13th century, some authorities state the name was derived from a little parish in the County of Stafford known by the curious designation of "Farewell-with-Charlie," and it could not be interpreted as "Good-Bye." Harrison says, in his "Surnames of the United Kingdom" that as "Fayrewell" and "Fagerwelle" the meaning is "Fair or Sweet Spring."

As far back as 1273 Richard and Thomas Farewell were recorded as living in Suffolk, and there was a Farewell Parish, as stated above, in Stafford, also there were families of the name in Salop. In 1280 there was a well established family by the name in Yorkshire, and early in 1500 we find English country seats established by members of the family in several localities: Somerset, Devon and Wilts, and families of the name in Norfolk and Lincoln.

The men of the family were of a virile, progressive, and ambitious type and were early recognized as leaders, and for faithfulness and prowess a number of them were knighted and granted coats of arms. The political as well as the social status of the families of the name was shown by this badge of honor, and also was it established by the alliances which they made with noted and distinguished families.

Although a search, carried on by thoroughly qualified and competent genealogists independently, and through the College of Arms, London, extending over a number of years, has failed to reveal positively the ancestry of the American branch of the family further back than William Farwell of Boston, England, yet, by inference, according to the documents found (i. e. wills), Mr. J. R. Hutchinson has established a potential lineage which gives ancestors of earlier generations.

In 1915 Miss Elizabeth French, while making some English research for Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Henry Farwell, found the marriage of Henry Farwell[1] recorded on the Boston, England, Parish Register for the year 1629, and this record showed the full name of his wife to be Olive Welby. Later study of records by others revealed the fact that Olive Welby was a daughter of Richard Welby of Moulton, and a direct lineal descendant of Sir Richard Welby, Knight, 1421, of Moulton, England. Thus the position of Henry Farwell in England was learned. Custom at that period had established a precedent. An Englishman married a woman in his own station in life. He might be a younger son, but the mullet or crescent placed him in a social position which none could gainsay.

Coats of arms were granted to and borne by members of various branches of the Farwell family, and, although no American claims a coat of arms as an heraldic right, it is with becoming pride that one reads the name in history and takes note of those who bore themselves nobly and were worthy of and did carry the established marks of honor of their day. Those using this distinctive honor were expected to live up to certain standards to maintain the reputation of the family. Frequently several branches of a family used the same design on the shield, but varied the crest and motto. Three escallop shells appear on the design as one coat of arms borne by members of the Farwell family.

From the use of this device we gain information as to the probable time the Farwell family became established in England, for we find that it was granted to Johanns Farwell as an armorial design by the Ordinary of Arms in the year 1385. Johanns Farwell was of the York branch of the family, and the date of the granting of his arms is early enough to show that the design chosen was taken by a pilgrim, and one who had shown prowess on the sea.

Escallop shells were one of the most widely used charges in all countries. From very early times they were the badge of a pilgrim, a wide traveler by land and sea, and especially of one who had visited the Holy Land, for the early visitors to Palestine picked up these shells on the shores of that country and brought them home. The escallop shell was the emblem used by St. James, and it was also the badge of the Crusaders.

Very few heraldic devices were used up to the time of the second Crusade. Heraldry, in fact, developed during the period of the Crusades, when it became necessary for a knight to have some mark upon his armor by which he might be known. Some devices depicted on shields used in the Third Crusade were handed down from father to son as a coat of arms in the thirteenth century (as they are handed down today). Hence the likelihood that the armorial bearings which portrayed the three shells, as used in the 14th century by a Farwell family, was an hereditary coat of arms from an ancestor who had been a Crusader.

Following is a description of the Farwell Arms as given in books of Heraldry, and recorded in the College of Arms, London, England.

Simon Farwell, a younger son, is supposed, by tradition, to have migrated from Yorkshire after 1500 and settled in Hill Bishop, now known as Bishops Hull, in Somerset. The name was originally spelled with two e's but one was dropped early in the 17th century, since when it has been spelled Farwell. His wife was Julian Clark.

Carved Oak Door of BISHOPS HULL MANOR HOUSE

MANOR OR COURT HOUSE AT BISHOPS HULL

An ancient building in the Elizabethean style, was built by Simon Farewell about 1538. The porch probably added by Sir George Farewell (the elder), his older brother John having sold it to him. A secret passage once existed leading from the house towards Taunton Castle. There is a tradition that it communicated with the Castle, but no one now knows exactly where it came out. Two of the sons of a former owner went some distance in it when boys some forty years ago, but found no exit, the passage being choked up. The opening to it from the house is now (1902) closed.

There is a coat of arms over the door of the Manor, a helmet with veiling carved above the arms, which are carved in stone. There are traces of the crest which has disappeared from the helmet. It is probable that these arms and crest were put over the door by Sir George Farewell, who died in 1609. They are the same as on the right of his tomb, omitting the De Rillestone quarterings.

Crest of a tyger sable was granted to John Farwell of Hyllebishop, son and heir of Symon Farewell of Hyllesbishop, and to his brothers, George, Christopher and Richard in the time of Elizabeth (1558-1603) by Robert Cowke, Clarencieux, King of Arms.

Sons of John Farewell seem to have a chevron eng. without the mullet, while sons of George Farewell had plain chevrons with the mullet on the chevron. (Mullet is sign of 3rd son.)

On page 173, Aug. 28, 1875. In the proceedings of the Somerset Archaeological Society for 1870 the following is given:

"Simon Farewell of Hills Bishop near Taunton, Co. Somerset, and the second of that name of that place, married Dorothy, daughter of Sir Richard Dyer of Roundhill, one of the sisters of Lord Chief Justice Sir James Dyer, who died March 24, 1582. John, eldest son of Simon and Dorothy Farewell, on the death of his father sold the family mansion and estate, as Bishops Hull, to his second brother, George, and settled at Holbrooke, probably to be near his cousins, the Dyers of Roundhill. This John Farewell, the first of Holbrooke, had married Ursula, the daughter of Thomas Philips of Montacute, and three of his sons married the three daughters of Brome Johnson of Bridge, Co. Somerset. His brother Richard, fourth son, conjointly with his cousin James, son of John Dyer, undertook the publication of reports of law cases which their uncle had compiled. Both George and Richard were lawyers.

About fifty shields with armorial bearings were removed from the old mansion of the Farewells at Hills Bishop, several of which note the alliance with the Dyers and others."

A letter from Edward Jarman Blake to the late Dr. William Arms Farwell :

"The Old House
Crewkerne

18th August, 1902

Dear Sir:

I thank you for your letter and before its receipt I had heard from Mr. Raban of your visit to Bishops Hull.

The shields with armorial bearings that used to be in the old Manor House at Bishops Hull are now at Bridge, South Petherton, in the County of Somerset, where my late father moved to live about 40 years ago.

I was born in the Old House at Bishops Hull and also seven of my brothers and sisters.

The fields in front of the Old House as well as the Parsonage Barn Farm, formerly belonging to the Farewells, now belong to me, my father having left them to me by his will.

Anne Farewell was the last of the Farewell Family of the Bishop Hull Branch, who lived to be 94, dying in 1757, married Nathaniel Wyersdale. There were four daughters only of this marriage, one of whom Sarah (Wyersdale) married John Jarman of Bishops Hull and died in 1773.

My father married a granddaughter of Sarah and John Jarman and thus became the representative of the Bishop Hull Farwell family. I hope the foregoing information will be interesting to you, and remain,

Yours sincerely,

EDWARD JARMAN BLAKE

P. S. There are portraits of Sir George and Lady Farewell and other members of the family at Bridge."

FARWELL FAMILY MONUMENTS

At Bishops Hull (Hill-Bishop), a parish and village in North Somersetshire, England, $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles west of Taunton, are Farwell family monuments to four generations.

The Church of St. Peter's is Gothic and contains fine carved benches bearing date 1530. In the church are monuments to Sir George Farewell, a sumptuous tomb of red and white marble, upon which under an arch, within a recess, lies the effigy of a Doctor of Laws in his robes; his head reclining on his right hand. Underneath, within a smaller arch, is the effigy of a man or woman kneeling on a cushion, and before him three boys kneeling, with large ruffs, and behind him five girls in same attitude, with large ruffs also; on a tablet above is a Latin inscription, translated as follows:

"Died August 23, 1609, age 72.

"His own most cherished parent, George Farewel, esquire and justice of the peace, guardian and defender of justice and public peace, greatest patron of the poor, not only supporter but also champion of orthodox religion, finally most devoted subject to his prince, devoted husband to his wife, most faithful friend to his household, and also most loving father to his children, on the 23rd of August in the 72nd year of his life in the year of the Lord's incarnation 1609 out of this vale of woe returned with wondrous readiness to his Creator. George Farewel, a golden knight (i. e., with golden spurs) and eldest son, took care that this monument, such as it is (of whatever kind it is), be erected in the hope of resurrection and as a token of filial allegiance.

"I was one while I was alive; after my death I was two. I who was formerly one am cut into parts. Earth to earth (earth seeks earth); the heavenly part seeks heaven. Thus each part hastens to its own place. Things that have been born perish. Your lot is shaken in the urn. By the ladder of Jacob (Jacob's ladder) climb to the plain (camp) of God.

"I know that my Redeemer lives and in the last day I will rise and again be clothed with my skin and in my flesh will see God.

"Ashes (death) makes all people equal."

The second paragraph is written in elegiac verse, three couplets, and represents the departed father sending back a message to his loved ones.

The third paragraph is from Job IX: 25, 26.

Arms, Sable, a chevron, engrailed between three escallops, argent.

On the fourth wall is a mural tablet inscribed:

"In memory of the excellently accomplisht Sir George Farewell, Knt., who departed this life May 14, 1647. Also of his most pious lady, Mary, who was the daughter of Sir Edward Seymour of Berrie-Castle in Devon, baronet, by whom he had twenty children and who died Dec. 13, 1660.

"A person graceful, learn'd, humble and good,
Well match'd with beauti, virtue and high blood,
Yet after suffering great and long, both dead
To mind us where great worth is honored."

"To Mrs. Mary Bruen (handsome mural monument), daughter of Sir George Farewell, died 1697. Erected by Mrs. Fowell, her daughter."

Arms:

(1) Sable, a chevron engrailed between three escallops argent; Farewel.
(2) The same impaling a stag's head cabossed, argent.
(3) The last impaling, party per fesse indented or and gules.

WESTWOOD MANOR HOUSE, near BRADFORD-ON-AVON, Wiltshire, England.
Home of JOHN FAREWELL and descendants; coming into possession of the family about 1600.

WESTWOOD MANOR HOUSE

Westwood Manor House at Westwood Village, one of the mediaeval buildings of Bradford-on-Avon in Wiltshire, though not as large as some of the manors, can hold its own in beauty and interest, while as regards the wealth of its surviving interior decorations, it may well claim a foremost place.

Built at the end of the 15th century by a Thomas Horton whose descendant, heir to Westwood five generations later, Tobias Horton by name, married Barbara Farewell, 9th child of John and Ursula (Philips) Farewell, and granddaughter of Simon and Dorothy (Dyer) Farewell of Hill Bishop, or Bishops Hull, Somersetshire. In 1609 Tobias Horton and wife made over their interest to her brother John Farewell, at the time unmarried. He immediately began to restore the fine plaster work in the interior and to make improvements, thereby beautifying and bringing the house up to a higher standard of comfort than his predecessors had known.

He built the present porch, crowning it perhaps with the apex stone of a former one. He put in a floor halfway up the great hall, and in the hall itself inserted the present window screen, and finely carved stone archway at the west end, while overhead he gave us the Great Parlour with its unique plaster ceiling and panelling.

At a slightly later date, perhaps when he married, he built the picturesque turret staircase in the angle between the two ranges of buildings. He also left us another fine panelled room upstairs and three more elaborate plaster ceilings. Indeed there is no room in the house in which he has not left some signal memorial to his good taste. His descendants lived in it for three generations, when it passed from the possession of the Farewell family.

The above information is taken from articles which appeared in Country Life (England) August 14 and 21, 1926, and were written by Mr. Edgar G. Lister, who is now owner of and residing in Westwood Manor, where he hospitably entertains in the Great Hall, and who kindly made arrangements for the editors of this volume to use the pictures made for his articles on this charming country seat.

3. The parish registers of Boston, as printed to 1638, and thence on in the original books to 1642. Result, entries as already known, and in addition the burial of Joan Farwell, 1642.
4. The wills and administrations in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury, at Somerset House, prior to 1630, for Farwells of Lincolnshire only. Result, nil.
5. The Feet of Fines at the Public Record Office, London, prior to the Fine of 1636, for Farwell of Lincolnshire only. Result, nil.

The net result of the search has therefore been (a) verification of the parish register entries and the Fine already known to us, and (b) the discovery of the wills of William and Joan Farwell, with the burial of the latter, all hitherto unknown.

The absence of Farwell from the Boston parish registers prior to 1617 goes to show that William Farwell settled there about that time or shortly before it, since neither his first marriage, the baptisms of his children by his first wife, nor that wife's burial appear there; while the further absence of Farwell from the Lincoln wills, administrations and Act Books tends to show, if it does not conclusively prove, that William Farwell was not a Lincolnshire man.

The Fine of 1636 is of great importance and value. It shows (a) that William Farwell owned property in Boston, though whether by purchase or in right of one or other of his wives we do not learn; (b) that Henry Farwell, who joined with him in the Fine, was his only son and heir, this being proved by the warranty, which assures the property against any future claim that may be brought by the heirs of William; and (c) that the sale, taking place as it did on the eve of Henry's departure for America, was effected for the purpose of paying out his claim to his father's estate and, incidentally, to provide funds for his intended settlement there. That his claim ceased with that sale is proved by his father's will, in which he is not mentioned, but which would have been obliged to mention him had he been "cut off" as disinherited.

The two wills discovered are also of great value as yielding hitherto unknown information about William Farwell's other children, Henry's sisters. The discrepancies in the spelling of names count for nothing. They are only too common in English records.

PETERBOROUGH WILLS, including the counties of Rutland, Northampton, Huntingdon, and for early dates, Lincoln:—These, though examined with the utmost care, yielded no mention of the name of Farwell.

LEICESTERSHIRE WILLS:—These also yielded no mention.

BOSTON BOROUGH RECORDS:—These records, to which access was obtained only with the greatest difficulty and after prolonged delay, date from the year 1545 and consist of a series of Council Minute Books, in which all the business of the Borough, as such, was entered up. They are indexed in the 18th century hand, and as the time allowed for examining them was very short, I was obliged to resort to the use of these indexes, instead of searching the volumes folio by folio, as I should have preferred to do. The accuracy of my search, therefore, depends entirely upon the accuracy of the indexes, and for that I am unable to vouch.

The Boston Borough Records search yielded several items of capital importance. They tell us first, that William Farwell was admitted a Freeman of the Borough, by purchase, in 1620, and that he was a tailor by trade. His admission by purchase indicates that he was not of Boston either by birth or apprentice-ship—a circumstance that agrees with the conclusions already adduced from his marriage there in 1617 and his absence from the Boston parish register before that date.

In 1631 he, William Farwell, was elected to the honorable office of Serjeant at Mace of the Borough, but resigned owing to bodily infirmities. He was then, as we know from other sources, growing old.

The £4 advanced to him by the Council on his taking up his freedom in 1620 was a loan based on the custom of the Borough and extended to many other worthy recipients. It was generally made to those freemen who had newly set up in trade, and the object in making it was to assist them in their business. It was in no sense a charitable donation, nor was there anything derogatory in receiving it.

To Henry Farwell the indexes contain no references until 1635, when he is elected to be one of the Serjeants at Mace, but declines the office. He was perhaps then on the eve of migrating to New England, and declined office for that reason. Whatever his reason for not accepting it, the offer was one that did him undeniable honor.

The office of Serjeant at Mace was one that could only be held by freemen of the Borough, yet, so far as the Minute Books go, we find no record of his admission to his freedom. This is probably due to some inaccuracy or defect in the indexes which can only be remedied by a thorough search of the Minute Books themselves—a search I was unable to obtain facilities for on the occasion of my visit to Boston.

LINCOLN MARRIAGE ALLEGATIONS:—These were searched with great care from their commencement in 1598 to the year 1618, but without discovering any marriage license in the name of Farwell, either for the marriage of 1617 or the earlier marriage which we know William Farwell must have contracted. Either both marriages were by banns, or the earlier marriage took place elsewhere than in the Lincoln diocese.

J. R. HUTCHINSON, 1922

The former search having exhausted the Lincolnshire wills, that is to say, all wills probated in the Consistory and Archdeaconry Courts of the Diocese, the present search was extended into the adjacent counties of York, Nottingham, Rutland and Northampton, Cambridge and Norfolk, thus virtually surrounding the county of Lincoln and Boston, the home of William Farwell from 1617 to 1637, and of Henry Farwell from, presumably, the former date till the beginning of the year 1636, about which time he emigrated. The work done in these counties may be summarized as follows:—

YORKSHIRE: The wills in the Prerogative, Exchequer, Dean and Chapter, Peculiar and Snaith Courts yielded no trace of the name between 1600 and 1645.

NOTTINGHAM: Same period. No trace.

RUTLAND and NORTHAMPTON: Same period. No trace. A subsidiary search in these counties, in the collaterals of Cole, Clarkson, Nixon, Pickering and Welby, produced no mention of Farwell.

CAMBRIDGE: Consistory, Archdeaconry and University Courts (City of Cambridge), 1580 to 1640. No trace.

LINCOLN: A subsidiary search, similar to that made in Rutland and Northampton, produced no mention of Farwell.

NORFOLK: The wills for this county are found at Norwich in four different courts, viz. the Consistory of Norwich, the Archdeaconry of Norwich, the Archdeaconry of Norfolk, and the Dean and Chapter. These courts yielded in all between 1580 and 1650, nine Farwell wills. The search was then extended back from 1580 to 1520 and yielded eleven earlier wills. Abstracts of all of these, 20 in number, accompany this report.

A subsidiary search at Norwich, in the collaterals named under Rutland and Northampton, gave no results.

Amongst the Norfolk wills the first of any interest to us appears to be that of Annys Farwell of South Rainham (otherwise called Rainham Martin), dated 10 January 1561-2, proved 10 May 1562. No relationships are named in the will, but from its general tenour, and particularly from the fact that it deals with land, it is a fair inference that testatrix was mother to James Farwell, her executor and residuary legatee. Her husband evidently predeceased her, but no identifiable will of his is found, nor do we learn his name or when he died.

James Farwell of Rainham Martin (South Rainham), residuary legatee and executor to his (?) mother, and devisee under her will of free and other lands there, himself left a will dated 5 July (and proved 3 August) 1593. He left also a wife Katherine and eleven children, named respectively Gregory, Katherine, Joan, Kirchin, Elizabeth, Margaret, Robert, John, Richard, Henry and William, the order of their names being presumably, in accordance with the usual will-making custom, that of their seniority of age. Gregory, who was of Weasenham (Wessnam), a parish adjoining South Rainham, died soon after his father, leaving a will dated 2 November 1595, proved 28 January 1596-7, in which he left to his sister Katherine, then married, the house and land in South Rainham which he had inherited under his father's will, and minor legacies to his brothers Robert, John, Richard and Henry. He does not, however, name his youngest brother William.

It is in the two youngest sons of James Farwell, Henry and William, that interest now centres, and more especially in William, the younger of the two. Both were under age when their father made his will in 1593. William was to have all his father's lands and houses in South Rainham, and, if he died before Henry, then Henry was to have them. Gregory was probably already provided for. But William was not to come into the property devised to him by his father until fifteen years after the latter's death, which, as the father died in 1593, would be in the year 1608, when, according to the custom recognized in such cases, he would be, not merely 21, but 24 or 26 years of age. He must therefore have been born about 1582 or 1584, and, if identical with William of Boston, as I am strongly disposed to believe he is, he would be somewhere about 53 or 55 years of age at his death in 1637. This is consistent with everything we know about William of Boston.

This identification, however, is supported by no direct evidence I have been able to obtain. It is entirely inferential, and the grounds it is based on may be summed up in this way: South Rainham is, in seven counties, the only parish in which we find a William Farwell of an age corresponding, so far as we can tell, with that of the Boston man. Boston, by way of the Wash, and King's Lynn, is only about 35 miles distant from South Rainham, whence it can be easily reached by road and boat. William of South Rainham had a brother Henry a little older than himself, to whom he may be supposed to have been deeply attached because of the close parity of their ages. William of Boston named his only son Henry, and this Henry, marrying as he did in 1629, must have been born somewhere about 1608, when William of South Rainham, coming into property there, would be most likely to have taken a wife. William of Boston's first wife, his son Henry's mother, we do not know. She died before July 1617, when William married Joan Cole of Boston. This is his first appearance there, and it may well be that his son Henry was born, and his first wife buried, at South Rainham. How and when he disposed of his property there, if the above inference be correct, remains yet to be discovered.

In support of this identification, as I have already said, no single piece of direct evidence has come to light. On the other hand, no evidence has come to light to disprove it. For both of these circumstances there are reasons. The early register of South Rainham is lost, and with it our readiest and best means of proving or disproving the theory here advanced. The existing register there begins with the year 1740. East and West Rainham, consolidated neighboring parishes, which might in the ordinary course of things have yielded a chance entry or two relating to the family, have a common register dating from 1621 only. Amongst the records in the City of Norwich archives there is found a single parish register transcript or copy for South Rainham, undated, containing this entry: "Richard Farwell buried 19 April." From internal evidence which need not be gone into here, it is believed to be the transcript of one of the years 1600-1602, and it doubtless records the burial of Richard, son of James, and brother to Henry and William. Apart from this, absolutely no fragment or portion of the early register of South Rainham remains. Nor, finally, are there any Manor Rolls for that parish of earlier date than the 18th century. Could rolls dating, say, from 1550 to 1650, have been discovered, they would undoubtedly have given us much information of a vital nature.

REPORT OF ENGLISH RESEARCH

by Arthur Cochrane, Norroy, King of Arms Registrar, College of Arms, London, England

Following is a report from Mr. Arthur Cochrane, Norroy, King of Arms Registrar, College of Arms, London, England:

"The known details regarding William Farwell are that he was of Boston, in Lincoln.

I have searched the early Lincoln Administrations, 1540 to 1649, and find only one entry—that of John Fawell of Hemingby 1585. In the Lincoln Wills I see that there was a family of Favell or Fawell at Washingborough. Ann Favell will proved 1609 and Robert in 1628.

I have also searched the Marriage Licenses for this County and they refer only to this family at Washingborough. 26th Nov. 1618 John Vergit and Bridget Favell and 1622/3 William Favell and Judith Gentle. There is no mention of the name Farwell etc.

As wills of people all over England are sometimes proved in London I have looked through these from 1558 to 1656 and though there are a number of Wills of the Hills Bishop family there are none relating to Lincolnshire of the name.

William Farwell is described in his Will as "Taylor" and as he may have been educated at the Merchant Taylors School I have searched their registers and find a mention of John Farwell son of Sir John Farwell, who was born in St. Leonards Thoreditch 1642. * * * *"

Dated 13th April, 1927

"With reference to your Pedigree, I have now completed the searches I had in hand for you, and I regret to say that I have been unable to trace the parentage and ancestors of William Farwell of Boston, Co. Lincoln.

In the first instance I have practically exhausted the county records of Lincolnshire, such as Marriage Licenses, Wills, Parish Registers, etc. From these you will see that there was a family of Fawvell, Favell at Washingborough, but apparently they are no connection.

I have also extended and amplified the Pedigree of the Somerset family of Farwell, and I enclose a draft of this. I do not find the names William and Henry used by this family.

I also enclose herewith various notes of Wills, etc., which have been examined, which, though they do not appear to affect your family, you might like to have. * * * *" Dated 13th October, 1927

The data on the Farwell Family in England, secured by Mr. J. R. Hutchinson in 1921-23 for Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Henry Farwell, was submitted to Mr. Arthur Cochrane in November 1926. It was hoped that he could add something to Mr. Hutchinson's findings, but his searches, covering a period of almost a year, bring negative results. The ancestor of William Farwell, father of Henry Farwell, the emigrant to Concord and Chelmsford, Mass., 1636-7, was, therefore, not a native of Lincoln County, but must be found elsewhere. This is disappointing news to the Farwell descendants, but Mr. and Mrs. Farwell trust there will be further searches made in England. As these later searches have revealed to us the name and place of residence of the father of Henry Farwell[1], perhaps another fifty years will bring to light records not now found, which will give the ancestry of the family back to an earlier date.

—THE EDITORS

FIRST GENERATION IN AMERICA

Historical study of any sort arouses a desire to know more of the personality and character of the actors. Particularly is this true of that most intensely personal branch of history, genealogy. Americans of New England colonial descent are fortunate in the volume and accuracy of the records which have been preserved. But often these records consist simply of a name with date of birth or baptism, of marriage and of death, with brief mention of the allotment of land to the emigrant ancestor, and of his joining the church, or taking the oath of freeman. Indeed, fortunate is he who finds even so complete a record as this of his ancestors. In the large majority of cases, the character and life history of these staunch Puritans, whose blood is so precious a heritage, must be read in the hard lines of the privations and dangers they encountered, and in the records of free Church, free State and free School which they risked all to establish.

Henry Farwell, the emigrant ancestor of the Farwell family of New England, is one of the many whose biography must be gleaned from such scanty records. The first mention of him in America is found on the Concord records. This town, so prominent in American literary as well as political history, was founded in 1636. It is situated well above tide-water on the Charles River and claims the distinction of being the oldest inland Anglo-Saxon town in America. Its original Indian name was Musketequid, which Samuel Davis of Plymouth translated "grass ground."

According to Gov. Winthrop, the grant for the settlement was made "to Mr. Buckley and to * * * merchant." The men here referred to were doubtless, the Rev. Peter Bulkeley and Maj. Simon Willard. The first company of settlers consisted of some twelve or fourteen families, whose names, owing to the unfortunate destruction of the Concord records, are not known. Other settlers joined this small company, and in October, 1636 (?), the Rev. John Jones came with a party of settlers direct from England.

The location for the settlement had been chosen because of the meadow and uplands bordering upon the river. But it was found that the soil was poor and that both bottom and uplands were subject to inundation. Accordingly in 1639, a petition was presented to the General Court by the Concord men, praying that they might seek out new and more fertile lands and annex them to the settlement. This petition was granted on condition that some good improvement be made on the newly acquired land within two years. But even this expedient did not bring prosperity, and on May 14th, 1645, the citizens of Concord petitioned the General Court to relieve them of at least a portion of their assessment, alleging as a reason for this petition, "the povertie and meannesse of the place we live in, not answering to the labor bestowed upon it."

The difficulties encountered by the first band of settlers in reaching the new location are quaintly described by Johnson in his "Wonder-Working Providence." After a reverent acknowledgment of the Divine Will which inspired the settlement, he says that, " * * *the land they purchase of the Indians, and with much difficulties traveling through unknowne woods, and through watery scrampes, they discover the fitnesse of the place, sometimes passing through the Thickets, where their hands are forced to make way for their bodies passage, and their feete clambering over the crossed Trees, which when they missed, they sunke into an uncertaine bottome in water, and wade up to the knees, tumbling sometimes higher and sometimes lower, wearied with this toile, they at the end of this meete with a scorching plaine, yet not so plaine but that the ragged Bushes scratch their legs fouly, even to wearing their stockings to their bare skin in two or three houres; if they be not otherwise well defended with Bootes, or with Buskings, their flesh will be torne: that some being forced to passe on without further provision have had the bloud trickle downe at every step, * * *"

The hardships were by no means at an end when the settlers reached Musketequid, for the author of "Wonder-Working Providence" continuing his narrative says that, "* * * after they have thus found out a place of aboad, they burrow themselves in the Earth for their first shelter under some Hill-side, casting the Earth aloft upon some Timber; they make a smoaky fire against the Earth on the highest side, and thus these poore servants of Christ provide shelter for themselves, their Wives and little ones * * * ." The shelter thus provided was sufficient protection against short showers, "* * * but the long raines penetrate through, to their great disturbance in the night season; yet in these poor Wigwames (they sing Psalmes, pray and praise their God) till they can provide them houses, which ordinarily was not wont to be with many till the Earth, by the Lords blessing, brought forth Bread to feed them, their Wives and little ones * * * ." The writer also adds that the Earth " * * * the first yeare beares them a very thin crop * * * and therefore they have been forced to cut their bread very thin for a long season."

But the men of Concord were the breed of empire builders, and despite their difficulties and hardships, the organization of their little community went steadily on. Their church was organized by a council which met at Cambridge, July 5th, 1636. The Rev. Peter Bulkeley was ordained pastor, and the Rev. John Jones, elder. Henry Farwell was one of the members of this church. In order to become citizens or freemen of Massachusetts Bay Colony, it was necessary for settlers to take the oath of allegiance. On March 14th, 1638-9, Henry Farwell with others took this oath.

But with all the efforts of the new settlers, agriculture was not profitable in Concord and gradually other settlements were established, to which many of the Concord people removed. One of these settlements was Chelmsford, to which Henry Farwell removed about the year 1655. His house in Chelmsford was situated on the Billerica road and was probably located, according to one historian of Middlesex County "where Timothy Adams lives" (1890).

1 Henry Farwell[1] son of William Farwell, was born in England, presumably about 1605: married in Boston, England, April 16, 1629, Olive Welby (or Welbie), dau. of Richard and Frances (Buckley) Welby, who was bapt. in Moulton, England, in 1604.

Henry Farwell came to New England, with his wife and two children about the year 1636. He settled first in Concord, where he lived until about 1655, when he became a resident of Chelmsford. He was Deacon of the church in Chelmsford. He died Aug. 1, 1670, in Chelmsford and the record states that he died "suddenly." His widow died there March 1, 1691-2.

Henry Farwell was a tailor by trade. His name does not appear in the index of Grantors and grantees in the Middlesex County, Mass., Registry of Deeds. His holdings consisted of the land grants which he received from the towns of Concord and Chelmsford. He disposed of all his property in his will made twenty days before his death. He lived on the Billerica road on the same side of it as Abraham Parker and Jacob Parker. His home was nearer the village than theirs.

Fox, in his history of Dunstable, omits the name of Joseph as one of the children of Henry Farwell[1] and records Henry[3] as the son of Henry[1], thus omitting a generation—Savage, Kidder, Farmer and others have been misled by this mistake. A similar error has caused some genealogists to give James as one of the sons of Henry[1], but there is no evidence at all that Henry Farwell, the progenitor of the American family, had either a son Henry or a son James.

The first mention of the meeting house in Mr. Fiske's record incidentally supplies the names of church officers, and specifies the dates of their incumbency, as follows:

"Thomas Hinchman and Henry Farwell were chosen deacons at a Church meeting 16 of 9—60." Bro. Hincksman was to keep the box booke and accounts of contributions, Bro. Kemp to provide the bread and the wine, and Bro. Farwl to take charge of the linen and pewter."

Before the introduction of bells it was the custom to summon the worshippers to meeting with a drum. Among the town charges in 1659 one was "for the paiment for A drum to Henry Farwell £3-5-0."

The wife of Henry Farwell[1] was Olive Welby, a descendant of "an ancient howse bearinge armes."

The name Welby was variously written in the old records, viz: Welleby, De Welby, Welbie, and Welby, Wilby.

The village of Welby, near Grantham, whence the family is presumed to have taken its name, is spelled Welleby in Doomsday Book.

Fuller in his Worthies says the Welby arms were, "Sable, a fess 'twixt 3 Flour de L Argent," as now borne by the family.

COPY OF AN HERALDIC DOCUMENT

which sets forth the manner in which Rychard Welbye, a near Kinsman of OLIVE WELBY should bear his crest.

Attached to the document is a blazoned Coat of Arms of Welby, quartering Moulton, Lindsey, Friskney, Stynte, Braye and Leake.

"To all and singuler, as well as kinges, herauldes, and officers of armes as Nobles, Gentilmen and others, which theise presentes shall see or heare, William Hervy, esquyre, otherwise called Clarencieulx, principall heraulde and king off armes off the sowtheaste and weast parties of England, from the ryver off Trent sowthwarde, sendeth due commendacons and greatinge—

"Ffor asmoche as auncientlie from the begynnynge the valyaunte and vertuouse actes of excellent parsons have been commendid to the worlde with sondrye monuments and remembrawnces of their good deserttes, amonges the which one of the chefiste and moste usuall hath ben the beringe off signes and tokens in shildes called armes, the which as none other thinges then evydences and demonstracons of prowess and valoure diverslie distributed accordinge to the quallities and deserttes of the parsons, that suche signes and tokens of the diligent, faithfull, and couragiouse myght apeare before the negligent cowarde, and ignorant and be an efficient cawse to move, styre and kindle the harttes off menn to the pmptacon of vertue and noblenes.

Whether the Olive Welby named in the preceding will is the Olive Welby who was married to HENRY FARWELL[1] No. 1 April 16, 1629, in St. Botolph's Church, Boston, England, we have not definitely proved, though this will indicates she is one and the same. The search has of necessity been limited to records found in this country as the manuscript of this book was already in the hands of the printers, when this will was found. We know Richard[4] Whittingham m. Elizabeth Bulkley. We know Richard Welby, father of our OLIVE WELBY, m. Frances Bulkley. It is also known that the Rev. Peter Bulkley, who emigrated 1635, and was the first minister of Concord, Mass., had ten or twelve sisters, but their names are not given. In our early records of England, as well as of this country, the Christian names are often omitted for the girls.

No doubt these names would be given in the will of their father, the "Mr. Dr. Bulckley" spoken of in the above will, which could be found in England.

Edward Bulkley, D. D. = Olive Illsby of Lincoln
"Mr. Dr. Bulckley"

Elizabeth = Richard Whittingham, Will 1615.

Frances (pro. dau.) = Richard Welby, 1595

Rev. Peter = (1) Jane Allan, dau. of Thomas of Soldington, nephew of then Lord Mayor of London. (2) Grace Chetwode.

HENRY FARWELL[1]

We believe from internal evidence, similarity of names and the mention of Mr. Cotton, the above connection of Frances Bulkley to the Rev. Peter Bulckley will prove true upon further research.

Richard Welby[2] was the second son of Thomas Welby[3], of Moulton, who d. in Bath in 1570, buried "Within the church of Stallys." Will dated 1570.

m. Elizabeth dau. of Sir Richard Thimbley, Knight, of Irnham. m. there 20 July 1560. She was the widow of John St. Paul of Nettleton; living in 1571.

Thomas Welby[3], of Moulton, was the second son of Thomas Welby[4], b. 1484. Eight years old in 1496. Under age at father's death, with sister Isabel, ae. 9 yrs.

Will dated 6 Sept., 1521. Proved Aug. 18, 1524. Inherited by will estates of his uncle Richard Welby, with whom he was buried in Croland Abbey.

m. Catherine, dau. of Thomas (or John) Bray of County Middlesex, Ex'trix, 1524. Remarried ——Hall.

The following is an extract from Browne Willis' History of Mitred Parliamentary Abbeys, Vol. 1, p. 74, Abbey of Croland:

"Richard Welleby, Esq., of Henry VII, and Thomas Welleby, his nephew and heir; they lay in a stately tomb."

Thomas Welby[4], who inherited his uncle's estates, was the son of Thomas Welby[5], Esquire J. P. 1483, High Sheriff County Lincoln, 1491-2, of Gedney, 1496, bur. Croyland, 1496, near tomb of Richard Welby, his brother, in St. Mary's Chapel. Will dated 1496. Named in his father's will. Appointed Supervisor of the estate of Joan, widow of his brother Richard, together with the Lord Prior of Coventry.

m. Joan, dau. of Sir Richard Leake, Kt., d. 1488. M. I. Holbeach church; brass plate on church floor: "Orate pro anima Dominae Johannae Welby, quandam Filiae Ricardi Leake, Militis nuper uxoris Thomae Welby, Armigeri. Obiit xviii Die Mensis Decembris, Anno Dom. MCCCC.

Cujus animae propitietur Deus."

From the will of Thomas Welby[5], Esquire: "The testator, Thomas Welby, buried in the Conventional church of Croland, held lands in Gedney, in County Lincoln, and in the County of Norfolk: also at Halsted, North Carleton, and Croyle. He wills that "Lands purchased at Little Herum be appropriated for the support of one chaplain for ever, at Multon, in County of Lincoln, to celebrate mass in future for the soul of the testator, and for the souls of (names his near kin) and all the ancestors of the aforesaid, and their benefactors."

EXCERPT FROM THE WILL OF RICHARD WELBY[5]

of Multon, elder brother of Thomas Welby[5], sons of Richard Welby[6]

"In the name of God, Amen, the twelfth day of the month of November in the year of our Lord one thousand four hundred and eighty-seven. I Richard Welby, of Multon, Esquire, of whole mind and sound memory, do make my Testament in this manner.

"In the first place, I bequeath my soul to Almighty God, and the Blessed Virgin Mary, and all the Saints of God; and my body to be buried beneath the Monastary of Saint Guthlace of Croyland, in the County of Lincoln;

"Also I bequeath to the High Altar of the Church of Multon, for Tithes by me forgotten, and for oblations by me forgotten, and other offences by me committed, one hundred shillings.

"Also I will that immediately after my decease, my Executors cause to be celebrated one thousand masses of repose, with placebo and dirge, by one thousand fitting secular and regular Chaplains, and also four trentals of the blessed Pope Gregory by four discreet secular or regular Chaplains, for my soul, and the souls of my wife, and of my parents; and the residue of all my effects, by this my present Testament and my last Will not bequeathed, my debts being fully paid and all restitution faithfully made; I give and bequeath to the disposal of Thomas Welby my brother (and three others) whom I ordain and constitute my true and faithful Executors.

"Also I will have a Priest to sing and to say Divine Service within the Monastery of Croyland, at the Altar, to pray for my Soul, and my wife Elizabeth, and Joan and my father's and mother's souls, and for the souls of my bretheren, Morris and Sir John; my good friends souls; and all cousins souls; which I will shall be performed of my purchased lands, and my goods not bequeathed by this my last Will.

"Also, I will, that Joan my wife have one hundred pounds in money, and all her wine and plate, with all other her stuff of household, that she brought with her, that may be found whole.

"Also, I will that my brother Thomas* have my chain of gold and all the stuff of my chapel, except plate; and if he will buy any of my plate, I will he have it before any other man. Also, I will, that my brother William at the day of his marriage be made worth one hundred marks of my movable goods.

"Also, I will have as much cloth bought for gowns and geds to poor folk, to the value of twenty pounds.

"Also I will have prisoners found at Cambridge, and poor prisoners lying at Lincoln Castle and at Newgate in London, for their fees to be loosed and delivered to the value of forty pounds.

"Also, I will that every serving man in my household have his whole wages paid for the whole year and horsed and harnessed like a yeoman.

"Also, I will, that my brother *Thomas have all the houses and lands that I purchased in Stixwould and in Halsted and all meadows and fields of same; and also, all the lands in Multon, called Vallentynes; so that he pay for them forty marks, and leave them to his heir; to have all the said lands to him and to his heirs and assigns, for ever more."

His brother William is given the lands in Wynthrope if he never trouble or vex his brother *Thomas, else it revert to said Thomas.

His brother Roger is given all his lands in Holbeach and also the lands in Holbeach and Flete, after the death of "my cousin John Braunch," & to the heirs of his body lawfully begotten, for evermore.

*The THOMAS WELBY[5] mentioned in above will is of OLIVE WELBY'S direct lineage.

This will is filed in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury.

Excerpt from the will of Joan (will made 1495), wife of Richard Welby[5] of Moulton, whose will was made 1487, which devised property to same Thomas Welby:

"I bequeath to the aforesaid Thomas Welby[5] my best gold seal, to Richard Welby[4], his son, one silver gilt standing goblet: to THOMAS WELBY[4], his brother, one other silver gilt standing goblet."

Thomas Welby[5], Esquire, was the son of Richard Welby[6], d. 1465, bur. in Moulton in St. Catharine's Chapel, in Parish church. Will dated 12 Aug., 1465. Proved 1465. Will in Lincoln. M. P. 1450-2. J. P. 1451-55, 1461-64.

WILL OF RICHARD WELBY[6]
of Multon—1465

"In the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, I, Richard Welby, the 2nd day of August, being whole in mind make my Testament, in manner that follows:

"First, I bequeath my soul to the most Eternal God, that made it, and with his bitter Passion redeemed it: my body to be buried in St. Catherine's where, item, ten pounds to the High Altar for tithes forgotten; item, twenty shillings to the Kirkwark; item, forty pence to every light; item, to the Kirkwark of Weston, six and eight pence; item, to our Lady Kirk of Lincoln, six and eight pence; item, to the sisters by Saint Catherine, three and four pence; for my mortuary, my bay foal that goeth into the Marsh.

"The residue of my goods I put into disposition of my Executors, which shall be Janet my wife, Sir John Welby, Richard Welby, my son, and Sir Robert Sivet; they to dispose of my goods to the blessing of God and the health of my soul.

"This is the last Will of Richard Welby, of Multon, made there the 12th day of the month August, the year of our Lord 1465.

"First, I will have 200 masses done and also many dirges for my soul, upon the day, if it may be, and else as shortly as they may be done, after my death; and every Priest or man of religion to have for singing of them 4d: item, I will, two Priests do sing for my soul in Multon Church, the space of two years; every Priest to have for his salary 100 S.; and over that, they or each of them daily to say dirge, if they be disposed, for my soul; item, I will have 100 gowns given in Holand, and in other places, where my Lifelode lies, to the most poor men, without any favor shewed: item, I will that there be bought as many sheets and coverlets, and they to be given in manner and form as is afore rehearsed, to the sum of 28 marks: item, I will that my debts be paid before all other bequests; item, I will, that a chest be ordained with two locks and two keys, and set in the Abbey of Croland, the Abbot for to have one key, and my Executors the other: and the over plus, that cometh yearly of the said Lifelode, to be put in the said chest, and this to be continued till all my children come of plain age.

"Item, I will, that if my wife can find sufficient surety to my Executors, that she shall never have husband after my decease, that then she be my chief Executor, and else be none, nor to have no more but her jointure, and the one half of my stuff of household, except plate and that napery that I bought of the Executors of my Lord Cromwell, which napery I wish to be sold; it cost me 20 marks, and I had it as it was priced."

"Item, I will that every child have forty pounds in money, when he come at his plain age; item, in case that my Executors and Feoffies see that any of my children, to whom anything I have bequeathed, will not thrive, nor be virtuous, that then his part to be taken from him, and to be given to him that will thrive, having regard to none. Item, I will that my Executors keep up my year day, and my ancestors, as long as they profit of my Lifelode. Item, I will that every Executor have 5 marks for his labour; and that my Executors once in the year take account of the bailiff."

This will is in the Registry of the Cathedral of Lincoln.

Richard Welby[6] of Multon, 1465, was the son of Richard Welby[7], of Multon, son and heir of Roger de Welby de Multon. Named in his father's will with Adlard, his brother. He was knight of the shire for the County of Lincoln, 1421. 9th. Henry V.

m. Margaret, mentioned in her husband's will.

In 1401, Roger Welby[8] de Multon, Co. Lincoln, and others grant land to the church of St. Botolph's.

EXCERPT FROM THE WILL OF ROGER DE WELBY[8]
proved 1410

"In the name of God, Amen, I, Roger de Welby, of Multon on Monday in the feast of St. Dustan, the Bishop and Confessor, in the year of our Lord one thousand four hundred and ten, do make my Testament in the following manner.

"In the first place I bequeath my soul to Almighty God, the Blessed Virgin Mary, and all the Saints, and my body to be buried in the Church of Multon near the grave of my father.

"I also bequeath to the Vicar of the same my best Beast*, in the name of my rational soul. To the High Altar of the same, for Tithes with held and forgotten twenty shillings.† To the three lights of same, ten shillings; to the Fabric of the Church of Multon, forty shillings, and to every Order of Brothers of St. Botolph, twenty shillings.

"I also wish to have four Secular Masses divinely celebrated, that is to say, two in the Parish of Multon for one year next after my decease, and two in the Chapel of St. James of Multon, for one year, or one for two years.

"I also desire that my funeral expenses shall not be made excessive for vain show, but soberly and decently to the honor of God, so that the money which would be expended in luxurious banquets may be distributed amongst the poor, and laid out in works of charity for the good of my soul.

"The remainder of my goods and chattels not bequeathed, my debts being first paid, and my last will well and faithfully carried into execution, I give and grant to Margaret, my wife, Richard de Pynchebeck, Richard and Adlard my sons, and William Case, Rector of East Bitham, whom by the advice and counsel of my Lord the Present Lord Prior of Spalding, I constitute my executors."

This will is in the Registry of the Cathedral of Lincoln.

In the Multon (Moulton) Welby line were Roger Welby, High Sheriff, 1397, Richard Welby, M. P., Lincolnshire, 1422, Richard Welby,

*"My best Beast," this was generally the most valuable horse in the possession of Persons of Rank: led caparisoned, and bearing the military weapons of the deceased, before the corpse at the funeral, and afterwards delivered up as a mortuary."
Ellers Hist. of Belvoir Castle, p. 27

†With reference to the value of money at this period, Henry in his history of Great Britain says that in the fifteenth century, three half pence would purchase as much of the necessaries of life as fifteen pence would do at the time he wrote, viz. 1780. Hence some estimate may be formed of the value of the numerous bequests to the Church, contained in this and in the other wills quoted.

M. P., 1450-2, Richard Welby, High Sheriff, 1471, and M. P., 1472-7, Richard Welby, High Sheriff, 1487, and Thomas Welby, High Sheriff, 1491.

In the period preceding the Norman Conquest two officers appear at the head of the county organization. These are the earldorman or earl, and the scirgerefa, or sheriff.

The latter was more particularly the representative of the king. After the Conquest the sheriff became a purely royal officer (vice-comes or ballivus). He held an annual court (the Sheriff's court or leet) to which the vassals of the king were suitors, arranged the assessment of rates and was in fact the financial representative of the Crown within his district. He presided over the assembly which elected the knights of the Shire.

From Fuller's "Worthies," written in 1662, speaking of the office of High Sheriff, he says: "From King Edward III until our own remembrance, the principal gentry in every shire were deputed for that place, keeping great attendance and hospitality: so that as some transcripts hath for the fairness of their character not only evened but exceeded the original, the Vice-comes has pro tempore equalled the Court himself and greater Lords in the land for their magnificence."

In the early part of the 17th century the family lost prestige and declined, but later made peace with the Crown and one branch made a rapid rise once more in Royal favor and purchased back a part, at least, of their estates.

SECOND GENERATION

2 ELIZABETH FARWELL[2] (Henry[1]) bapt. May 27, 1630, in Boston, England: m. about 1651, Joseph Wilbur, son of Samuel and Ann (Bradford) Wilbur. At an early date this name was spelled Wildbore or Wilbor, but eventually the form Wilbur was generally adopted. Joseph Wildbore, or Wilbur, was b. in England, and came to Mass., before Dec. 1, 1633, when his parents became members of the First church in Boston. He resided in Taunton, Mass., after his marriage. His will dated Apr. 1, 1691, was proved in Nov. 1691. He d. Aug. 27, 1691. Mrs. Elizabeth (Farwell) Wilbur d. Nov. 9, 1670.

Child:

8 I. Anna Wilbur b. May 7, 1652; m. as his second wife, Stephen Merrick, of Taunton, Mass., Feb. 25, 1691-2. He was a son of William and Rebecca (——) Merrick, and was b. May 12, 1646, in Eastham, Mass. He lived in Eastham, Mass., New London, Conn., and Taunton, Mass. She d. Mar. 4, 1705-6. No issue.

4 JOHN FARWELL[2] (Henry[1]), bap. Oct. 25, 1635, in Boston, England; m. (1) in Concord, Mass., Nov. 4, 1658, Sarah Wheeler, dau. of Timothy Wheeler, b June 22, 1640, in Concord. Her mother's name was Jane, as, according to the Concord vital records, "Jane, wife of Timothy Wheeler dyed 12 12 1642." (Feb. 12, 1642-3, some records.) Timothy Wheeler was a wealthy and influential citizen in the early days of the colony. In 1636 a treaty with the Indians was made at his house. In his will he mentions his granddaughter Sarah Jones.

Sarah (Wheeler) Farwell d. May 23, 1662, and John Farwell m. (2) Sarah Fiske, dau. of the Rev. John Fiske, of Chelmsford, Mass. There were no children by this marriage. He probably lived in Chelmsford for a few years before his first marriage. His second wife belonged to Chelmsford, and on Dec. 10, 1682, he was granted $12\frac{1}{2}$ acres of land in that town.

John Farwell was among the early settlers of Concord, having gone to the township with his father. He owned one of the first house lots which is thus referred to:—Following the Bay road in an easterly direction there were house lots as follows, occupying both sides o f the road and extending to the mill brook" Jonh Farwell twelve acres. He died in Concord and the probate of his will, Sept. 15, 1686, shows the approximate date of his detah. His statemedt in this document written in April, 1685, that he was aged "about fifty years," agrees with the record of his baptism in England fairly well. He was a farmer by occupation and never held any colonial office.

5 ENSIGN JOSEPH FARWELL[2] (Henry[1]), b. in Concord, Mass., Feb. 26. 1640-1, d. Dec. 31, 1722; m. by Samuel Adams, in Chelmsford, Mass., Dec. 25, 1666, Hannah Learned, dau. of Isaac and Mary (Stearns) Learned of Chelmsford. He is buried in South Nashua, N. H. At the time of his death the town of Nashua, N. H., was a part of the old township of Dunstable, Mass. When the boundary dispute between Mass. and New Hampshire was settled this change in name was brought about.

Ensign Joseph Farwell was a large land owner. Beside the land which he inherited from his father he bought other tracts. In addition to lands in Chelmsford and Dunstable he owned land in Groton, Mass. His grave stone in the Old Dunstable cemetery bears the inscription, "Here lyes ye Body of Ensign Joseph Farwell, Dec'd December ye 31, 1722, in ye 82nd year of his age." His wife survived him.

His will was filed for probate Jan. 16, 1722.

Children b. in Chelmsford, Mass:

10 + I. Hannah b. Jan. 20, 1667-8; m. (1) Samuel Woods jr; m. (2) Capt. Peter Joslin.
11 + II. Joseph b. July 24, 1670; m. Hannah Colburn.
12 + III. Elizabeth b. June 9, 1672; m. John Richardson.
13 + IV. (Capt.) Henry b. Dec. 18, 1674; m. Susannah Richardson.
14 + V. Isaac b. about 1678; m. Elizabeth Hyde.
15 + VI. Mary b. about 1681; m. Dea. Thomas Colburn.
16 + VII. Sarah b. Sept. 2, 1683; m. Jonathan Howard.
17 VIII. John b. June 15, 1686; d. probably unmarried, Sept. 10, 1709, in Cambridge, Mass. He is called "of Dunstable" in the probate records. His brother was appointed administrator of his estate.
18 + IX. William b. Jan. 15 or 21, 1688; m. Elizabeth Solendine.
19 + X. Oliver b. Nov. 25, 1692; m. Mary Cummings.

"In the year 1700 Joseph Farwell[2] bought with Thomas Colburn, his son-in-law, the Waldo farm in Dunstable, bounded south by the Tyng farm, extending to the mouth of the brook near Tyngsborough meeting house, its Indian name Great Naacook, to the mouth of Howard's brook, its Indian name Little Naacook, on which Washburn's brush factory is built, and extending from the river west to Brattle's farm. They made a division and Farwell took the southern part, and by his deed, dated May 14, 1702, conveyed one third part of his portion of the farm to his son Henry Farwell[3]. Joseph and Henry and their families removed to Dunstable in the year 1700 and settled upon this part, Joseph residing on the farm lately owned and occupied by his great grandson John Farwell."

Joseph Farwell is styled in the Old Dunstable records "Ensign Farwell." He was, immediately after his settlement in the town, employed in various offices in the town business. He was selectman in 1701, 2, 5, 7, 10, and also at earlier dates, highway surveyor in 1706, and on important committees in 1702, 7, 12, 16 and 17.

In 1710 Ensign Farwell, Thomas Lund and Joseph Blanchard, selectmen, petitioned the Assembly for aid in supporting the ministry, and in 1711 it is recorded that they received £10 from the Assembly towards payment of salary of Mr. Paris. He was "Ensign" of the Chelmsford Military Co., 1687-1695.

The printed Vital Records of Chelmsford, Mass., do not contain the name of Isaac, fifth child of above family, nor that of a daughter Olive, although both are mentioned by Hill in his "Reminiscences of Old Dunstable." Lacking any proof that there was the daughter he mentioned, her name has been stricken from this record.

LEARNED LINEAGE OF HANNAH LEARNED

wife of ENSIGN JOSEPH FARWELL[2] No. 5h

William Learned and wife Goodith (in church records) (Judith) came from England and were admitted to the Charlestown church Dec. 6, 1632. Their son Isaac was baptized in Bermondsey, England, Feb. 25, 1623-4.

Isaac Learned b. in England: m. Mary, dau. of Isaac and Mary (Barker) Stearns, who came from England and settled in Watertown, Mass., in 1630. Mary (Stearns) Learned m. (2) June 9, 1662, John Burge "late of Weymouth." She d. (Chelmsford V. R.) Jan. 8 or Jan. 9, 1663. One of the daughters of Isaac and Mary (Stearns) Learned was, Hannah Learned b. in Woburn, Mass., Aug. 24, 1649: m. Ensign Joseph Farwell.

William Learned, the emigrant, was admitted freeman in the colony, May 14, 1634. On Apr. 26, 1638, he was chosen one of a committee of six who "were desired to consider of some things tending toward a body of Lawes." Dec. 18, 1640, he signed at Charlestown the "Town Orders for Woburn," and was one of the first seven members of the church in Woburn, gathered Aug. 14, 1642. He was one of the first board of selectmen chosen Apr. 13, 1643, and again Feb. 9, 1644-5. At the same time he was elected constable (that official being, at that time, also tax-collector), and remained in office until his death, Mar. 1, 1646-7.

Isaac Learned was apparently the only son of the emigrant William. He married Mary Stearns July 9, 1646, and lived in Woburn, but on April 2nd, 1652, he sold his Woburn property to Bartholomew Pierson and removed to Chelmsford, where he was for a time one of the selectmen, and where he died, Nov. 29, or Dec. 4, 1657.

STEARNS LINEAGE OF HANNAH LEARNED
wife of ENSIGN JOSEPH FARWELL[2] No. 5h

The family of Sterne is an old armorial family of England. Arms: "Or, a chevron between three crosses florry, sable." Crest: a cock starling proper. The name is frequently found in the counties of Bucks, Norfolk, Hertford, Suffolk, and Cambridge.

Isaac Stearns, the emigrant, married in 1622, in Eng., Mary Barker, dau. of John and Margaret Barker of Stoke, Nayland, Co. Suffolk, Eng., a clothier. Their wills are found in Waters' Genealogical Gleanings in England. Isaac Stearns, whose daughter Mary married Isaac Learned, was presumably a descendant of the Suffolk Sterne family, the corruption in the spelling of the name having doubtless originated in America. On the parish records of Nayland, County Suffolk, there is the following record according to H. G. Somerby:

"Baptized, Jan. 6, 1626 (English records are said to give this date Jan. 26, 1626) Mary, daughter of Isaac Sternes."

"Baptized, Oct. 5, 1628, Anna, daughter of Isaac Sternes."

These names and dates correspond with the names and supposed ages of the first two children of Isaac Stearns of Watertown, excepting that on the Watertown record the name of the second child is given Hannah; but the names Anna and Hannah were often used interchangeably on the old records.

Isaac Stearns came to America in 1630, in the ship Arabella with Gov. Winthrop and Sir Richard Saltonstall. He settled in Watertown, where he was admitted freeman, May 18th, 1631. He was a selectman for several years and in 1647, he and a Mr. William Biscoe or Briscoe, were appointed to arrange for the building of a bridge over the river at Watertown. He died June 19, 1671, leaving his widow Mary (Barker) Stearns, who died April 2, 1677. His will is dated five days before his death. The signature to his will is written Sternes.

6 MARY FARWELL[2] (Henry[1]), b. presumably about 1642, in Concord, Mass.; m. in Chelmsford, Mass., Dec. 22, 1665, John Bates, who, according to the Boston records, was baptized Jan. 23, 1641-2, in the First Church in Boston, Mass. He d. in Chelmsford, April 11, 1722, "aged about 80 years." He was the son of Edward Bates of Boston (1633-1644) and Lydia, his wife. After Edward Bates' death his wife Lydia m. (2) Nov. 7, 1645, Ensign William Fletcher of Concord, Mass.

Mary (Farwell) Bates died in Chelmsford, Mass., March 7, 1713-14.

Children b. in Chelmsford, Mass.:

20 + I. Mary Bates b. May 8, 1667; m. (1) Josiah Cleveland; m. (2) Robert Boswell or Buswell.
21 + II. John Bates b. Dec. 22, 1668; m. Deborah ——.
22 + III. Elizabeth Bates b. Dec. 22, 1671; m. Capt. Jonathan Richardson.
23 + IV. Lydia Bates b. Feb. 25, 1673; m. Samuel Cotton.
24 + V. Sarah Bates b. 1677 or 1678; m. (1) Benjamin Butterfield; m. (2) David Carver; m. (3) Ensign Richard Hildreth.
25 VI. Rebecca Bates b. ——; d. July 6, 1682.

In his will, dated July 18, 1716, John Bates calls himself a "cooper" and gives his age as "seventy-four years or thereabouts." He mentions his son John, daughters Mary Cleveland, Elizabeth Richardson, and Sarah Butterfield. He also wills to the children of Lydia Cotton "that shall be alive at my death," from which it appears that she was then deceased. His son-in-law Jonathan Richardson was named sole executor. He d. in Chelmsford, April 11, 1722, "aged about 80 years." His wife d. there Mar. 7, 1713-14.

Lydia, wife of Edward Bates, and mother of Mary Farwell's husband, John Bates, may have been a daughter of Richard Fairbanks, who was baptized in Boston, England, June 13, 1622, the same town in which Henry Farwell No. 1 lived.

Richard Fairbanks and Henry Farwell No. 1 were both early emigrants to New England and there is evidence of some association between the two families. The Bates Bulletin of April 1913 has an interesting mention of Edward Bates of Boston, and this is, doubtless, all that has been learned about him. Soon after his death Lydia Bates, whom we have a right to suppose was his widow, appeared in Concord, drawn there, perhaps, by her acquaintance with the Farwell family. She is accompanied by John Bates, presumably her son, whose age agrees well with the baptism of John, son of Edward Bates, in the First Church of Boston. In this town he met Mary Farwell, who became his wife. They removed to Chelmsford where their deaths occurred.

7 OLIVE FARWELL[2] (Henry[1]), b. about 1645, in Concord, Mass.; m. in Chelmsford, Mass., Oct. 30, 1668, Benjamin Spalding of Chelmsford. He was the son of Edward and Rachel (——) Spalding, and was b. Apr. 7, 1643, in Braintree, Mass. They resided in Chelmsford for a number of years and then removed to Connecticut and settled in the northern part of Canterbury, probably within the limits of what is now Brooklyn, Conn. He d. before 1708.

Children b. in Chelmsford, Mass.:

26 I. Sarah Spalding b. Jan. 4, 1669-70; m. as his second wife, Lieut. John Merriam of Concord, Mass., Feb. 1692-3, son of John and Mary (Cooper) Merriam. They removed to Littleton, where he d. Nov. 30,1748. She signed a deed with her husband, Feb. 24, 1736-7. No issue.

27 + II. Edward Spalding b. June 18, 1672; m. Mary Adams.

28 + III. Elizabeth Spalding b. Mar. 22, 1680; m. Ephraim Wheeler.

SPALDING LINEAGE OF BENJAMIN SPALDING husband of OLIVE FARWELL[2] No. 7th

The first known authentic record of the Spalding family in America appears in a Virginia State Document (Senate Report) entitled "Virginia Colonial Records, 1619-1680, published in 1874 by the Supt. of Public Printing, Richmond.

After careful and diligent research, conclusive evidence proves that Edward Spalding came over from England with Sir George Yeardley in 1619 or about that time. There is documentary evidence that Edward Spalding and his family were established in the Virginia Colony in the year 1623, as his name appears in these Virginia Colonial Records. On page 37 of that work is given Lists of the Living and Dead in Virginia, Feb. 16, 1623. In this list, under the caption, "att James Citie, and within the Corporation thereof," is found, in "List of the Livinge,"

The name also appears in Hotton's Original Lists of Emigrants. The supposition is that Edward and Edmund Spalding emigrated together from England about 1619; that some years later Edward went to Mass. and became the progenitor of the New England Family of that name. Edward of Virginia and Edward of Mass. Bay without doubt are identical. Edmund joined the Maryland Colony under Lord Baltimore.

Prior to emigrating to Mass., Edward may have lived a number of years in the Bermuda Islands, then called the Summer Islands.

There are ten Spalding families bearing Coats of Arms in England. Just which one the American ancestor is from has not been ascertained.

Edward Spalding b. in England, made a Freeman, May 13, 1640, Braintree, Mass. He was one of the incorporators of Chelmsford, Mass., May 1655.

Selectman 1656, 1660 and 61; Surveyor of Highways, 1663; d. Feb. 26, 1670. Will dated Feb. 13, 1667, mentions his wife Rachael and children.

11 JOSEPH FARWELL[3] (Ensign Joseph[2], Henry[1]), b. in Chelmsford, Mass., July 24, 1670; d. Aug. 20, 1740, aged 70 years and 14 days, according to his tombstone in Groton, Mass. If this inscription is correct he was b. Aug. 6, 1670. Town records give the date of his death as Aug. 21, 1740.

He m. in Chelmsford, Jan. 23, 1695-6, Hannah Colburn, of Chelmsford, dau. of Thomas and Hannah (Rolfe) Colburn. They lived in Chelmsford for several years after their marriage, when they removed to Groton. His first purchase of land in Groton was dated Apr. 27, 1699, when he is described as "of Chelmsford." The land was purchased of Capt. James Parker of Groton, and Joseph's father joined with him in the purchase. He was a farmer. He and his wife were members of the Groton church.

Joseph Farwell died intestate and his heirs settled his estate by deeds among themselves. His widow was living Mar. 10, 1740-1, when she conveyed her dower rights in her husband's estate to her son, Joseph Farwell.

Capt. Henry Farwell was a prominent man in Dunstable. He was a large land owner. In the land records of Middlesex County, Mass., he is usually called "Gentleman" which indicates that he was a man of wealth and standing in the community. He was a selectman almost continuously from 1706 to 1728; he was moderator of town and proprietors' meetings sixteen times between the years 1719 and 1730 and served twenty-eight times on important committees. He was also deacon of the church. The exact date of his death is unknown, but it was between Sept. 26, 1738, the date of his will, and Dec. 4, 1738, when it was proved. His wife Susannah was so much affected by his death, and the deaths of her sons Josiah and Jonathan, that her mind became deranged. She lived for many years with her daughter Hannah, of Hollis, N. H., who m. (1) Jerahmeel Cummings, and (2) Deacon Stephen Jewett.

THE WILL OF CAPT. HENRY FARWELL[3]:

In the name of God Amen. The twenty-sixth day of Sept Ano Domini 1738, I, Henry Farwell of Dunstable in County of Middlesex in the Province of Massachusetts Bay in New England, Gentleman, being sick and weak, but of perfect Mind & Memory thanks to God therefor, calling to mind the mortality of my body and knowing that it is appointed for men once to Dye, do make and ordain this my last Will and Testament, and first, I recommend my soul to God who gave it and my body to the dust to be decently buried by my executors hereafter named—And as for the things of this world wherewith God hath blessed me withall—I give and bequeath in manner & form as followeth. And first I give and bequeath unto my beloved wife Susannah the improvement of all my movable Estate and personal Estate, as goods, chattels, etc., and also the improvement of all my homestead, house & buildings during the time she remains my widow, and if she shall marry again then to have no more of my estate than what the law allows her in case of intestate Estates.

Item—I give and bequeath unto my Grand Daughter, Hannah Farwell, the daughter of my son Josiah Farwell, deceased, the sum of three hundred pounds of good bills of credit, of the aforesaid Province, after the rate of twenty-six shillings per ounce in silver, to be paid by my executors hereafter named to her at marriage. If she is married before she is twenty years old or otherwise at the time she comes to be twenty-one years old, which I intend as the full of her portion of all my estate. Then I give and bequeath to my three Grand Children, the son and daughters of my son Jonathan Farwell, deceased—viz to Jonathan, Susannah and Rachel Farwell the sum of one (£100) hundred pounds in Bills of Credit of the aforesaid Province, after the rate of Twenty six shillings per ounce in silver, to be paid by my said executors at the time of their marriage, or at age of twenty-one years, Each, their equal proportion of the said hundred pounds;

Item, I give and bequeath unto my daughter Susanna Brown, the wife of Benjamin Brown of Reading, the sum of Eighty pounds in good bills of credit after the rate of twenty six shillings per ounce, in silver to be paid by my executors hereafter mentioned within one year after my decease—she having already had one hundred and twenty pounds of my estate.

Item—I give and bequeathe unto my daughter Sarah Parker, the wife of Henry Parker of Dunstable, the sum of one hundred & five pounds in good bills of credit after the rate of twenty six shillings per ounce in silver, I having already given her ninety five pounds, to be paid by my executors hereafter named, within one year after my decease.

Item, I have already given to my daughter Elizabeth Bancroft the sum of two hundred pounds to make her equal with the rest of my daughters in portion.

Item, I have already given unto my daughter Hannah Cummings, wife of Jerathmeel Cummings the sum of two hundred pounds which is equal to what I have given to the rest of my daughters.

Item, I give and bequeath unto my two sons, Henry Farwell & Isaac Farwell, and to their heirs and assigns forever to be equally divided between them all my homestead house and buildings, after my wife's decease, making the said Henry Farwell & Isaac Farwell, my sole Executors of this my last will & testament giving and granting unto my said executors full power and authority to grant, bargain and sell so much of my outlands as will pay out all the aforesaid legacies—Satisfying and confirming this to be my last Will & Testament.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal, the day and year above mentioned.

HENRY FARWELL

This will was presented for probate Dec. 4th, 1738

RICHARDSON LINEAGE OF JOHN RICHARDSON and Susannah Richardson, husband and wife respectively of ELIZABETH FARWELL[3] No. 12h and CAPT. HENRY FARWELL[3] No. 13h

The popular "three brothers" tradition was an actual fact in the Richardson family. The three brothers who came to America about 1630 were Ezekiel, Samuel, and Thomas.

They settled first in Charlestown and when Woburn was organized, they were among its first settlers, and were among the seven commissioners chosen to arrange for the building of the church and the town. These commissioners started out from Charlestown on Feb. 8, 1640 (or May 15, 1640) and spent two days in examining the tract of land granted for Woburn and in selecting a suitable site for the town. On Feb. 13, (?), a meeting was held at Ezekiel Richardson's house, and all who wished to become inhabitants of the new town were instructed to be on the ground Feb. 16th.

The brothers were also among the seven men who organized the first Congregational church at Woburn, which, says the Woburn historian, "was gathered with much solemnity August 14, O. S., or August 24, N. S., 1642." This little company assembled, we are told, at 8 o'clock in the morning and spent four or five hours in prayer. Then these seven men, "John Mousall, Edward Convers, Edward Johnson, William Learned (See No. 5h), Ezekiel Richardson, Samuel Richardson and Thomas Richardson, stood forth and made declaration one by one of their religious faith and Christian experience, confessing what the Lord had done for their poor souls by the work of His Spirit in the preaching of His Word and Providences."

Ezekiel Richardson was presumably the oldest of the three brothers. He was married in England to Susannah ——, who with him joined the church at Charlestown in 1632. He was representative to the General Court at Charlestown in 1634 and 1635, and Selectman in 1635, 1637, 1638, 1639, and in 1641, as stated above, was one of the founders of Woburn. He d. Oct. 21, 1647.

The children of Ezekiel and Susanna Richardson were:

Phebe bp. in Boston, June 3, 1632.
Theophilus bp. in Charlestown, Dec. 22, 1633.
+Josiah bp. Nov. 7, 1635.
John bp. ——; d. Jan. 7, 1642-3.
Jonathan bp. Feb. 15, 1639-40; d. young.
James bp. July 11, 1641.
Ruth b. Aug. 23, 1643, in Woburn; d. Sept. 7, 1643.

Josiah Richardson, third child of the above family was one of the early settlers of Chelmsford. He m. June 6, 1659, Remembrance Underwood, daughter of William* and Sarah Underwood of Chelmsford, who was b. Feb. 27, 1639-40, in Concord. In 1669, land was granted to Thomas Hinchman, William Fletcher and Josiah Richardson, for the erection of a saw-mill; they covenanting to furnish boards to the inhabitants at a price not exceeding 4 shillings per hundred, for "any kind of pay that the inhabitants can make at price current between man and man in this town." He is mentioned in some records as "Capt. Josiah." He d. June 22, or July 22, 1695. His widow Remembrance d. Feb. 20, 1718-19. Their children, according to the Chelmsford Vital Records were:

Sarah b. March 25, 1660.
Mare (Mary) b. April 14, 1662.
Josiah b. May 18, 1665. He is mentioned on the records as Lieut. Josiah; d. Sept. or Oct., 1711.
Jonathan b. Oct. 8, 1667; m. (1) Elizabeth Bates[3]; m. (2) Mrs. Elizabeth (Bunker) Howard in 1724.
John b. Feb. 14, 1669; m. Elizabeth Farwell.
Samuel b. Feb. 21, 1672; m. Rachel Howard.
+(Record torn) dau. b. Sept. 3, 1677; m. CAPT. HENRY FARWELL.
Remembrance b. April 29, 1684.

J. B. Hill in his "Old Dunstable" states that Susanna Richardson who married Capt. Henry Farwell was the eighth and youngest child of Josiah and Remembrance, and that she was born in 1676. But according to the above record, she must have been the seventh child, whose name is illegible on the Chelmsford records.

*William Underwood was a resident of Concord, Mass., as early as 1638. He m. widow Sarah Pellet. He removed to Chelmsford, in 1654. His daughter Remembrance who married Josiah Richardson, was baptized in Chelmsford, Feb. 1, 1656-7, "ae. abt. 15 yrs."

14 ISAAC FARWELL[3] (Ensign Joseph[2], Henry[1]), b. about 1678, in Chelmsford, Mass.; m. probably about 1704, Elizabeth Hyde, of Newton, Mass. She was a dau. of Jonathan and Dorothy (Kidder) Hyde, and was b. May 23, 1680, in Newton.

He is often mentioned between 1700 and 1719 in the land records of Middlesex County, Mass. He was of Groton, Mass., Oct. 22, 1700, when he received land in Groton by deed from his father, Ensign Joseph Farwell. He was still residing there Aug. 22, 1704, when he purchased a dwelling house and land in Dunstable, Mass. His first purchase in Medford, Mass., was May 4, 1708, when he gave a negro man named Henry for land owned by Eleazer Wyer of Medford. It is probable that he removed to Mansfield, Conn., in 1721, which was his residence until his death, June 28, 1753.

He is usually called a "brickmaker" in Middlesex County, Mass., land records, but in several instances his occupation is given as "husbandman."

Children b. in Medford, Mass.:

70		I.	Elizabeth b. June 1, 1707; d. Dec. 26, 1719, "ae 12y 6 mos 2 da." according to the records, but there is a slight discrepancy according to the date given as that of her birth.
71	+	II.	Mary b. Nov. 15, 1709; m. Edmund Hovey.
72	+	III.	John b. June 23, 1711; m. Dorothy Baldwin.

April 25, 1721, Isaac Farwell of Medford, Mass., bought land of George Momisco and nine other Indians. The tract is described as, lying in "Hassanimisco" in Suffolk Co. Hassanimisco afterward Grafton Mass.

He probably removed to Conn. shortly after this purchase.

WILL OF ISAAC FARWELL[3]

In the name of God Amen. The Twenty sixth Day of January A D. 1747-8. I Isaac Farewell of Mansfield in the County of Windham in the Colony of Connecticut, in New England, yeoman, being advanced in years and infirm of Body, but of perfect mind and memory, Thanks be given unto God Therefor, Do make and ordain this my last will and Testament * * * *

I give to Elizabeth my dearly beloved wife the whole and sole use and Improvement of all my estate, both real and personal, for her sole use during her natural life, excepting only my lot in the Cedar Swamp in Willington.

To my beloved son John Farewell, whom I constitute my sole executor, all my lands, messuages and tenements not otherwise disposed of, with all my personal Estate and outdoor movables not otherwise disposed of by me, to be possessed and enjoyed after my wife's decease.

To my son William Farewell, beside what I have given him by deed of gift already, the one-half part of my Cedar Swamp in Willington, to be equally divided between him and my son John Farewell upon my decease.

To my grandsons Edmund Hovey, Isaac Hovey, Aaron Hovey, James Hovey, William Hovey, and Elijah Hovey, £50 in Bills of Credit, old tenor, to be equally divided among them after my wife's decease, as they shall arrive to the age of Twenty-one years, the survivors of them to have the portions equally of any of them that shall have been deceased.

To my granddaughters Mary Hovey, Elizabeth Hovey, and Elizabeth Hide all my household goods or indoor movables, excepting wearing apparel, books, writings, money and bills of credit, at my wife's decease.

To granddaughter Elizabeth Hide £10 in Bills of Credit.

All my Books of Divinity, and all my wearing apparel to sons John and William equally, after my wife's decease.

My executor to procure and erect decent and suitable monuments at or upon mine and my wife's graves.

In the body of the will the name is written Farewell, but the signature is distinctly Farwell.

The will proved at Mansfield July 10, 1753, by oaths of witnesses exhibited and allowed at Court at Lebanon July 16, 1753. Inventory taken July 10, 1753, was £104:19:11.

The receipt of Edmund Hovey, dated May 2, 1758, shows that his brothers William and Elijah had deceased since the will was made. There are other Hovey receipts.

Elizabeth Hide was of Lebanon, as shown by receipt dated Sep. 6, 1757.

Lebanon, June 20, 1758. James Wright of Lebanon and Elizabeth, his wife, said Elizabeth being one of the legatees of the last will of Mr. Isaac Farwell of Mansfield, deceased.

Another receipt shows that Isaac Hovey was of Beverly, Mass., before Dec. 30, 1757.

HYDE LINEAGE OF ELIZABETH HYDE,

wife of ISAAC FARWELL[3] No. 14h

Jonathan Hyde was born in England in 1626. He was in Cambridge Village (Newton) in 1647, being one of the first settlers. With his elder brother, Samuel, he purchased in 1652, a tract of 240 acres which the two brothers owned in common until 1661. He was a large land owner, and in some of the numerous transfers he is called "Sergeant." He m. (1) Mary, dau. of William French of Billerica. She d. May 27, 1672, and he m. (2) Jan. 8, 1673-4, Mary Rediat, dau. of John Rediat of Marlboro. Six days (date Jan. 2, 1673-4) before his second marriage he entered into a marriage contract with Mary Rediat's father and brother. This document is still extant. By its terms he made ample provision for his second wife in case she should outlive him.

By his first wife, Mary French, he had fourteen children, and seven by his second wife, Mary Rediat, so that in all he was the father of twenty-one children. Little wonder is it that one historian remarks that the posterity of these two brothers (Jonathan and Samuel) "is as the sand upon the sea shore." He died Oct. 5, 1711, ae. 85 years. His second wife died Sept. 5, 1708. His eldest son by his first wife was:

Jonathan Hyde, b. in Cambridge, April 1, 1651; m. May 6, 1673, in Billerica, Dorothy Kidder. He d. Aug. 2, 1731.

Their daughter

Elizabeth Hyde b. May 23, 1680; m. Isaac Farwell.

KIDDER LINEAGE OF ELIZABETH HYDE,

wife of ISAAC FARWELL[3] No. 14h

The Kidders of America descend from an old English family whose seat was at Maresfield, County Sussex. According to a pedigree prepared by Frederick Kidder (Kidder and Gould's "History of New Ipswich") the ancestry of the American emigrant is as follows:

Richard Kidder was living in Maresfield, County Sussex, England, in 1492.

His son,

Richard Kidder d. in 1549, leaving 3 children, of whom the oldest son was Richard Kidder, who m. Margareta ——, by whom he had 7 children. He d. in 1563.

His third son was

John Kidder who m. Margaret Norman, of Little Horsted. He d. in 1599.

His oldest son was

John Kidder bp. in 1561; d. 1616; He m. Joan Beorge.

Their son

James Kidder bp. in 1595. His son,

James Kidder b. 1626, in East Grinsted, emigrated to America. He m. in 1649, Anna Moore of Cambridge. She was the daughter of Francis Moore, who received a grant of land in 1638. He was in service in King Philip's War and d. April 16, 1676, while the war was in progress. The second child of James and Anna (Moore) Kidder was Dorothy Kidder b. 1651, in Cambridge; m. May 6, 1673, in Billerica, Mass., Jonathan Hyde, and was the mother of Elizabeth Hyde who m. Isaac Farwell.

18 WILLIAM FARWELL[3] (Ensign Joseph[2], Henry[1]), b. Jan. 15 or 21, 1688, in Chelmsford, Mass.; m. July 20, 1710 (William Farwell is called William Farr in the record of his marriage), in Charlestown, Mass., Elizabeth Solendine, of Dunstable, Mass. She was the dau. of John and Elizabeth (Usher) Solendine, and was b. in Dunstable, June 3, 1685. They removed to Groton, Mass., where William Farwell and John Solendine purchased, Dec. 3, 1713, of Jonathan Tyng, Esq., of Woburn, Mass., "all that Farm or Tract of Land commonly called & known by the name of Nonaicoicus ffarme." This farm was in two parcels and contained by estimation, five hundred and twenty acres. In this deed William Farwell is described as of Dunstable. He probably removed to Groton shortly after this purchase.

There is no record of his death in Groton town records and no information relating to the settlement of his estate in Middlesex County, Mass., probate records. It is probable that he disposed of his property in his life time. His last sale of land was Dec. 19, 1751 (acknowledged same day), and was to his son Josiah Farwell, the consideration being £130. He d. before July 27, 1756, when his wife, called "the widow Elizabeth Farwell," d. in Harvard, Mass., "aged about 70 years."

His dau. Elizabeth is recorded as b. in Groton, but she may have been b. in Dunstable, as her father is described as of Dunstable when he purchased land Dec. 3, 1713, shortly after her birth. William Farwell d. (according to some authorities), Feb. 14, 1754.

Children b. in Groton, Mass.:

94 + I. Elizabeth b. Nov. 2, 1713; m. Jonathan Gates.
95 + II. William b. Feb. 1, 1714-15; m. Sarah Parker.
96 + III. John b. Oct. 16, 1717; m. (1) Sarah Sawtelle; m. (2) Eunice (Godfrey) Snow; m. (3) Lydia Taylor; m. (4) Sarah (Kaesar) Warren.

19 OLIVER FARWELL[3] (Ensign Joseph[2], Henry[1]), b. in Chelmsford, Mass., Nov. 25, 1692; m. about 1715, Mary Cummings, b. Apr. 25, 1692, dau. of Thomas and Priscilla Warner. The parents of Priscilla Warner were Samuel and Mercy (Swan) Warner.

Mr. Farwell resided in Dunstable, Mass. He received land from his father, Joseph Farwell, on condition that he care for his parents in their old age. He survived his father less than two years, being killed by the Indians, Sept. 5, 1724, in his 33rd year, according to the tomb stone. If his age was stated correctly, he was probably born in 1691 instead of 1692.

He d. intestate, and his widow, Mary, was appointed administratrix of his estate, Aug. 20, 1725. She was still the widow of Oliver Farwell in 1730-31, for on February 10th of that year she bought land in Dunstable, of Samuel Howard. The deed states, in this transfer of land, that she was "relict widow of Oliver Farwell, late of said Dunstable." Later she m. (2) Joseph Eaton, of Reading, Mass. He afterwards resided in Lynn and Dunstable. Mrs. Mary Cummings (Farwell) Eaton d. in 1750, aged 56 years, and she is buried in the same cemetery as her first husband, Oliver Farwell and their sons Oliver and Benjamin.

Children b. in Dunstable, Mass.:

100 + I. Mary b. May 8, 1716; m. (1) Thomas Clark; m. (2) Capt. John Russell.

101 + II. Oliver b. Nov. 19, 1717; m. Abigail Hubbard.

102 III. Benjamin b. May 14, 1720; probably did not marry; d. March 20, 1772, in his 56th year, according to the printed vital records of Dunstable, Mass. Both the death and age are incorrect. May 28, 1771, Oliver Farwell, his brother, granted manumission to "Margaret, a negro girl that was lately my Brother, Mr. Benjamin Farwells, late of Dunstable, desc. One half of the said negro becoming mine." On the same day Capt. John Russell, husband of Oliver's sister Mary, signed a similar paper, he having secured a half interest in the same negro girl.

103 IV. Sarah b. May 8, 1724.

After his father's death, Oliver Farwell and his little family lived with his widowed mother in Dunstable.

On the morning of Sept. 5, 1724, word came to Dunstable that a Mr. Blanchard and a Mr. Cross, two Dunstable men who had been gathering turpentine in the woods, had not returned to their homes the evening before and it was feared that they had been killed or captured by the Indians. Accordingly a party of eleven men, among whom were Oliver Farwell and his nephew Josiah Farwell[4] No. 63, set out under the command of Ebenezer French to search for their townsmen.

Arriving at the place where Blanchard and Cross had been working, the rescuing party found evidence that the men had been taken captive. The hoops of the barrels containing the turpentine had been cut so that the turpentine had leaked out. Josiah Farwell called attention to the fact that the turpentine had not hardened and was still spreading, so that the Indians had evidently left the place but a short time, and were doubtless near by; he advised that the party advance cautiously and by a circuitous route. He and French, however, were not on good terms, and French accused Farwell of cowardice, and, starting forward, called those of the party who were not afraid, to follow. All followed, Josiah Farwell dropping in the rear. They followed the Merrimac River to Nanticook brook, and at a point afterwards known as Thornton's Ferry, they were attacked by the Indians; the entire party, excepting Josiah Farwell, was killed.

When the fight began, Josiah Farwell sprang behind a tree, fired at the Indians, and then turned and ran. He was pursued by two Indians, but escaped and brought the sad news to Dunstable. The bodies of the murdered men were brought to Dunstable and all except French were buried in the cemetery in the south part of Nashua, eight of them in one grave according to the following inscription on one of the stones:

John Hoar, oldest son of the above family was in the battle of Concord, and was one of the participants whose deposition was taken regarding the conduct of the British in that battle. The evidence as contained in these depositions was transmitted to the Continental Congress and to England. By order of the provincial Congress, this report was afterwards published in a pamphlet entitled "A Narrative of the Incursions and Ravages of the King's Troops under Command of General Gage, on the Nineteenth day of April, 1775, together with the Depositions taken by Order of Congress to Support the Truth of It." There were about one hundred and twenty of these depositions.

Jonathan Hoar, fourth son of the above family, was in the provincial service during the whole of the French and Indian War.

In 1755 he went as Major to Ft. Edward; was Lieut. Col. in an expedition to Crown Point, 1756, and to aid Maj. Gen. Winslow. In 1760 he was Lieut. Col. in the expedition to Nova Scotia, sailing from Boston May 10, 1762 with 500 men, 16 of whom were from Concord. After the peace of 1763 he went to England, and was appointed Governor of Newfoundland and the neighboring provinces, but died on his passage thither in 1771.

45 JOSEPH FARWELL[4] (Joseph[3], Ensign Joseph[2], Henry[1]), b. Aug. 5, 1696, in Chelmsford, Mass.; m. in Groton, Dec. 24, 1719, Mary Gilson, of Groton, b. there Feb. 8, 1703. She was the dau. of Joseph, jr., and Elizabeth (——) Gilson.

Joseph Farwell's first purchase of land in Groton was on June 16, 1719, when he bought with his father land of William Powers, of Littleton. He bought other tracts in Groton, and he also received land in the settlement of his father's estate.

Joseph Farwell's death is not recorded in Groton town records, and there is no record of the settlement of his estate in Middlesex County, Mass. His last sale of land appears to have been Oct. 31, 1765, when he sold several tracts in Groton to his son Thomas Farwell. He acknowledged his signatures Apr. 11, 1772. (From his notebook it appears that he lived until about the time the Revolution began—unless entries were made by others after his death. (See entry Apr. 19, 1775.)

Joseph Farwell was a deacon in the Groton church. He and his wife Mary are mentioned in the list of members June, 1761.*

MOOR AND POOR LINEAGE OF MARY MOOR

wife of DANIEL FARWELL[4] No. 53h

Mary Moor, (Moore, More or Moar, the name being variously spelled on the early records) was descended from several of the early settlers of Andover.

DANIEL POOR, a lad of 14 years of age came from England in the "Bevis" in the year 1638. He m. in Boston, Oct. 20, 1650, Mary Farnum, their marriage being one of the first recorded in Andover. Thay had eleven children, of whom the tenth was,

PRISCILLA POOR, b. June 22, 1667. She m. Dec. 14, 1687, Abraham Moor (or Moore) an early settler of Andover, who d. Apr. 12, 1706. Their eldest child was,

TIMOTHY MOOR, b. Sept. 16, 1688. He m. May 12, 1712, Anne Blanchard, dau. of Jonathan and Ann (Lovejoy) Blanchard. Their daughter, MARY MOOR, b. July 10, 1718; m. Daniel Farwell.

BLANCHARD LINEAGE OF MARY MOOR
wife of DANIEL FARWELL, No[4]. 53h

Through her mother, Mary Moor was descended from the emigrant Thomas Blanchard, who came from Penton, Hants, England, in the "Jonathan" from London in 1639. He settled in Braintree, but in 1651 removed to Charlestown, where he died May 21, 1654. His first wife died in England, and his second wife died on the passage to America. He brought with him five children, of whom the three eldest were doubtless by the first wife. His third child was,

SAMUEL BLANCHARD, b. in 1630. He was admitted to the church in Charlestown, Sept. 11, 1681. He removed to Andover prior to 1686. He was a selectman in Andover in 1687. He m. (1) Jan. 3, 1654-5, Mary Sweetser, and (2) June 23, 1673, Hannah Doggett, who d. July 10, 1725, ae. 79 years. He d. Apr. 12, 1707 (tombstone). One of his sons by his first wife was,

JONATHAN BLANCHARD, who d. in Andover, Oct. 19, 1742, in his 79th year (hence b. in 1663-4). He probably m. May 26, 1685, Anne Lovejoy, although on the Andover Vital Records the name of the husband of Anne Lovejoy is given as "Jonathan Blanckett." One of the children of Jonathan and Anne Blanchard was:

ANNE BLANCHARD, b. Apr. 6, 1691: m. Timothy Moor, father of Mary Moor.

63 LIEUT. JOSIAH FARWELL[4] (Capt. Henry[3], Ensign Joseph[2], Henry[1]), b in Chelmsford, Mass., Aug. 27, 1698; was killed May 28th, 1725, in the Indian fight at Peqwacket. He m. Hannah Lovewell, dau. of John and

Elizabeth (Sylvester) Lovewell. (See History of Dunstable for Lieut. Josiah Farwell's service.)

After the attack by the Indians in which they captured Nathan Cross and Thomas Blanchard and killed all the rescuing party excepting Lieut. Josiah Farwell (see account under No. 19, Oliver Farwell). John Lovewell, Josiah Farwell and Jonathan Robins petitioned the General Assembly to raise a company and go on an expedition against the Indians. The permission was granted. John Lovewell was made Captain of the Company and Josiah Farwell Lieutenant. In the encounter with the Indians at Peqwacket, Capt. Lovewell's Company was defeated, and Lieut. Farwell was shot through the body and mortally wounded. His men tried to get him home, but knowing that he could not live, he bravely insisted that they should leave him in the woods and hasten their escape. Accordingly they built him a camp, and they provided it with such comforts as were possible, and continued their journey home. The next spring his friends went to the camp, which they readily found by means of the handkerchief which Lieut. Farwell had tied to a sapling as a signal. They also found his remains and buried them in the forest.

She was b. in Dunstable, March 29, 1707.

Jonathan Farwell lived on a part of the farm afterwards belonging to Col. Bancroft. On this farm there had once been a trading house belonging to the Indian trader Cromwell. In a field on this farm, Jonathan Farwell once found a large sum of money, supposed to have been hidden by Cromwell. Col. Bancroft later found a similar deposit. While plowing in the field his plow struck a stone,—an unusual occurrence. Col. Bancroft began digging and soon unearthed a pot of money. For many years the remains of Cromwell's camp could be seen in this field near where the money was found. Jonathan Farwell fought in the Indian wars and was carried to Canada, but escaped and came back home.

66 ISAAC FARWELL[4] (Capt. Henry[3], Ensign Joseph[2], Henry[1]), b. in Dunstable, Mass., Dec. 4, 1704; m. intention, Chelmsford rec. reads, Isaac Farwell of Dunstable and Sarah Howard. She was born at Charlestown Sept. 25, 1703, dau. of Nathaniel and Elizabeth (Bunker) Howard of Charlestown. Nathaniel Howard d. Oct. 26, 1720 and his widow Elizabeth (Bunker) m. (2) May 8, 1724, Capt. Jonathan Richardson. Isaac Farwell d. 1795 "Seven Oaks," Vassalboro, Me.

Isaac Farwell in 1723 was one of the six Dunstable men in the company of Lieutenant Jabez Fairbanks scouting up and down the Nashua River. Upon petition of the Selectmen of Dunstable, they were all discharged to guard at home. He must have removed to New Hampshire before 1740, for his son Ebenezer was born there that year. His name is given in the French and Indian War 1744, Monson, N. H. (part of old Dunstable) and on the tax list of 1753. He inherited a comfortable fortune from his father and after the death of his mother, more was added. It is shown by deeds that he was of Monson, from 1740 to 1760.

In one deed in 1747 he sold land to Peter Powers of Hollis, in Monson formerly laid out to his father Capt. Henry Farwell. Leaf (Relief) his daughter was a witness. In 1756 he sold 113 acres. In 1760, Isaac and Sarah Farwell sold to Thomas Parker of Litchfield 300 acres of land in Monson. Ebenezer, his son, is mentioned as a witness.

This is supposed to be shortly before they removed to Vassalboro, Me. where they went after the Indian troubles were over.

The family tradition says that Isaac Farwell with his family "came up the river in a packet" which could be accomplished by their coming down the Merrimac and taking a packet at Newburyport. This was about 1760-64. He was one of the founders of Vassalboro, and helped induce others to go there. He had been given a grant of land by King George III, "for services rendered the Crown" so read the deed with the King's big red seal. This deed or grant was kept at "Seven Oaks" but was loaned to some one connected with a Maine paper published in Augusta, for an historical article and was lost. Mrs. Margaret (Chase)[8] De Forest remembers seeing the official document. Mr. James Frederick Farwell[8] remembers his father having it. Through the Kennebec Purchase Isaac Farwell acquired three miles square at the Seven Mile Brook, making in all nine miles square. He is mentioned on a petition in Vassalboro 1766 with his sons Bunker, Isaac jr. and Ebenezer.

Isaac Farwell's first habitation on his land in Maine was a stone cache, now in the rear of Capt. Ebenezer Farwell's house and used as a dairy. He soon built a grist mill, saw mill and brick kilns on the Brook. His later residence was built on the Crown grant, called the "Great House" or "Seven Oaks" and was built for his son Ebenezer, with whom he and his wife were to make their home. Perhaps wife Sarah died and he may have married Elizabeth —— (no record has been found to prove this) and it is possible he had the name Bunker as a middle name, for his grandmother was a Bunker and there were other marriages of close kin into the Bunker family, for in the old Brown cemetery, near Vassalboro, is recorded on stones, the following: "Elizabeth, wife of Bunker Farwell, b. 1707, d. 1785. Bunker Farwell, b. 1704, d. 1795" (note, exact dates of Isaac's birth and death). We quote from a letter of a direct descendant who has always resided there: "All I know is that there were two unmarked graves in the Farwell row and years ago when my uncle James D. Farwell came home on a visit, wanting to put up some stones, and as there were no records of the two, he took the name of Bunker and another for his wife, and it is my opinion those were the graves of Isaac Farwell and his wife."

As no will of Isaac Farwell is found and as he gave land and built "Seven Oaks" for his younger son Ebenezer with whom he made his home, it is more than probable, he gave an equal amount to his other sons before his death.

Mr. Farwell d. in Harvard, Mass., Dec. 17, 1814 (not Dec. 17, 1815, as stated upon the family monument in Harvard cemetery).

The report of the "Committee to seat the meeting house" of Harvard, May 21, 1750, shows that John Farwell's seat was "in the fifth seat Below" and in the seating in 1766, his seat was in the "fore seat in the Side (gallery)".

On Dec. 5, 1774, the resolutions of the Continental Congress were read and approved at a town meeting in Harvard, and a committee was appointed to draft a "Covenant" for the town of Harvard. This covenant was a declaration of Harvard's intention to support the Continental Congress. After the acceptance of the covenant, John Farwell was appointed one of a committee of ten to inspect breaches of the covenant. He is also named as one of the fifteen largest tax-payers in Harvard. He was a selectman in 1769-70 and a licensed inn-keeper in 1772-4.

499 + VII. Jonathan b. Dec. 6, 1767; m. Sybil Sawtelle.

Capt. Henry Farwell was a soldier in the French and Indian War and also served in the Revolution. He was in command of a company of Minute Men who marched from Groton in response to the Lexington Alarm. He commanded a company at the Battle of Bunker Hill, and was severely wounded by a musket ball which passed through his body, and lodged near his spine. He was carried off the field for dead but soon regained consciousness and uttered the memorable words, "I am not dead and shall not die until I see my country free."

The ball which wounded Capt. Farwell was extracted and he had it engraved with the date 1775. After his death this relic was in the possession of his son Jonathan, who left it to his son James Brazer Farwell, from whom it was stolen by a thief who entered the house one day while Mr. Farwell and his family were absent.

*This Josiah Farwell[4] (William[3]) who m. Lydia Farnsworth has been confused with Josiah Farwell[5] (Isaac[4].) The Josiah, son of Isaac, whose birth is rec. in Dunstable Vital Records, died Sept. 11, 1751, as recorded in the Family Bible of his father, Isaac Farwell[4]. The Bible is now in the possession of George R. Tower, a lineal descendant.

†Ebenezer Farnsworth[3] (Mathias, jr[2]. Mathias[1]) who m. Elizabeth Whitney had, as 8th child, a Lydia Farnsworth, b. Dec. 20, 1729, Groton, Mass., who m. Josiah Farwell, No. 99.

fifth child of Isaac and Sarah (Page) Farnsworth of Lunenburg (Isaac Farnsworth[3], Benjamin[2], Mathias[1]). Sarah Page was dau. of Samuel Page of South Carolina.

Josiah Farwell with his wife Lydia resided for a short time at Townshend, Mass., then removed to Groton. In a list of marriages in the history of Townshend, Josiah's name is written Jonah.

In the Farwell Memorial, Holton says Elijah Scott, husband of Clarissa Farwell[e], No. 1471, gives William[3] a son Josiah, which we have found right and proven by deeds and land transfers quoted:

Dec. 19, 1751, William Farwell, yeoman of Groton, "sells to my son Josiah Farwell, husbandman, for £130 land in Groton," several pieces—ack. same day.

Middlesex deeds. Vol. 53.

Mar. 17, 1762, Josiah Farwell, Groton, husbandman, to Ebenezer Farnsworth: land in Groton: mentions his father William Farwell; signed by Josiah Farwell and Lydia Farwell, her mark. Wit. Solomon Farnsworth, Caleb Trobridge. One piece of land is described as follows: this piece of Land is what my hon'd Father, William Farwell, late of s'd Groton, dec'd purchased of Benjamin Chase and wife.

Middlesex deed. Vol. 79.

Dec. 10, 1764, Josiah Farwell, then of New Flamstead (New Hampstead?) N. H. yeoman, sold to his brother Oliver Farwell of Groton, for £93, 10s, 8d, 2 pieces of land in Groton; signed by Josiah Farwell and Lydia his wife, her mark. Wit. John Warner, John Chandler, ack. by Josiah Farwell, Dec. 11, 1764.

Middlesex deeds. Vol. 61.

Josiah Farwell afterwards lived in Charlestown, N. H. The town history states he came from Chester, Vt. in 1766. It is stated in Mrs. Welch's records that he and his wife went to Maine when their son Henry was a lad, that he remained, but the parents returned to New Hampshire, which is quite probable as all their older children had married and resided in or near Charlestown. There is considerable uncertainty as to the date of his death; according to Mrs. Welch's record he d. in Charlestown, N. H. It should be noted that his dau. Deborah was bap. in Groton, after his removal to New Hampshire.

She was the dau. of Jonathan and Rebecca (Brown) Hubbard, and was b. in Groton, Mass., June 25, 1721. She d. Aug. 18, 1789, in Tyngsborough, Mass.

In a deed dated Aug. 16, 1762, and recorded in Middlesex County, Mass., land records, he is called Oliver Farwell of Dunstable. In another deed, Oct. 6, 1763, his residence is given as Merrimack. May 28, 1771, he granted manumission to a negro girl, Margaret, who had formerly been owned by his brother Benjamin Farwell. In the settlement of Benjamin's estate, Oliver received a half interest in her, and his brother-in-law, John Russell, received the other half interest. In this record he is called "of Merrimack, N. H."

May 4, 1782, Oliver Farwell, Dunstable, yeoman, for "Love, good will and affection" deeded four tracts of land to his son John Farwell of Dunstable, Gentleman.

According to his tombstone in South Nashua, N. H., he d. Feb. 12, 1808, aged 92. His wife was buried in the same cemetery. He lived on the same farm all his life, probably. Changes in boundaries of towns account for apparently different residences at different periods. He was a volunteer at Lexington and Concord.

Josiah, the fourth child of the above family, was the father of 6 sons and 4 daughters all of whom married. One of his sons, Solomon[6], was graduated from Dartmouth College in 1785, studied for the ministry and was ordained an evangelist, but failing health prevented him from accepting a pastorate. About 1799 he removed to Salem, Ohio, to look after some business interests which he owned in partnership with his brother, Josiah. As a means of diversion, during a period of ill health, he wrote a novel entitled "Historical Novel" or "Manuscript Found." It was suggested by the opening of a mound in the Ohio Valley in which were found human bones and other relics. About 1814 Solomon removed to Pittsburgh and while there, Sidney Rigdon, then a printer, but afterwards celebrated as the founder of the Mormon Sect, borrowed the manuscript of the novel from Spalding. Rigdon and his employer wished to print it but Spalding refused to allow it to be published. It is believed, however, that Rigdon later surreptitiously obtained the original, and used it as the basis of the Mormon Bible.

244 ABEL FARWELL[5] (Edward[4], Joseph[3], Ensign Joseph[2], Henry[1]), b. about 1744; m. June 14, 1769, in Bolton, Mass., Hannah Russell. In the marriage record her name is erroneously given as Hannah Daby. She was the dau. of Jason and Elizabeth (Parker) Russell, and was b. Aug. 22, 1749, in Harvard, Mass. Mrs. Farwell d. near Rochester, in Monroe County, N. Y.

Abel Farwell is called a cooper in Middlesex County land records. He resided in Groton for about fifteen years after his marriage, when he removed to Ludlow, Vt., and afterwards to Mount Holly, in Rutland County, Vermont. While living in Mount Holly, Jan. 26, 1797, he and his wife disposed of all their interest in the estate of her father, Jason Russell, late of Harvard, Mass., deceased, to Edmund Farwell, of Harvard. Mr. Farwell d. in Mt. Holly, Vt., after Dec. 10, 1817, which is the date he made his will.

Abel Farwell served in the American Revolution as a private in Capt. Thomas Warren's Company, Col. Brooks' Regiment, the company return being dated Oct. 31, 1776, and endorsed "White Plains." In the census of 1790 he is mentioned as living in Ludlow, Vt. This is about ten miles from Mount Holly.

Mary Russell } m. Edmund Farwell, No. 278.
Lucy Russell b. Apr. 13, 1755.

Hannah Russell, fourth child of the above family, married her cousin, Abel Farwell; her father, Jason Russell, and Abel's mother, Hannah Russell, being brother and sister.

Jason Russell's name appears several times on the Harvard records. The "Report of the Committee to seat the Meeting House" (May 21, 1750) shows that his seat was in the second seat in the side gallery, and in the re-seating (May 19, 1766) his seat was in the "fore seat in the side gallery." He was ensign of the second company, Harvard Militia, and was selectman 1767-8. In 1752-3 he was one of the licensed inn-holders.

The following deed preserved in the Worcester Register is evidence of Hannah Russell's parentage and of her marriage to Abel Farwell:

332 BUNKER FARWELL[5] (Isaac[4], Capt. Henry[3], Ensign Joseph[2], Henry[1]), b. Jan. 28, 1733 (Bible Rec.), Dunstable, Mass.; m. Mary (——). He was in military service during the French and Indian War; was a member of the famous "Rangers," and at Crown Point 1755. He may have been married when his parents removed to Maine. He was in Vassalboro, Me., before 1787, for on Sept. 21 of that year he bought 16 acres of land in what is now Pittston and is spoken of in the deed as being a resident of Vassalboro. There is on record in Lincoln Co. a warranty deed from Jethro Gardner of Vassalboro to Bunker Farwell, dated Jan. 24, 1791, consideration £50, for five acres, more or less on Seven Mile Brook part of front lot No. 58, Winslow's survey of 1761. At a meeting held in Vassalboro Mar. 2, 1780, a Committee of Safety and Correspondence was chosen or elected by the voters of the town, and four men were chosen, Daniel Fairfield, Daniel Jackson, Nathaniel Waters and Bunker Farwell.

In the census of 1790, he is listed in Vassalboro as having two boys over 16 yrs. besides himself, wife and three daughters.

In 1797 he was in Augusta, Me. Descriptive inventory of his estate: as follows, 1 dwelling, 1 barn, 180 acres of land, 4 acres of hilltop, seven acres of mowing, 1 horse, 2 oxen, 6 cows and $400 at interest.

From Probate Records of Lincoln Co.:

Bunker Farwell, late of Augusta, Mary Farwell of Augusta, widow, and Ebenezer Farwell of Vassalboro, Administrators Jan. 16, 1798. John Jones of Augusta and Ichabod Thomas of Sidney, sureties. Inventory by William Howard, John Jones and Samuel Coleman, all of Augusta, Apr. 9, 1798, $2,449.96.

Bunker Farwell resided where the Homan place is now, further up the river from his father.

334 ISAAC FARWELL jr.[5] (Isaac[4], Capt. Henry[3], Ensign Joseph[2], Henry[1]), b. Feb. 18, 1736, Dunstable, Mass.; m. probably Apr. 24, 1768-9, Mary Horn (Dover, N. H. Record). Rem. to Vassalboro, Me., where his father was living. Vassalboro was divided into 18 school districts in 1787. The town at that time embraced the present town of Sidney, which made a town 8 x 10 miles or having an area of 80 sq. miles—40 sq. miles on each side of the Kennebec River—9 school districts on either side. Isaac Farwell was school agent for district No. 5 on the east side of the river, which is the Vassalboro of to-day.

In the Lincoln Co. Reg. of Deeds is found among others:

"Know ye, that we the Proprietors of the Kennebec purchase at our meeting held in Boston, 19th day of June A. D. 1789, have voted, granted and assigned to Isaac Farwell of Vassalboro, in the Co. of Lincoln yeoman, his heirs and assigns forever a lot of land situated, lying, and being in Vassalboro aforesaid and on the Easterly side of Kennebeck River in the fourth range of Lots in said Vassalboro, containing 200 acres, being lot No. 6 as delineated on the Proprietors' plan made by John Jones, Surveyor of Mar. 1774, upon following conditions; viz, that said Isaac Farwell build a house, not less than 20 ft. square and 7 ft. stud clear; bring to tillage 5 acres of the land within three years, and actually live on the premises, himself or his heirs for seven years, after the expiration of the three years; that he work upon the Ministerial lot or in building the house for public worship of God, two days in a year for ten years; also two days in a year upon the public roads, reserving to this propriety all mineral rights.

Henry Alline, Clerk of said Propriety

Rec. June 4th, 1793 entered and examined by Tho' Rice, Reg'r."

In census of 1790, Isaac Farwell is listed of Vassalboro town, having one son over 16 yrs., none younger, and five females, his wife and four daughters presumably, and four other free persons. He lived on the hill below his father—opposite the Sibley place.

Children, perhaps these, among others, but records not verified:

336 EBENEZER FARWELL[5] (Isaac[4], Capt. Henry[3], Ensign Joseph[2], Henry[1]), b. June 9, 1740; m. Nov. 17, 1771, Jane Howard, b. May 1, 1741-2 probably Georgetown, Me., dau. of Lieut. Samuel and Margaret (Lithgow) Howard of Ft. Halifax, Me. He brought his bride to "Seven Oaks" in Vassalboro, which was built on the original Crown Grant of land given his father Isaac. The name came from the natural location of seven beautiful white oak trees surrounding the house. (See illustration No. 66h.) A descendant who was born in the house writes (1927): "the last of the seven oaks was cut down only a few years ago and it was a monster tree for these parts, nearly five feet through the center; but it was so badly decayed it was unsafe, so had to go."

The house was unusually well furnished with imported carpets and fine furniture, for that time, due no doubt to the Howard family whose business was shipping and importing. Some of the furnishings are kept as choice heirlooms by descendants. A Farwell coat of arms, blazoned three escallop shells, with helmet above, visor down, hung on the walls in "Seven Oakes" before 1810, and later a white dove as a crest was added. It is said that when Mrs. Elizabeth (Horn) Farwell saw it, she remarked "a dove, better have been an eagle."

Ebenezer Farwell was one of the selectmen of the town of Vassalboro in 1772 and 1773, and appears again 1793. He was town Treasurer 1782 and Justice of the Peace 1798-1805. While filling the latter office, he married a hundred couples.

September 27, 1785, Ebenezer Farwell was on a Committee petitioning for a road from Buckstown, now Buckport, to Ft. Western, now Augusta, Me.

He is mentioned as guardian of John Howard of Hallowell, Maine; as commissioner to examine claims in another case, as surety for Joseph Battle, late of Farmington; and as executor of the will of Ebenezer Bacon of Sydney in 1798 (his brother-in-law).

He d. July 10, 1807 at "Seven Oaks," Vassalboro, and Mrs. Jane (Howard) Farwell d. same place Dec. 13, 1806.

He left no will but his son William was administrator of his estate, recorded Oct. 27, 1807. In the census of 1790, he is listed as having in his household 3 boys over 16, 1 under 16, 2 daughters besides his wife.

Children b. "Seven Oaks," Vassalboro, Me. as recorded in Family Bible of Isaac Farwell[4] No. 66:

1035 + I. (Capt.) William (named for his mother's uncle, Col. William Lithgow) b. June 21, 1773; m. Elizabeth Horn.

HOWARD AND LITHGOW LINEAGE OF JANE HOWARD, wife of EBENEZER FARWELL[5] No. 336h

Samuel Howard b. 1701, came with his brother James, b. 1704, to Boston, Mass. They are said to have been born in Ireland, but are spoken of as English gentlemen. They two, with five others, were deputed to select a place for settlement. They were so impressed with the advantages of St. Georges river, they gave it the preference. In 1735 they with 27 others (including David Patterson) entered into a contract with Gen. Waldo, to settle on his land in Maine. Samuel Howard had lot No.18, his brother James No.17, and David Patterson No. 35. The next year they erected log houses. The Howards were ship owners, owning as many as 15 vessels at one time and controlled the shipping on Kennebec River. Samuel Howard was made Lieutenant at Fort Halifax, built 1754, now Winslow. Lieut. Samuel Howard and brother James were chosen on a Com. of Correspondence and Inspection May 1, 1775. After the Revolution he settled at Cuchnoc, on lot No. 1, west side, which was granted to him in 1778. The Howards were Episcopalians. He d. Apr. 22, 1785, and was bur. in the old Fort burying ground, Augusta, Me., where there are tombstones for him and his wife.

m. *Margaret Lithgow of Ft. George, dau. of Robert and —— (MacCurdy) Lithgow, who were originally from Co. Lanark, Scotland. They came from Ireland to Boston in the ship of their personal friend, Robert Temple, 1718-20, with their children, William (b. 1715, Ireland) and Margaret. Robert Lithgow bought land and first settled at Topsham, Me. He served our Country ten years as gunner, Capt. Gyles Co. 1723, in Capt. Woodside's Co. 1724, Capt. Larrabee's Co. 1730. They went to live their latter years with their son William at the Fort. Mrs. Margaret (Lithgow) Howard d. Oct. 24, 1799, ae. 93, bur. with her husband at old Fort burying ground.

Note: "Our Howards claimed to have descended directly from the Duke of Norfolk. On their old silver are the arms and crests of the Duke. This silver is owned by a descendant living in Augusta, Me."

*Margaret Lithgow's brother, William Lithgow, who m. Sarah Noble, dau. of Col. Arthur Noble, was Captain in command of Ft. George, (Richmond, Me.). In 1754 was given command as Col. of Fort Western, Augusta, Me. and Ft. Halifax by Gov. Shirley. He was Major of the 11th Mass. Infantry Battalion, Jan. 1, 1777-79, during the Revolution. He also helped the American cause by giving $40,000 from his strong box. No return was ever made or expected. His son Gen. William Lithgow was on Washington's staff and stands with him in the picture, "Crossing the Delaware." Authority, Town Record of Hallowell, Me.

Their children were:

*The following paragraph regarding Mary Dandridge Bancroft's baptism occurred in the Essex Gazette of Jan. 18, 1777:—

"Jan. 7. This morning the sixth daughter of Capt. Bancroft of Dunstable was baptized by the name of Mary Dandridge, the name of Gen. Washington's lady. The child was dressed in buff and blue with a sprig of evergreen on its head, emblematic of His Excellency's provincial affection."

The name of "Gen. Washington's lady" however, was Martha, not Mary.

Col. Bancroft appears to have lived in the part of Dunstable which became the town of Tyngsboro.

Jonathan Bancroft was known as Deacon Jonathan. He lived beside his brother, Col. Ebenezer, on a portion of their father's farm in Dunstable. He served in the Revolutionary War as Sergeant in Capt. Leonard Butterfield's Company, Col. Ebenezer Bridge's regiment, which marched on the alarm of Apr. 19, 1775. (Mass. Soldiers and Sailors in the Revolution, Vol. 1, Page 564.)

J. B. Hill, in his "Reminiscences of Old Dunstable," says he served as Sergeant in Capt. John Ford's Co., "Mass. Soldiers and Sailors in the Revolution," Vol. 1, page 564, gives this last service to Jonathan Bancroft of Chelmsford, and states that he enlisted Sept. 27, 1777; discharged Nov. 8, 1777; service 1 mo. 8 days, marched Sept. 30, 1777, to reinforce the Northern army. It is quite probable that Jonathan of Dunstable and Jonathan of Chelmsford were one and the same, and that the company in which he enlisted the second time was enrolled at Chelmsford.

He was a deacon in the Baptist Church, and a soldier in the Revolutionary War, from Hollis, and served five months at White Plains, under Col. Baldwin, in the Continental Army. Pay roll of "Capt. Wm. Peoch's Co., Col. Baldwin's Regt. (1776) Noah Jewett pd. 6£. (N. H. S. P.). He settled at Stratham, N. H., where he was a member of the Congregational Church. Later removed to Cornish, Maine. He found no church there, but a few scattered Baptists with whom he united, and largely by his efforts and generosity they built a Baptist Church of which he was deacon. He was one of the founders of Cornish, Maine, a carpenter by trade, and in the year 1800 built the first Cornish Meeting House. Deacon Jewett was a genuine Puritan, possessing the strong religious zeal characteristic of his time. He had not only the failings, but the virtues of the Puritan believer, was fully conscious of the importance of his sacred office, claimed a share of that deference supposed to be due to the dignitaries of the period.

In person he was said to be small, of swarthy complexion, and led forward by an enormous nose, a facial appendage that has been duplicated by some of his descendants, who are supposed to be proud of this inheritance.

When the French and Indian War broke out, John Slafter, then a lad 16 years of age, enlisted as a drummer boy in a company commanded by Capt. Israel Putnam. He also served with Rogers' Rangers in the campaign undertaken for the reduction of Crown Point in 1755. With other Provincial troops he was discharged in the autumn, but he re-enlisted from year to year until the surrender of the French at Montreal, Sept. 8, 1760. He was one of the first settlers of Norwich, now Vt.

In the spring of 1767 John Slafter returned to Mansfield and was married. A month later he and his young wife, with several families who were removing to the new settlement, set out for Norwich. They left Mansfield on Thursday, April 23, and rowed in log canoes up the Connecticut River. Each Saturday night they moored their canoes in some sheltered spot, where they remained until Monday morning. As the river current was very strong at that season of the year they were only able to make about 8 or 9 miles per day, so that they did not reach Norwich until May 10.

When the Revolutionary War broke out, Mr. Slafter thought it unsafe for his wife and two little children to remain at Norwich which was constantly exposed to attacks from Indians, and it was decided that they should return to their kinsfolk in Connecticut. Accordingly, on the 5th of July, 1776 (the day after the signing of the Declaration of Independence) Mrs. Slafter set out on horseback with her two children, 4 and 8 years of age. Mr. Slafter accompanied them across the river and then returned to his home to harvest his crops. His diary contains this entry:

"July 5, 1776, Elizabeth, Christiana and Farwell set out for Mansfield, driven off by fear of the Indians."

The following October, a son was born to them at Mansfield, the only one of their children not born in their own home on the banks of the Connecticut.

At one time during the Revolution, the Council of Safety appointed Mr. Slafter to take charge of and confiscate the property of the Tories in his vicinity. The records of Norwich show him to have been active in all religious and public affairs in the town.

On October 16, 1780, the town of Royalton was raided by the Indians, the supplies of food destroyed, and the inhabitants, mostly women and children, left destitute. When the news reached Mr. Slafter, he and his wife spent the night baking bread, and early next morning he loaded the bread and other supplies on his horse and led him through the forests for a distance of 15 or 20 miles to carry relief to these unfortunate settlers.

Mr. Slafter was deeply interested in the establishment of Dartmouth College, and in addition to subscribing generously to the building, he transferred to the trustees a tract of land.

His wife, Elizabeth Hovey (mother of all his children) d. Jan. 6, 1811, and he m. (2) Oct. 5, 1815, her half-sister Priscilla (Hovey) Whittaker. He d. Oct. 8, 1819.

John Slafter is said to have acted as Adjutant in Gen. Stark's regiment in the Battle of Bennington. He returned home after the battle, but joined the army again and was present when Burgoyne surrendered. In after years he used to tell how, during the French and Indian War the King's troops sometimes played "Yankee Doodle" in derision; and that it was particularly gratifying to him on the occasion of Burgoyne's surrender, to see His Majesty's troops march to the same tune and lay down their arms.

380 WILLIAM FARWELL[5] (William[4], Isaac[3], Ensign Joseph[2], Henry[1]), b. in Mansfield, Conn., Jan. 6, 1748-9; m. Oct. 29, 1771, in Mansfield, Phebe Crosby, b. Dec. 22, 1749 in Mansfield, Conn. She was the dau. of Edward and Experience Crosby of Charlestown, N. H., where he lived for many years.

William Farwell is said to have been the first person in Charlestown to embrace the doctrine of Universalism. It is related that at a time when he was greatly concerned about spiritual matters, two men came one day to Charlestown for the purpose of hunting deer, and went to Mr. Farwell's house to board. That evening he was singing to one of his children the hymn beginning "When shepherds watched their flocks by night," and when he came to the stanza closing with the lines,

"Glad tidings of great joy I bring

one of the hunters asked him if he really believed that the glad tidings "were for all mankind," and proceeded to explain the doctrine of Universalism. Mr. Farwell was greatly impressed, and at length accepted the belief. He then began preaching, first in the private houses in Charlestown, and then in the neighboring towns. He went to Boston at one time and preached in the pulpit of the Rev. Murray, who received him with great kindness. After accepting Universalism he became convinced that the war was wrong, and that no Christian should engage in it. He therefore refused to discharge even the military duties required of all citizens. This refusal eventually led to his imprisonment in the Charlestown jail. His imprisonment only strengthened his views, however, and after his release he was more zealous than ever in his opposition to war and military service. He died in Barre, Vermont, Dec. 11, 1823. His widow died there July 27, 1835, aged 85.

"Eldredge Farwell was born in Vermont (should be N. H.) in 1770. Some time previous to 1811 Mr. Farwell located near Clarkson village on the Ridge Road, but removed in that year to the town of Clarendon, then an unbroken wilderness, where he built the first saw mill in that town on Sandy Creek. This saw mill made the first boards in that region. In 1813 he built a grist mill on the same stream, which was the pioneer grist mill in that town.

On the organization of Orleans County, Mr. Farwell was appointed in 1825 as one of the judges of the Court of Common Pleas, which office he held five years. The village sometimes called Farwell's Mills, in the town of Clarendon, was so named in his honor, he being the first settler there."

Arad Thomas, "Pioneer Hist. Orleans Co., N. Y.," 1871.

One of Mr. Farwell's descendants writes that the spelling of the name Eldredge was changed by Judge Eldredge Farwell. The name was his mother's maiden name, and originally spelled Eldridge.

EXTRACTS FROM ORIGINAL RECORDS, Chesterfield, N. H.

"Administration of estate of Jonathan Farwell of Chesterfield was granted to his widow Priscilla, Oct. 20, 1819, with Oliver Brown and Leonard Sanderson on the bond."

Administration of estate of Priscilla Farwell, widow, of Chesterfield, granted to Otis Amidon, Sept. 2, 1828. Her son Nathan declines to be administrator, and affirms that no other son resides in the State. Mr. Amidon went to Rockingham and Chester in 1829 to look up and take charge of the property. He found that on settlement of the estate the sum of $302.75 remained in his hands, which he distributed to the legal heirs as follows: To Nathan Farwell; Priscilla Johnson, wife of James Johnson; Henry Farwell; Clarissa Scott, wife of Elijah Scott; Azuba G. Stearns, widow of Ebenezer Stearns; Laura Lovell, wife of Timothy Lovell; and to the heirs of Lucina Fullam, $37.84 each.

741 SOLOMON FARWELL[6] (Abel[5], Edward[4], Joseph[3], Ensign Joseph[2], Henry[1]), b. March 23, 1774, bap. March 27, 1774, in Groton, Mass., d. in Lorraine, Jefferson County, N. Y., June 17, 1850; m. July 23, 1797, in Weathersfield, Vt., Sabina B. Burlingame, who was a sister of Ira Burlingame, see No. 3236h, and daughter of Eunice (Crandall) Burlingame. Sabina Burlingame was b. Dec. 29, 1780-1 in Weathersfield, Vt., and d. February 5, 1856, in Alexandria, N. Y. Her father was probably Israel Burlingame of Weathersfield, Vt., though we have not been able to verify it. Solomon Farwell and wife were buried on the Peter Bent farm, but later their remains were removed to the Copenhagan, N. Y., cemetery, where they now rest.

In the spring of 1801 Solomon Farwell and his wife and his brother-in-law Peter Bent and his wife (Hannah Farwell, No. 744), left Mt. Holly, Vermont, and moved to Denmark, N. Y. They made this trip overland.

That summer Solomon Farwell raised the first wheat ever raised in the township of Denmark. It is evidence of his skill and industry as a farmer that twenty years later at the first Agricultural Society fair held in Lewis County, he was awarded the first prize for having the best improved farm in Denmark township. Solomon Farwell was a Methodist while his wife, Sabina Burlingame, was a Baptist.

Children, first two b. in Mt. Holly, Vt., others in Denmark township, Lewis County, N. Y.:

1766 I. Lemuel b. June 13, 1798; d. aged 3 yrs., Mt. Holly, Vt.

It has been suggested that the name of the city of Alton, Illinois, was for some member of the Alton family. A query to the librarian of the Alton library brought the following reply: "I will quote from the History of Madison County (Illinois). 'In 1815 Col. Rufus Eaton of St. Louis, laid out a town plat which he called Alton after one of his sons.' "

They lived in Fitchburg, Mass.,until 1814, and then with seven young children, started for a new home to be formed in the then far west of the "Holland Purchase."

They made the journey overland with horses across the Hoosac Mts. to Albany, thence to Buffalo, and from there through the primeval forest over a trail marked only by blazed trees to Ischua, Cattaraugus Co. N. Y., where they made their home and built a sawmill on the banks of the swift flowing stream which bears the Indian name meaning Wild Water. There they reared their young family, the seven children who came with them on their long and toilsome journey, and three others born in their rude new home on the banks of the Ischua. They had land a plenty, part of which was bought by money which came to Lydia Jackson as an inheritance from her father Thaddeus Jackson of Brookline.

There was lumber a plenty cut in the sawmill from the trees of the boundless forest. Transportation was difficult as it all had to be hauled to market over the almost impassable roads to Buffalo, or floated down the Ischua and Allegheny to Pittsburgh, the latter being the route generally chosen.

It was a problem to obtain food for the family. Fish and game were abundant and enough land was cleared to raise vegetables, but everything else had to be brought the long distance from Buffalo or Pittsburgh. Flour and sugar were luxuries, and even salt had to be carefully conserved.

In spite of hardships they conquered the wilderness, and their ten children grew to manhood and womanhood, most of them took farms and lived and died in the vicinity of their father's earliest home.

Lydia Jackson Farwell, notwithstanding her comparatively gentle upbringing as the daughter of a well-to-do land-owner of Brookline was a typical pioneer. She was capable, energetic and resourceful. She not only cared for her own family, but was a source of strength and help to her neighbors in times of trouble. Many times with one of her own young children on the saddle in front of her, she started off on horseback to respond to a call of sickness or accident to some neighbor miles away. She had a knowledge of healing herbs and carried her home-made medicines with her. She could pull broken bones into place and splinter them successfully, and with doctors so few and so far away, more than one mother owed her own life and the life of her child to the knowledge and skill and neighborly kindness of Lydia Jackson Farwell. She survived her husband by a number of years and at the time of her death was over 90 years of age.

*Philip Laraway, the father of Lucy (Laraway) Farwell, was b. on the island of Jersey, Dec. 20, 1767, and d. Sept. 5, 1844. He was of English and French parentage and came to the U. S. during the Revolutionary War. He m. Nov. 18, 1784, in West Stockbridge, N. Y., Ruth, dau. of Elias Smalley. They were living in Sandy Hill, N. Y. (now Hudson Falls) in 1824.

Philip Laraway came to this country in his father's sailing vessel, the captain of which was his brother-in-law. He was an accomplished young man of leisure and brought with him a violin on which he played to entertain himself and his friends. His brother-in-law returned to England but Mr. Laraway never visited his childhood home again. He learned the tailor's trade, after the war, and followed it throughout his life. His tailor's goose and shears are still in the possession of one of his descendants.

ONE OF POULTNEY'S BENEVOLENT CITIZENS PAYS HOMAGE TO HIS REVOLUTIONARY ANCESTORS

The casual observer, in journeying along the highway just before entering the village of Poultney from the northern direction, cannot fail to discern the outlines of a monument towering majestically above the trees in the Poultney cemetery, and clearly outlined against a background of green hills. This is a new and conspicuous addition to the already picturesque churchyard, and one which conveys with it a higher and more patriotic sentiment than is suggested by its immediate environment. It is a soldier's monument, recently erected by Fonrose Farwell, a citizen of Poultney, to commemorate the lives and achievements of two distinguished Revolutionary ancestors, both of whom, by their meritorious services to this country, have cast a luster upon posterity.

Mr. Farwell's monument, measuring thirty-four feet four inches in height, and weighing thirty-five tons, is erected in the north-western corner of the cemetery, upon a commanding elevation, and is one of the finest types of monumental beauty in this section.

A brief history of the lives of the two patriots for whom it stands is as follows:—

Philip Laraway, Mr. Farwell's maternal grandfather, was born on the Island of Jersey, Channel Islands, in the year 1757, his father being the possessor of an immense fortune for those days.

During the first years of the American Revolution, Mr. Laraway, then a young man of about eighteen years, embarked from England in one of his father's sea-going ships on a fishing excursion. Arriving off the coast of Newfoundland, his vessel, flying the British flag was captured and confiscated by an American coaster, and brought into the harbor of Boston. Being alone and without means of support, Mr. Laraway enlisted in the Seventh Massachusetts regiment.

In 1777, when Lafayette, our faithful French ally, came to lend his inspiring aid to the American cause, Mr. Laraway became one of the sturdy band of heroes which followed the gallant young Marquis through the darkest years of America's history.

A warm friendship was formed between them, and during Lafayette's historic visit to the United States in 1824, he and Mr. Laraway met at Sandy Hill, N. Y., and the scene of their meeting is described as a very affecting one. His death occurred at Poultney in 1844.

Benjamin Farwell[5], No. 280, Mr. Farwell's paternal grandfather, was born in Groton, Mass., in 1756. At the time of the Battle of Bunker Hill, his older brother being ill, Mr. Farwell, then a young man of nineteen, in the prime ond vigor of young manhood, volunteered to take his place in the ranks of the minute men.

He walked from Groton, now Ayer's Junction, to Boston, and labored during the night of June 16\, 1775, to help throw up the rude breastworks behind which the American troops were destined to fight the next day the first great battle of the Revolution. Mr. Farwell served under Colonel Prescott, and standing near his commander during the conflict, saw the bloody spectacle which history records.

He heard the stern command to withhold fire until the whites of the British eyes could be seen, and then to fire at their wastebands. Mr. Farwell became a citizen of Poultney in 1798, and, after an arduous life, died there in 1823.

Three quarters of a century afterwards, it has remained for their grandson to uprear upon their graves an enduring monument to their memory, and to perpetuate through future generations the laudable deeds of his forefathers.

"I am inclined to think that the John Farwell[6] you speak of was my grandfather's oldest brother. I have heard my grandfather speak of going to Bennington horseback with a bag of corn to have it ground, and as it is thirty miles from here (Dorset, Vt.) he stayed with his brother, who I think was a miller, and that was his business after he moved to Canton, N. Y. I have heard my grandfather speak of an Isaac Farwell, who was named for him and who married a girl by the name of Deborah, I believe her last name was Swan; but it is forty years ago that I talked with him about it and my mind is'nt quite clear on the last name. I feel sure it was my grandfather's brother John[6] who lived there. I have heard him say his brother John left no children but his son Isaac[7] may have died before he did. I have also heard my grandfather tell of some one who was in the War of 1812 and who died at Sacketts Harbor."

ALLEN LINEAGE OF PHEBE ALLEN,
wife of ISAAC FARWELL[6] No. 1204h

Joseph Allen was first heard of about the year 1720, in the town of Coventry, East Conn., twenty miles east of Hartford. He was an orphan. His mother was Mercy Allen.

Joseph Allen married *Mary Baker. Their children were Ethan, Herman, Heber, Levi, Zimri, Lydia, Lucy and Ira.

The son Ira Allen was able, shrewd, and gentlemanly. He was a land surveyor and a speculator. He served in the Revolutionary War as a lieutenant in Warren's Regiment. He was a member of all the Conventions of 1776-77, of the Councils of Safety and of the State (Vermont) Council. He also served as State Treasurer, and as Surveyor General.

*Mary Baker, who married Joseph Allen, was the daughter of John Baker, of Woodbury, Conn., and a sister of Remember Baker. This Remember Baker was the father of the Remember Baker who went to Vermont.

He was the author of a history of Vermont, and of various official papers and political pamphlets.

In 1796 he bought in France twenty-four brass cannon and twenty thousand muskets, ostensibly for the Vermont Militia, which were seized by the English. After a lawsuit of seven or eight years he regained them, but the expense beggared him. He died in Philadelphia, Jan. 7, 1814.

Ira Allen's son, Sidney Allen, married ——.

His daughter, Phebe Allen, married ISAAC FARWELL.

1270 LYDIA FARWELL[6] (Isaac[5], William[4], Isaac[3], Ensign Joseph[2], Henry[1]), b. June 15, 1796, in Charlestown, N. H.; m. (1) in 1818, in Clarkson, N. Y., Samuel Luther, who was b. in 1790, in Williamstown, Mass., and was educated in the school which became Williams College. He d. in Sweden, N. Y., in 1824. She m. (2) William Covy, and d. in Sweden, N. Y., in 1828.

Samuel Luther was sixth in descent from Capt. John Luther who was one of the first settlers of Taunton, Plymouth, New England, in 1637, and of Gloucester, Massachusetts in 1642. Capt. John Luther was killed in Delaware Bay in 1644, while in command of a trading expedition for Boston merchants. Samuel Luther's father, Hezekiah Luther, b. in Swansea, Mass., Feb. 16, 1763; d. Aug. 22, 1850, in Sweden, Monroe County, N. Y.; m. Sept. 11, 1785, Mary Luther, another of Capt. John Luther's descendants. He was a soldier in the Revolutionary War, a sailor in the China trade, and a pioneer of the Berkshires and in the Genesee Country.

Children b. in Sweden, N. Y., by 1st marriage:

2372 I. Chauncey Luther b. in 1819; killed Jan. 11, 1834.
2373 + II. Ira Manley Luther b. Feb. 15, 1821; m. (1) Lucy Winslow Crippen; m. (2) Jane Eliza Cole.
2374 + III. Maria Luther b. in 1821; m. Charles Benedict.
2375 + IV. Mary Luther b. Apr. 3, 1825; m. (1) Lyman H. Bartley; m. (2) Edward Hawkins.

By second marriage:

2376 V. Mahala Covy b. ——; m. Shephard Foster, of Clarendon, N. Y.
2377 VI. Lydia Covy b. ——; a minor in 1850.
2378 VII. Lovina Covy b. ——; a minor in 1850.
2379 VIII. William Covy b. ——; a minor in 1850.

Mark Lee Luther, Los Angeles, Calif., 1923.

Information as to the children of Lydia Farwell by her second marriage is based on a citation of heirs and next of kin in the probate proceedings of the will of Lydia Farwell's father-in-law, Hezekiah Luther, dated May 30, 1851. Besides other heirs it mentions "Mahala Foster and Shephard Foster, her husband, residing in the town of Clarendon, in the County of Orleans, N. Y." of full age, and Lydia, Melvina, and two others whose names are unknown, minor children of Lydia,now deceased, late the wife of William Covy, and all residing at Westfield, in the County of Chautauqua, N. Y." A statement filed by an administrator three years later gives the Covy heirs as Lydia, Lovina and William. A fact that three heirs were minors indicates that Lydia Farwell died later than 1828, the date fixed by her daughter, Maria Luther, January 28, 1894.

It is possible that the name Covy is Cory, but the name appears to be Covy in the documents in the County Building in Rochester, N. Y.

1488 LEMUEL FARWELL[6] (Levi[5], Oliver[4], William[3], Ensign Joseph[2], Henry[1]), b. Sept. 18, 1780, in Chesterfield, N. H.; m. (1) Mar. 17, 1803, in Milford, Mass., Zilpha Albee, who was b. in Milford, Mass., Sept. 13, 1782. She d. Feb. 8, 1839, and he m. (2) Mrs. Waity Walker, who survived him. He d. Sept. 11, 1865, and was buried in West Townshend, Vt.

Lemuel Farwell removed from Chesterfield, N. H., to Acton, Vt., with his wife and oldest child, in the spring of 1804. During the first year of his residence, he occupied a part of the house where Philemon Holden lived. Then he gained possession of the house on the farm he owned, and had carried on the year before. Here he resided until the spring of 1836, when he moved to the Gen. Fletcher homestead, which had been purchased in Townshend by him and his oldest son. On the death of this son, their farm was divided, and the father built a new house on his part, where he lived until his decease. His first wife died on the eighth day of February, 1839, and he was subsequently married to widow Waity Walker, who survived him.

By assiduous labor, shrewdness, order and economy, he gained a property which much exceeded the average possessed by his acquaintances. He was a deacon of the Baptist church at South Windham, to which he was united on profession of faith. His official term as Justice of the Peace commenced in 1813, and continued by annual appointment for thirty-seven consecutive years. In length of continuous service he ranked any Justice that ever lived in Acton or in Townshend.

Frequent election to various offices by his town and by voluntary associations prove that he had more than ordinary natural abilities, and was highly esteemed at home, the place where a man is usually best known and justly appreciated. He died September 11, 1865, being seven days short of eighty-five years of age.

1496 SARAH TAYLOR BRAZER[6] (Sarah Farwell[5], Capt. Henry[4], William[3], Ensign Joseph[2], Henry[1]), bapt. in Groton, Mass., Feb. 10, 1788; m. June 28, 1809, John Stuart, son of Charles and Esther (Ferguson) Stuart, b. in Peterborough, N. H., Sept. 5, 1782. Mr. Stuart was graduated from Williams College, Class of 1804; studied law under Timothy Bigelow, of Groton, and was admitted to the bar of Middlesex County in 1807. He began the practice of his profession in Newburyport, but soon afterwards removed to Boston, where, according to the directories, he was living from 1813 to 1829. He is said to have died about 1848, in Cincinnati, Ohio.

Children:

2539 I. Charles Stuart b. in Newburyport, Mass., Apr. 19, 1811. He was graduated from Harvard with highest honors, in the class with Charles Sumner.
2540 II. Sarah Brazer Stuart b. ——; in her early girlhood, she went to New Orleans, where she married John Sill, an Englishman, who died a few months later. His estate was found to be insolvent, but his large life insurance would have made ample provision for his widow. She surrendered it to his creditors, however, leaving herself almost penniless. During the yellow fever scourge in the following years, she was "one of the bravest and most tireless of nurses."

In 1849 she join ed a party which was making an overland journey to Calif., and was one of the first women to enter San Francisco. While on the journey she was married to a Mr. —— Berry, who died so on after arriving on the Pacific Coast. Mrs. Berry remained in the west for several years, and accumulated considerable means. Just before the breaking out of the Civil War she returned to N. Y. The appeals for philanthropic and charitable purposes were frequent and pressing, and Mrs. Berry's generous contributi ons soon exhausted her little fortune. She then went to Washington and opened the house on G. Street, afterwards used as an annex to the Riggs House. Later she removed to a house on L Street, where she d. Mar. 22, 1889.

1578 CHARLES A. FARWELL[6] (Henry[5], Josiah[4], William[3], Ensign Joseph[2], Henry[1]), b. in Unity, Maine, Feb. 15, 1826; m. in New Orleans, Louisiana, Dec. 10, 1857, Martha Shannon Blair, dau. of John James and Martha Coutourie (Ray) Blair, who was b. in Camden, South Carolina, March 1, 1831. They were married by Dr. B. M. Palmer at the First Presbyterian church.

Mr. Farwell went South in 1850 to sell lime products from his brother's kilns, and remained in that part of the U. S. He fought in the Confederate Army, first in La. and then in Ga. He was a captain, and was killed fifty feet in advance of his company at Griswoldville, Georgia, in 1864.

Children, first and third b. Spring Hill, Ala.; 2nd, b. New Orleans, La.

2711 I. Henry Blair b. Sept. 18, 1858; d. Mar. 22, 1911, New Orleans, unmarried. From an appreciation by the rector of St. Peter's church, New Orleans.

"Last week a brave and generous soul left his human vestment for the investure of immortality. When on the streets of New Orleans men said to one another Harry Farwell is dead— it was with a sense of personal loss. So, in fact, it comes to this church, for every year his benefactions to it have supplied many needs, and provided many enrichments. The cassock I am wearing was his latest gift to the church; also the new lighting in place of the old obstructing chandeliers, conveniences added in choir and parish rooms. Each year he remembered St. Peter's; now we remember him at prayer desk and altar.

"Nor is it chiefly because of material benefits, we remember and speak. His best gift, of the many bestowed with lavish heart and purse was his heart and character, the cheery presence, genial greeting and personal interest, withal a heart so big it had thought and kindliness for all. So he lived, beloved and honored for what he was, even more than for what he did."

2712 + II. Charles A., jr. b. Nov. 11, 1860; m. Mrs. Stella (Evans) French.

2713 III. Ellen Rugeley b. Nov. 26, 1862, Spring Hill, Alabama. Miss Farwell, generally known as Miss Nellie Farwell, resides in New Orleans, Louisiana. In 1915 she and her brother Charles A. inherited jointly the bulk of the estate of their aunt, Mrs. Deborah Allen (Farwell) Milliken, and Miss Nellie became the mistress of the hospitable Milliken home on St. Charles Avenue. Later she razed the old residence and replaced it with a beautiful stone mansion, where she entertains in the gracious, kindly spirit which the friends of her aunt enjoyed from her a generation ago.

Beside her social activities Miss Farwell is an enthusiastic member of the Colonial Dames Society, and is affiliated with other patriotic societies, lending her support to many causes. During the World War Miss Farwell was very active in Red Cross Work. She has a delightful personality and is a charming woman to meet.

Miss Farwell is much interested in genealogy and it was through her interest and effort that a great deal of the data on her branch of the Farwell family was obtained for this book.

They were married, and after the war Mr. Milliken became a sugar planter, and amassed a considerable fortune. He d. in 1896 from the effects of a street car accident. Mrs. Deborah Allen (Farwell) Milliken devoted her life to charities after the death of her husband, and was much beloved by many people in New Orleans. In 1914 she was awarded the Times-Picayune loving cup given for the greatest public service rendered in that community, which was but a small acknowledgment for the many thoughtful and generous deeds she had done. She built and equipped the Richard Milliken Memorial Hospital for Children in New Orleans, and in her will left $50,000.00, the interest of which was for repairs and for refurnishing this institution from time to time, as needed. She d. Nov. 9, 1915.

Child:

2715 I. Fanny Allen Milliken b. Aug. 8, 1864; d. Aug. 11, 1888. Miss Milliken was an only child. She met a tragic death by drowning while spending the summer at Bar Harbor, Me. Her passing, just when she had reached early womanhood, was a blow from which neither her father nor mother ever fully recovered. It was a deep sorrow to her relatives and friends.

After completing her education she had taken her place in society, and only a few years before had been crowned Queen of the Mardi Gras ball in her home city, New Orleans, La.

*Silas Atkins was a coast trader, owning and commanding his own vessel. His route was between New England and Brazil.

British officers were quartered in the Atkins home during the occupation of Boston by the English. Because of the invariable kindness and consideration shown these soldiers, when her husband arrived in a neighboring port with his ship, Mrs. Atkins was allowed to visit him, which was quite a concession. He was so successful that he was able to retire in early life, and was for many years a leading citizen of Boston. Silas and Martha (Howland) Atkins had children as follows:

Martha Howland Atkins b. Oct. 25, 1770; d. Mar. 27, 1857; m. Feb. 3, 1794, Capt. Robert Gray, who discovered the Columbia River, which was named for his vessel.

Silas Atkins, jr., b. Mar. 27, 1775; d. Apr. 10, 1775.

Mary Gyles Atkins b. Sept. 25, 1776; d. in 1776.

Silas Atkins, jr., b. July 1, 1778; d. Mar. 21, 1832, in Buenos Aires. He engaged in business in South America, and spent his life there. Married there a Spanish lady.

Mary Gyles Atkins b. May 4, 1780; d. Feb. 20, 1859; m. July 6, 1806, Capt. Joshua Nash.

+Sarah Burt Atkins b. Sept. 20, 1782; d. Oct. 16, 1869, in Dorchester, Mass.; m. Sept. 24, 1809, OLIVER FARWELL, of Merrimack, N. H.

Susannah Howland Atkins b. Oct. 16, 1784; d. Dec. 16, 1805.

Winifred Atkins b. Sept. 3, 1788; d. Aug. 6, 1864.

After the death of her husband, Mrs. Farwell, with her infant son, lived with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Silas Atkins, in Boston.

To the end of her long life she took a cheerful, active interest in affairs about her; read the daily papers; wrote letters and enjoyed the companionship of her friends and her son and his family.

SELAH FARWELL[7] No. 1769, of Denmark, N. Y., and his wife Nancy (Plank) Farwell.

1769 SELAH FARWELL[7] (Solomon[6], Abel[5], Edward[4], Joseph[3], Ensign Joseph[2], Henry[1]), b. in Denmark Township, Lewis County, N. Y., Oct. 22, 1805; m. (1) in Denmark, N. Y., Dec. 26, 1827, Nancy Plank, dau. of Henry and Margaret (Van Ingen) Plank, who was b. Dec. 22, 1805, near Copenhagen, Denmark Township, Lewis County, N. Y., and d. in Waterville, Kansas, June 5, 1881. He m. (2) in 1883, Mrs. Maria Adams, of Waterville. He d. June 8, 1894, in Osborne, Kan. and was buried in Waterville, Kan.

When Mr. Farwell was first married, he moved to Cattaraugus County, N. Y. While there he helped his father build a hotel at Farwell's Corners. After the railroad came, the name of the place was changed to Fairview. The hotel was built for James Farwell, who was the proprietor from 1830 until his death. It burned in 1890.

Cattaraugus County was so far west and the country so new that Mrs. Farwell's father, Henry Plank, drove from Lewis County in the fall of 1832, and persuaded Mr. Farwell to take his family and return to Lewis County. If he would do so, following the old Dutch plan, Mr. Plank agreed to buy a farm for his son-in-law.

In 1839 Mr. Farwell sold the farm and bought a grist mill and saw mill on Deer River, near Copenhagen, which he operated successfully until about 1870. In 1872 he removed to Waterville, Kan. to spend his remaining years near his sons. He was a man devoted to his family, was industrious, and held in the highest regard by all in the community in which he lived. His life was an active one, and he accomplished much for the opportunities he had.

Mrs. Farwell learned as a child to spin wool and flax, and weave woolen cloth and linen, and after her marriage she supplied the clothing needed by the family, and also the linen and cotton necessary for table linen and bedding; first spinning and weaving it, and then making it up.

In 1877 Mr. and Mrs. Farwell celebrated their golden wedding with all their living children present, together with grandchildren, making twenty-seven relatives in all present.

Children b. in Cattaraugus County, N. Y.:

2954 + I. Sabina Margaret b. Mar. 3, 1829; m. Horace W. Gould.

2955 II. Henry Plank b. July 17, 1830; d. Aug. 28, 1858, unmarried. He was a graduate of Denmark Academy, and later of Cortland College, in Cortland, N. Y., and in 1856 came to Whiteside County, Ill. and taught in the city schools at Princeton and Macomb, Ill. He d. at the latter place. He joined the Methodist Episcopal Church in 1854, studied for the ministry and received a license to preach just before he died.

2956 + III. John Dennis b. July 22, 1832; m. (1) Lydia Hollinshead; m. (2) Abigail Harriet Hartwell.

BOGAERT LINEAGE OF NANCY (PLANK) FARWELL, wife of SELAH FARWELL[7] No. 1769h

The name Bogaert means orchard. We find it having three prefixes, Vanden, Uytten and Inden, which have been dropped, and under various spellings as Boogaerdt (the original) Bogert and the Latinized form of Bogardus.

The name was early represented in this country and of the dozen or more distinct families, we find evidences that those coming from Leerdam, Hykoop and Schoonderwoert were related. Schoonderwoert is in the province of South Holland. Talcott states that Hykoop is two miles northwest of Schoonderwoert and Riker states that Leerdam was probably the county as it included Schoonderwoert.

Teunis Bogaert (probably father's name) m. ——.
in Holland.

Their son

Cornelis Teunissen Bogaert b. in Holland; d. at Schoonderwoert, in province of South Holland, prior to Sept. 1661. m. Beelite Cornelis b in Holland; d. at Schoonderwoert, in province of South Holland, prior to Sept. 1661.

Their children, surviving in 1661:
+Cornelis Cornelisen Bogaert b. abt. 1625.
Gysbert Cornelisen Bogaert b. abt. 1635; m. before Mar. 1660, Maria, wid. of Jan Helmersen.
Two other children, names unknown, possibly one is Hendrick Cornelisen Bogaert of Kingston, N. Y., but proof is lacking.

Cornelis Cornelisen Bogaert called Van de Bogert, Vos, Vosch, Vossgen, Vosje, and de Boer or the farmer, Vosch, most frequently used; b. "from Schoenderwoerdt" in province of South Holland, bur. July 28, 1665, Albany, N. Y. He served as farm laborer for six years beginning Sept. 4, 1640, at wages ranging from £80 to £100 a year. He is probably the same person as Cornelis Vos and Cornelisz alias Vosje, who appears in the account books from 1642 to 1657.

Jan. 29, 1649, Cornelis gent. vossgen (Cornelis, called vossgen) leases a farm adjoining Rem Jansz, the smith, on the north.

Cornelis Vos owned a yacht operating between New Amsterdam and Albany.

m. abt. 1649 Dirckje Pieterse Coeymans or Koijemans, b. before Feb. 6, 1665. In 1665 the household stuff of Dirckie Pieterse was sold at auction. Dirckje Pieterse Coeymans was pro. the dau. of Barent Pietersz Coeymans whose other children were Geertje, m. Jacob Coenratse Ten Eyck and Lucas Pieterz m. Ariantje.

Their children (reaching maturity):

Abigail Bogaert b. ——; m. Isaac Ver Planck.
Jacob Bogaert b. 1654, in Albany (Family Bible Rec.) m. Jannetje Quackenbos.
+Jannetje Bogaert b. abt. 1656; m. Martin Jansen Van Alstyne. See Van Alstyne lineage.

There is a quit claim from Gysbert Cornelissen Bogaert of Catskill to his brother Cornelissen Bogaert of Rensselaerswyck for his one-fourth interest in the family homestead in Holland. 3 Sept. 1661, Cornelis acknowledged that Gysbert had sold him a "just Child's portion, to wit, a one-fourth interest in a farm lying in the jurisdiction of Schoonderwoert in Holland, received by him by inheritance and descent on the death and demise of their father Cornelis Theunisz Bogaert and of their mother Beelitie Cornelisz at Schoonderwoert aforesaid."

Asahel Moors, father of above, son of Betsey (Farwell) Moors[6] No.745, and Levi Moors, was heard from in the fall of 1857, when he was with a train bound for California. The last letter received from him was written at Taos, New Mexico, and mailed at Albuquerque, New Mexico. This was the party which was massacred at Mountain Meadow, Utah. His family think Asahel was one of the unfortunate victims of that Indian raid. In 1863 Mr. Judevine told Mr. Moors' family he saw their son's name among the list of victims in the Mountain Meadow disaster in the "New York Tribune" but the family failed to find the account. The papers of that date were consumed in the fire. They also failed to find the report at Washington, D. C. Extract from a letter. J. D. F.

1817 GOV. LEONARD JAMES FARWELL[7] (Capt. James[6], Abel[5], Edward[4], Joseph[3], Ensign Joseph[2], Henry[1]), b. in Watertown, N. Y., Jan. 5, 1819. Left an orphan at the early age of eleven, he was compelled to shift for himself and apprenticed himself to a tinner, which trade he followed until he was nineteen.

At that age he followed an impulse, common in that day, to go west and went to Lockport, Ill., where he engaged in the hardware business. In 1840 he sold out and moved to Milwaukee, Wis., where he opened another hardware store. By careful management his business grew until he was the head of one of the largest wholesale stores of the kind in the West.

His health failing in 1846 he made a trip to the West Indies, no small feat in those days, and the following year visited England and the Continent, returning in 1847.

Having purchased real estate in Madison, Wis., he made that his home and through his interest in public affairs became well known over the state.

In 1851 he received the unanimous nomination for Governor of the state by the Whig Party and was the only member of his party to be elected.

During his term of office the following are the important measures which became laws: A geological survey of the State; the creation of a Supreme Court; system for sale of state lands to settlers; the improvement of river and lake transportation; investment of state lands for University endowment; laws to encourage R. R. building, and a system of state roads.

Gov. Farwell was a very generous man and broad in his interests. The editor of the first book published on Henry Farwell and his descendants, Dr. Holton, acknowledged in his preface indebtedness to Gov. Farwell for early aid in his work, and the present prosperity of the State of Wisconsin is in part due to his wise dominance in the formative period.

Sept. 20, 1853, Gov. Farwell married Miss Frances Amelia Corss, who was b. in Watertown, N. Y., Apr. 18, 1830, a dau. of Major-Gen. A. N. and Sophronia (Newell) Corss of Madison, Wis., formerly of Watertown, N. Y. Mrs. Farwell was a very beautiful woman. It being said that she and Mrs. Stephen A. Douglas were the two handsomest women in Washington, D. C. where she d. in 1868.

Gov. Farwell retired from public life for a period but returned to it and in 1859 was elected to the U. S. Legislature. In 1863 he was appointed Asst. Examiner of Pensions in Washington, D. C. and he and his family removed there. Later he was appointed Examiner of Pensions and remained in Washington several years.

Returning west he removed to Chicago and later to Grant City, Worth Co., Mo., where he d. Apr. 11, 1889.

Children:

3091 I. William Corss b. July 3, 1855; d. 1884, San Francisco, Calif., unmarried.

1976 HENRY FARWELL[7] (Simeon[6], Daniel[5], Daniel[4], Joseph[3], Ensign Joseph[2], Henry[1]), b. in Fitchburg, Mass., Dec. 3, 1795; d. in Sterling, Ill., Jan. 4, 1873; m. in Westminster, Mass., Oct. 5, 1819, Nancy Jackson, who was b. Jan. 11, 1798, in Westminster, Mass.

Mr. Farwell removed from Massachusetts and settled in Steuben County, N. Y., about the year 1820, and engaged in lumbering for 12 or 13 years, when he removed to a farm in Chemung County, N. Y. In the summer of 1838 he removed to Illinois, and settled at Daysville, Ogle County. Here he and his family encountered the usual hardships of pioneers. At one time while his family and that of his sister, Mrs. Stephen Bemis, No. 1980h, fourteen persons in all, were occupying a log cabin fourteen feet square, the entire household, excepting Mrs. Farwell and her infant child, were sick with the ague. These discomforts, however, were only temporary. In a few years Mr. Farwell built a large brick house, his sons making all the brick, and cutting the stone for the door and window sills. It was in this house, on Oct. 5, 1869, that Mr. and Mrs. Farwell celebrated their golden wedding, Mr. Farwell was a member of the Methodist Church, and one of the early friends of the Rock River Seminary.

Children:

3284 + I. Henry Jackson b. May 24, 1821; m. Mahala Jane Baker.

3289 + VI. Maria Louise b. Aug. 28, 1837; m. Epaphras Wadsworth Edson.

Nancy Jackson was a lineal descendant of several interesting personages; among whom were Major Gen. Humphrey Atherton of Colonial forces in New England; Thomas Trobridge, Henry Bright[4], William Ward and John Coolidge, who is also an ancestor of President Calvin Coolidge. Her Coolidge line is as follows:

John Coolidge[1], Simon[2], Mary[3], Henry Bright[4], Jemima Bright[5], Jemima Trowbridge[6], John Jackson[7], Nancy Jackson[8].

Her Jackson lineage was double, coming from both John and Edward, sons of Christopher Jackson who was a merchant in London, Eng. during the latter part of the reign of Queen Elizabeth.

3307 + II. Mary Hepsey Bemis b. Dec. 21, 1830; m. Nathan Lattin.
3308 + III. Judson Moss Bemis b. May 18, 1833; m. Alice Cogswell.

Stephen Bemis was descended from Joseph Bemis (Beamish in England) b. 1619, England, who came to America about 1640, and settled at Watertown, then New Towne, Mass.

Thus Miriam Farwell and her husband Stephen were both of unmixed American ancestry. During their early life they were Congregationalists but changed their faith, joining the Baptists and in 1831 they helped form the Baptist Church in Fitchburg, Mass.

Shortly after the birth of their son, Judson Moss, the family removed to New York State. During the summer of 1838, they, with their little family, joined Henry Farwell, No. 1976h (who was brother to Mrs. Miriam Bemis) and the two families traveled in covered wagons the eight hundred miles from New York State to Ogle Co., Ill., to make their permanent homes.

They experienced the usual hardships of the pioneer in early days, but Stephen Bemis had the advantage of most pioneer farmers in that he had a trade to which he could apply himself when the weather or season made it impossible to work out of doors.

After a little more than a year in the new country Mrs. Miriam Farwell Bemis died. Mr. Bemis m. (2) Mrs. Mary Neville.

In 1849 he joined the Mix expedition who were to cross the plains by ox team to search for gold in California. After helping to build a dam across the Yuba river, he remained three years, having indifferent success then returned to his family and farm, there to remain until his death. Upon this farm he had raised wheat in the region of his original settlement for more than fifty years.

At the fiftieth anniversary of the First Baptist Church of Fitchburg, Mass., held in 1881, he was one of the three survivors of its original congregation. Stephen Bemis died in Oregon, Ill., Mar. 1, 1889.

2083 ROYAL ESTABROOK FARWELL[7] (Daniel[6], Edmund[5], Daniel[4], Joseph[3], Ensign Joseph[2], Henry[1]), b. Oct. 1, 1824, in Harvard, Mass.; m. (1) Sept. 10, 1846, in Pepperell, Mass., Sarah, dau. of John and Rebecca (Newhall) Walcott, of Pepperell. She d. in Natick, Mass., Oct. 11, 1861, aged 36 years; he m. (2) Dec. 25, 1852, Mrs. Martha (Walcott) Stoddard, a sister of his first wife, who was b. in Pepperell, in 1824, and d. in Natick, Feb. 7, 1914. He d. there July 4, 1908.

Royal Estabrook Farwell's father died when he was but nine months old. His education was acquired as opportunity offered in the winter terms of the district school, and one term in the Appleton Academy. He began to work at farming when a mere child, and from the age of ten years was self-supporting. During his minority he lived part of the time with an aunt, and part of the time with his brother, Russell Farwell, who was a blacksmith. He lived for a time in Pepperell, Mass., near his native town, and finally, in 1845, went to Natick, Mass., and engaged for a short time in the blacksmith business. About 1848 he engaged in the manufacture of shoes, and was one of the pioneer manufacturers of boots and shoes in Natick, which at that time was a small village. He continued in this business until the Civil War broke out. At that time his health was not good, and he gave up business, and being unqualified for service, he entered upon the work of the Christian Commission to aid the Union Army and relieve the hardships and suffering of the Union soldiers.

At the close of the war he was appointed as agent of the Freedmen's Bureau, a difficult position, for which his service in the war had given him excellent preparation. The work of this Bureau, unpopular as it was in the north, as well as the south, was carried forward bravely and perseveringly. The very life of a man in this Bureau was constantly in danger. He became ultimately associated with the Rev. John G. Fee, who assisted in establishing Berea College for Freedmen. He continued in this service until the spring of 1866, when he returned to Natick, Mass.

He established a fire insurance and real estate business in Natick. In 1882 he admitted into partnership his only son, Edwin, and the firm name was made R. E. Farwell & Son. For many years Mr. Farwell was the most prominent real estate agent in town, and the best known insurance man in that section of the country. He was always a leader in every move to improve his home town. He never sought public office for himself, though for many years he served on the board of town assessors. He was a prominent member and generous supporter of the Congregational Church in Natick so long as he lived.

Apr. 10, 1861, in Charlestown, Mass., Mary Abba Dockray, dau. of James J. and Mary Ann (Plummer) Dockray, who was b. in Portland, Me., Sept. 24, 1838. He d. July 17, 1915, in Bridgeport, Conn., and is buried there.

John Maynard Farwell and his brother, Willard Brigham Farwell were among the pioneers to California in 1849. John Maynard Farwell remained there nine years, returning to the East in 1858. He and one other brought the first U. S. mail by coach from Sacramento to St. Louis, driving wild mules. He studied law and was admitted to the Mass. bar, but practised but little. He edited a paper at Marlboro, Mass., "The Marlboro Journal," and later moved to South Framingham, Mass., and from there to Bridgewater, Conn., where he died.

Mr. Farwell studied law with his father in 1847, but did not make this profession a life work. He helped to organize the Boston and California Stock Mining & Trading Co., going to California in July, 1849, via Cape Horn. In 1851 he was one of the organizers of the San Francisco Daily Whig, and was elected to the State Legislature of California in 1855. During the Civil War he was appointed Naval Officer of the Custom House at San Francisco, by President Lincoln. After the war he was appointed Resident Agent in Europe for the United States Treasury Department. After resigning this position he was a resident of San Francisco many years.

At one time he was honored by the Society of Pioneers of California with the office of President, and on their fiftieth anniversary was the orator of the occasion, and delivered a brilliant address.

He was a gifted man and a versatile author. He wrote a book on the Chinese, and among his other writings is a small sixteen page book "Written for Little Daughter Edith" on her seventh birthday, which he illustrated himself. Copies of this small volume are treasured keepsakes in the family now.

Mr. Farwell d. in Alameda, Calif., Feb. 10, 1903, and is buried in Oakland, Calif. His widow and children survived him.

Nathaniel W. Farwell and his wife were buried in Cambridge, Mass.

In his boyhood Mr. Farwell used to work for the farmers and others in Peterboro, N. H. Later he went to Waltham, Mass., and worked for his uncle, Jacob Farwell, and afterwards for his uncle, Isaac Farwell, who had charge of the Gov. Gore farm in Waltham. He afterwards entered the employ of the Boston Manufacturing Company in Waltham, working in their cotton mills and bleachery. Here he remained until about 1850, when he was obliged to retire on account of ill health.

In September 1852 he went to Somersworth, N. H., where he was employed to take care of the bleaching department of the Great Falls Manufacturing Company. There he remained until the autumn of 1859. In December of that year he went to Lewiston, Me. and leased the bleachery of the Franklin Company, which he operated until 1870. In 1865 he had purchased a water power at Lisbon, Me., where he later built the Farwell Mills for the manufacture of cotton goods. Besides operating the Franklin Company's bleachery, he leased, in 1865, the bleachery of the Great Falls Manufacturing Company, of Somersworth, where he had formerly been employed.

During the Civil War Mr. Farwell was active in all patriotic work, and served two terms in the Maine Legislature, in 1863 and 1864. Among the positions of trust which he occupied was that of director of the First National Bank of Lewiston; director of the Boston & Maine Railroad; President of the Lewiston and Auburn Railroad, and director of several of the manufacturing companies of Lewiston and elsewhere. In 1868 he purchased a house in Boston, where during the remainder of his life he resided in the winter months. The summers he spent at Lewiston.

*John Whittemore Farwell, m. May 8, 1870, Ruby Frances Howe, dau. of Lawrence G. and Dorcas (Mallon) Howe, of Lowell, Mass. She was b. in Lowell, May 8, 1844. He lives in Boston in winter and in Cohasset, which is his legal residence, in summer.

After leaving school Mr. Farwell was employed with his father in the Lewiston Bleachery Lewiston, Me., until January 1, 1870, when a partnership was formed btween him and his father, under the name of N. W. Farwell and Son. The firm operated the Great Falls Bleachery until the expiration of their lease, Mar. 1, 1878. In 1877 they built a bleachery at Lawrence, Mass., which was put in operation Jan. 1, 1878. Mr. Farwell also assisted his father in the operation of the mill at Lisbon, Me., and upon the completion and incorporation of the new mill at that place in 1872, he was made Treasurer, which position he still holds (1916). On the death of the father, the bleachery at Lawrence was incorporated as "The Farwell Bleachery," which is still operated under Mr. Farwell's control.

While at Lewiston he was for several years a member of the City Government, and in 1872 a member of the Maine Legislature. In the autumn of that year he removed to Massachusetts, and for several years made his home in Melrose, where he took an active part in town affairs, and in 1885 represented the town in the Massachusetts Legislature. He now (1916) occupies many positions of trust and is a director in several corporations. He has no children. His wife died Nov. 20, 1923, in Boston.

Abbott, dau. of Squire Abbott of Augusta, Me., Capt. Ebenezer Farwell was engaged in importing, owned and commanded his own ship, "The Farwell." Desiring to make a last trip to Africa, before leaving the sea, he set sail for a load of camwood and ivory. His nephew, William Tower, went to see him sail, and described him as a man of very commanding presence, six feet tall, and very handsome. He went to Cape Palmas, where being informed by the natives they had both wood and ivory he went ashore with part of the crew to trade. They were set upon and all were killed with the exception of one man. The ship was burned. This man who escaped made his way up the Coast to a place where an English gunboat was stationed. This boat returned to the scene of the disaster and destroyed, with their guns, the natives' village and all savages in sight. This was in Apr. 1842. His wife was administratrix of his will, Sept. 26, 1843, Vassalboro. His heirs were his two sons.

Capt. Farwell had built a handsome Colonial residence on part of the land of the original grant to his great grandfather, Isaac Farwell[4]. 2206 CAPT. JAMES DUMERESQ FARWELL[7] (William[6], Ebenezer[5], Isaac[4], Capt. Henry[3], Ensign Joseph[2], Henry[1]), b. Sept. 21, 1815, at "Seven-Oaks" in Vassalboro, Me.; m. (1) Oct. 19, 1841, Angelina Todd of Newburyport, Mass.; m. (2) Elizabeth Foye, b. Feb. 3, 1836, Burlington, Vt. He was a sea captain at 26 years of age. In 1849 he was first officer on the "Jamestown," a ship which was sent by the United States government to Ireland during the famine there. It was loaded with corn and food supplies. Capt. R. B. Forbes of Boston, Mass., was in charge of the vessel. While the ship was in port in Ireland the officers of the "Jamestown" were entertained by the Irish aristocracy and were treated with great consideration.

Capt. Farwell went to California in 1850 and settled in San Francisco, where he engaged in the ship chandler business in which he was very successful. He took a most active part in the early history of the state. He was vice-president of both Vigilance Committees of California, the first organized in June, 1851, the second organized in May, 1856. The purpose of the Vigilance Committee was to protect the people of the state from the hordes of desperate criminals who infested it in the early days. He d. Nov. 20, 1887.

The residence which Capt. Farwell built in Alameda, Calif. was called "Homebush." It was, at the time it was built, the most beautiful estate in that section of the country. The house, since his time, has burned, and the place been sold. It is now used as a pleasure ground, with lake, fountains and statuary still much as formerly.

Mr. Farwell left the Monroe County home when very young, taking an axe and leading a cow went on foot over a hundred miles into Allegan County, where he took up and cleared forty acres of new land and built a log house. It was here that he lived until 1855 when he moved to a farm in Butler, Branch County, Mich., where the rest of his active life was spent. Here he operated a furnace for production of pig iron for a few years until the local supply of ore was exhausted.

In 1863 he and his brother Ben and son George (now of Ventura, Calif.) and some others, made up a wagon train and took a drove of horses through to Sacramento, Calif., about a three months' trip. Nov. 11, 1869, Matilda Jane Lynd, dau. of William Lynd, of Belfast, Ireland, who was b. in New Orleans, La., Feb. 10, 1845, and is still living (1924). Mr. Farwell d. in New Orleans, Nov. 16, 1873.

Capt. Farwell went to New Orleans when quite a young man. He entered the Confederate States Navy in the early days of the Civil War, and was appointed acting master of a gun boat. When this boat was destroyed and the navy so reduced that his services were no longer needed, he joined Morgan's Cavalry, Company "A," Duke's Brigade. He was in Gen. Morgan's bodyguard, and was captured and imprisoned with him. He assisted in the escape of Gen. Morgan, but was himself re-captured, and remained a prisoner at Camp Douglas, Ill., until the close of the war.

He is given as Henry A. Farwell in the list of Confederate forces in the Civil War.

One of the most highly respected citizens of Rockland, Me. President of the North National Bank of Rockland. He m. Dec. 25, 1877, Cora Maria Adams, who was b. in Union, Me., Apr. 12, 1854. She was the daughter of William and Elizabeth H. (Leonard) Adams, of Rockland.

Mr. Farwell was a man who combined rare business ability with a marked degree of modesty, being quiet and retiring in his habits. His abilities, however, were of a high order, and his personal attributes were such as to win him a wide circle of friends. He was possessed of a cheerful disposition. Up to the time of his last illness he kept in touch with the banking business and his extensive personal affairs.

The amount of Mr. Farwell's personal gifts to charity during his lifetime will never be known. Unassuming in his many benefactions, as in every walk of life, he gave to the needy with a free hand and asked neither recognition nor praise. He was ready also with quick sympathy and understanding which means more to the poor than mere gifts of money or necessities. He d. in Mar., 1912, and his wife and children survived him.

Robert F. and Mary (Caldwell) Evans, who was b. in Shelbyville, Tenn., in 1870. He d. May 17, 1917.

Mr. Farwell was one of the substantial business men of New Orleans, and as head of the firm of Milliken and Farwell was one of the wealthiest men in the sugar industry in the South, owning several large sugar plantations. For many years Mr. Farwell was the head of a committee in Washington, D. C., charged with looking after the interests of Louisiana planters.

Beginning as an employee of his uncle, Richard A. Milliken, at the time of Mr. Milliken's death he had gained an understanding of the business that enabled him to take over the direction of the plantations and the city business. Mr. Farwell was also as prominent in the social as in the business world, being a member of the Boston Club, a stockholder of the French Opera House Co., and active in many social and charitable affairs. He was chosen "Rex" in the Mardi Gras carnival of 1898, the highest and most coveted social honor that the southern metropolis bestows.

2739 OLIVER ATKINS FARWELL[7] (Oliver[6], Oliver[5], Oliver[4], Oliver[3], Ensign Joseph[2], Henry[1]), b. in Boston, Mass., May 28, 1811; m. in Eagle River, Mich., Oct. 27, 1863, by the Rev. Bothmann, Charlotte Louise Brockway, dau. of Daniel Dunbar and Lucena (Harris) Brockway, who was b. Feb. 2, 1841, in East Constable, N. Y., and d. in Chicago, Ill., Mar. 8, 1923. She was interred in the Brockway lot in the Calumet, Mich., cemetery, to be buried later beside her husband.

Oliver Atkins Farwell, father of the above family, was at first named George Augustus, but after his father was drowned, he was renamed Oliver Atkins. He was a sailor from the age of 21 to that of 35 years, sailing as supercargo to the East Indies, and as part owner of the vessel, to Brazil, in the coffee trade. Ultimately he lost all he had, through ship wrecks, and he then engaged in the gas business in Boston, Mass., where he made a small fortune, which he invested in the "Phoenix," a copper mine in Michigan. He was manager of this mine from 1857 to 1863, when he again lost his fortune. After his marriage he went to Boston, where he engaged in stock brokerage for eight years, returning to the copper district of Mich. in 1871, as manager and agent of the Cliff Mine, which position he held until his death, ten years later.

Oliver Atkins Farwell d. June 22, 1881, at Cliff Mine, in Clifton, Keweenaw County, Mich., and was buried in the Odd Fellows' cemetery in Eagle River, Mich.

Children:

4015 I. Bessie (Harris) Graduated from the Michigan Normal School at Ypsilanti, Mich. and taught school in Mich., Colo., and N. M. She d. in Eddy (now Carlsbad), N. M., Apr. 7, 1897. Unmarried.

Twins b. June 29, 1864, Boston, Mass.

4016 II. (Dr.) Jessie (Hodge) Is a graduate of both the Michigan Normal School, Ypsilanti, Mich. (1884), and the State Normal School, Los Angeles, Calif.

After graduating from the Michigan Normal School she taught for five years near her home in the northern part of that state. She then entered the Farrand School for nurses, Detroit, Mich., graduating in 1891, becoming a professional nurse. Later she entered the Pacific School of Osteopathy, Los Angeles, Calif., from which she was graduated in 1904.

Dr. Farwell practised her profession at Durango, Colo. and in Los Angeles until 1914 in connection with her own sanitarium for six years, when she went abroad. In Rome, Italy, she studied with Dr. Maria Montessori, her method of teaching little children, graduating there. She also took an additional course in Los Angeles with Dr. Montessori, in the teaching of older children, during her visit to this country in 1920.

Dr. Farwell has been forced to retire on account of ill health.

4017 III. Paul b. Sept. 24, 1866, in Dorchester, Mass. Graduated as Bachelor of Science, 1889, from the Michigan College of Mines. Lived for many years in the mining district of Colorado and in Wyoming, where he opened offices as a metalurgist and assayer. Not married.

4018 IV. Oliver (Atkins) b. Dec. 13, 1867, in Dorchester, Mass. When five years old his family removed to Michigan, where in the public schools and under the guidance of private tutors, he received his early education.

His father died in 1881, and at the age of fourteen years the future botanist found himself thrown suddenly upon his own resources. For a period of eleven years he tried his hand variously at farming, wood-cutting, engineering and teaching. And finally in 1892, he entered the employ of Parke, Davis & Co., Detroit, Mich., and at the close of the year was appointed assistant to the botanist and librarian. The following year he took on the added duties of drug inspector, and more lately, in 1909, relinquished the librarianship in order that he might devote his undivided attention to botany and pharmacognosy. He has published a number of papers relative to the flora of Michigan, and the histology of pharmaceutical drugs.

Mr. Farwell has been an active member of the Torrey Botanical Club of New York, for more than twenty years, and is a charter member of the Michigan Academy of Science and of the Botanists of the Central States. He is a member of the American Pharmaceutical Association, the American Joint Committee on Horticultural Nomenclature, and of the National Geographic Society, a member of the Revision Committee of the National

Charlotte Louise Brockway m. OLIVER ATKINS FARWELL.

At the time of her death, Mrs. Charlotte Louise (Brockway) Farwell had probably held a residence in Michigan above the Straits longer than any other woman, having been taken there by her parents from New York in 1843, when two years of age. She was educated at Albion College, and taught school before her marriage. "She was a woman of high intellectual attainments, and was a very gracious character. She had a charming disposition, and her friends were legion."

Mrs. Farwell's father, Mr. Daniel Dunbar Brockway, went from East Constable, N. Y., to L'Anse, Mich., in 1843, as missionary blacksmith to the Indian Reservation there. In 1846 he moved his family and all his possessions in an Indian canoe from L'Anse to Copper Harbor, taking two Indians as paddlers and guides. He was the first white man to take his family to the Copper District of Mich., and his third daughter, Sarah Lucelia, b. in L'Anse, July 17, 1844, was the first white child born in the mining district of Michigan. She is still living (1925) and owns the Lake Linden homestead. Because of his being the first white settler with a family he was always affectionately called "Dad Brockway" by his hosts of friends. He was a farmer, mine agent, hotel keeper, and merchant and held many and various local political offices. He and his son-in-law, Oliver Atkins Farwell, were closely linked with the early history and development of the Copper District of Michigan.

Mr. Brown was a well known and much loved evangelist. He felt called upon to preach the gospel at an early age, but it was necessary for him to do other things until 1865, when he entered the ministry. His education was that of the average farmer's son, with academy advantages. He attended Madison University, where he was graduated, and began his evangelistic labors in 1876, and had concluded a record of thirty years of well rounded and fruitful labor when death overtook him.

2952 KENDRICK WADE BROWN[8] (Submit Farwell[7], Solomon[6], Abel[5], Edward[4], Joseph[3], Ensign Joseph[2], Henry[1]), b. July 4, 1842, in Orleans, N. Y.; m. (1) in Alexandria, N. Y., Sept. 17, 1866, Lydia Gates, dau. of Napoleon and Catherine Gates, who was b. Feb. 18, 184–, in Hammond, N. Y.; d. in Ames, Ia., Feb. 6, 1885. He m. (2) in Ames, Ia., Mar. 2, 1886, Maggie B. Mitchell.

Lydia A. (Gates) Brown taught school for seven years prior to her marriage. Her gentle Christian character won for her many friends throughout her life.

Mr. Brown received a common school and an academic education. On May 1, 1861, in Redwood, N. Y., he enlisted in Company I, 35th New York Infantry, for a period of two years. At the close of his term of enlistment he was discharged with the rank of corporal, and with meritorious marks. He then opened a recruiting office and assisted in raising a battery of artillery. In October 1863 he was made lieutenant in the 13th New York Volunteers, and the following year was promoted to the rank of captain in the 186th New York Infantry, in which capacity he served until the close of the war.

On the morning of April 16, 1865, the 186th N. Y. Infantry led the charge against Ft. Malone (otherwise known as Ft. Hell). At 9.30 A. M., Col. Winslow, the commanding officer was severely wounded in the side. Capt. Brown helped carry him from the field to a place of safety.

Returning to his company, Capt. Brown found that the Major had also been wounded, and was off the field. The Lieut. Col. was on detached service. The regiment was thus without a field officer. The color bearer also had fallen. Capt. Brown, at the head of his company, led a terrific charge, carrying the colors in his own hands, and was the first man to enter Ft. Hell, where he planted the flag, and for a brief time defended it alone in the midst of a shower of bullets, five of which hit and wounded him. The flag was torn, and twice the staff was broken, but the colors never fell to the ground, nor fell back, during the entire charge.

Capt. Brown was affiliated with the Republican party up to the year 1892, when he became a Prohibitionist. For more than thirty years Capt. Brown was a commercial traveler for a New York firm, but later he went on the Chautauqua lecture platform, some of his subjects being "Modern Civic Righteousness," "Systematic Benevolence," "Thirty-eight Years in a Grip," "Four Years at the Front," "The Brotherhood Movement," and "Men and Religion Forward Movement." Captain Brown's deep religious feeling, his energy and his earnestness made him an interesting and effective speaker. He has lived for nearly fifty years in Ames, Ia.

*Josephine Melissa, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace W. Gould, was m. Sept. 28, 1873, to William H. McConnell. During her life she had an unusual amount of pioneer experience. When her father moved from Illinois to Denison, Ia., she drove the team hitched to the covered emigrant wagon, while her father and brothers, assisted by a young Mr. Skinner, drove 23 head of cattle. It took three weeks to make the journey.

In the summer of 1873 she taught school, and after her marriage, the following autumn, went with her husband to Dow City, Ia., where they remained until his death, which occurred two years later. The following spring she went West and took up a preemption claim, nine miles east of Homersville, Neb. After proving up on this land, being a soldier's widow, she took a soldier's homestead, and proved up on it in the winter of 1887.

The following spring she returned to Denison, Ia., where she remained until her death, which occurred July 28, 1892. She was converted in early girlhood, and united with the Methodist Church.

Her husband, William H. McConnell, was a soldier in the Civil War, and his death was due, indirectly, to exposure while in the service. He was enlisted under Sheridan, and when General Early surprised Sheridan's Army at Cedar Creek, he endeavored to rally the soldiers, brandishing a frying pan which he seized instead of a sword. For his efforts on that occasion, he was promoted to the rank of Lieutenant.

"Mr. and Mrs. John Dennis Farwell celebrated their golden wedding July 3rd, 1917, at their home in this city. There were present their three children, Mrs. Etta N. Scouten from California, Mrs. Alice Thomas and husband, of this city; Mr. Frederick H. Farwell and daughter Constance of Orange, Texas; also Mr. J. D. Farwell's brother, Selah Burlingame Farwell and wife of Osborne, Kansas; Mrs. Farwell's sister, Mrs. Frances Hartwell Jones and husband of this city; their granddaughter, Mrs. Hazel (Thomas) Nelson, and husband, of Greenleaf and Mr. Farwell's cousin, Mrs. Judith (Plank) Underwood of Clay Center, Kansas. The latter was present when Mr. and Mrs. Farwell were married in 1867, at Denmark, N. Y.

"Telegrams were received from distant friends, which with calls and congratulations of old friends here, fittingly closed a memorable day."

John Dennis Farwell grew from infancy to manhood in Denmark, Lewis Co., N. Y. His father married in Denmark and migrated to Cattaraugus Co. After a few years he returned to Lewis Co. bringing with him his wife and three young children, the youngest, John Dennis, then about a year old.

As a boy John Dennis attended the local schools in Denmark, and at the age of sixteen he entered Denmark Academy from which he was graduated in 1850. He was never strong physically, yet, after he completed his course in the academy, he taught school and worked at farming and in his father's saw mill, broadening, through his varied experiences, his outlook on life, and laying a solid foundation which served him well in later years.

Realizing the limited opportunities his surroundings afforded, and visioning the possibilities of the then "Unknown West" he migrated in 1854 to Morrison, Ill., where he settled. He married, but still continued to teach and farm.

At the outbreak of the War between the States he enlisted in the 75th. Illinois Reg., Company I, from Ustick Township, Whiteside County, Illinois, only to be turned back on account of his physical disability. The next best thing for him to do then was to help all he could towards relieving the food situation, which was acute, so he devoted his entire time to his farm in Whiteside County, Illinois, where he remained, working dilligently, until the year 1868.

In 1865 his wife died, which left him alone to care for his three small children. On July 3rd, 1867, he married a second time, Miss Abigail

Harriet Hartwell of Denmark, New York, who reared the little ones, and encouraged her husband and bore with him the trials and privations of a pioneer woman in the middle west in the 60's.

To Mr. Farwell "West of the West" was an alluring, never ending dream, and at this period the new state of Kansas was the Eldorado, the Mecca of the venturesome and ambitious. He tarried in Illinois until he had cast his vote for Gen. Grant for President, then, joining a friend, journeyed to Kansas City and on to Lawrence, Kansas. While in Lawrence a venturesome hunting party left for Sheridan, the then western terminus of the Kansas Pacific R. R. Mr. Farwell joined it. Let him tell in his own words the story of this trip: "We arrived at Hays City about five P. M. the day we left on the hunt and found that the buffaloes, wild horses and Indians were going south in such numbers that the train men dare not run any further in the night, so we stayed there until morning. We had been gone about three hours from Hays City the next day when we saw some buffaloes coming from the north, running to cross the track ahead of the engine. Failing to do so they tried to butt the train off the track. In the meantime, there was great excitement inside the cars. Every man who had a gun or firearm of any kind, was shooting at the buffaloes. Soon we saw, two or three miles ahead of us apparently, a large brown mass of what proved upon a closer examination, to be a great herd of buffalo, extending as far north as we could see, and south until lost from our sight in the Smoky Valley;—hundreds and thousands of them migrating further south.

"When we came up to the buffaloes the engineer had slackened the speed of the train, and with shrieking whistle and puffing of the engine, the great iron monster made its way through the vast sea of brown bodies and waving horns. It was a sight never to be forgotten. During the day we encountered two more such vast droves of buffalo, and saw many antelope as well as large herds of wild horses.

"As we were leaving on the return trip a tall, slim man came to us and said: 'I am the paymaster on this road and my train will be about half an hour behind you. Will you please keep a little watch out for me.' I afterwards learned that the paymaster was Maj. E. D. Redington. General Sheridan's scouts had reported a band of Indians, augmented by white desperadoes, in that vicinity, and the train officials feared an attempt to rob the train; however, all went well until a turned rail in the track was discovered, but not in time to prevent the wreck of the tender of the engine and a number of cars. An investigation showed that some one had pulled the spikes and turned the rail. It was a most exciting time. The conductor said, 'Boys, Indians! Look out for the Indians! Get your guns!' I assure you we did not wait for a second command. It was not long until an Indian chief, in full feather headdress, and riding a white horse appeared, followed by many of his tribe, all riding in Indian file. They came on and on until we were completely surrounded by Indians. The men of the party guarded the train as best they could.

The excitement was growing greater and the situation seemed almost hopeless when the paymaster's train came into sight. We signaled the train, but before the paymaster realized his position the Indians set fire to the track behind him. Their plan evidently was to keep us all there until dark, when we would be at their mercy. Whenever the Indians tried to come up to the track our men would drive them back; finally the engineer of the paymaster's train hitched onto the rear of the coaches of the train in front and drew them away. Some volunteers boarded the engine of the wrecked train and running through the Indian guards reached Carlisle station, where they telegraphed Gen. Sheridan at Ft. Hays, who sent a relief party to the scene of the holdup. We were told afterwards the band of attacking outlaws was made up of Cheyenne Indians and white desperadoes, which no doubt accounted for their desire to rob the paymaster. It was this tribe of Indians which Gen. Custer later chased into Oklahoma territory."

Forty years after that exciting trip Mr. Farwell had some correspondence with Mr. E. D. Redington, of Evanston, Illinois, the paymaster of the train which almost fell a prey to savages. A letter from Mr. Redington, reproduced in this book, gives his recollection of this event.

Mr. Farwell liked the new country to which he had come in spite of its vicissitudes and dangers and homesteaded a farm near the little village of Waterville, Kan., which was destined to be his home for the remainder of his life. That same year (1869), he was elected township clerk, and while serving as such he made the contract with the King Bridge Co. (1870), and supervised the building of the first iron bridge built in Marshall Co., Kan. It is still in use though over fifty years have passed.

In the fall of 1879 Mr. Farwell was elected Registrar of Deeds of Marshall Co. which necessitated his removal to Marysville, the county seat. He was reelected in 1881 and served four years with honor. During the period he served in this capacity the records of the office were carefully and painstakingly kept, and he introduced several innovations in the methods of transferring land, which were later taken up by private concerns and adopted very generally in that section of the country. When Mr. Farwell's term of office expired he entered the real estate business and later engaged in general merchandising.

In 1858 Mr. Farwell joined the Methodist Episcopal Church and about the same time was made a Master Mason at Fulton, Illinois. At the time of his death he had been a member of this order fifty-four years, and he was probably the oldest Mason in the state of Kansas. He was a charter member of the Ancient Order of United Workmen at Waterville, Kan., and at Marysville, Kan., and of the Royal Arch Masons at the latter place.

He was always an active Christian force in his community. For many years a trustee of his church, and always a liberal supporter of the local churches and the various societies of the Methodist denomination. The Sunday school was his delight, and he was superintendent and teacher

Mr J. D. Farrell.
Dear Sir.

I am in receipt of your favor of the 1st inst. stating that your dates are correct. I can recall very hazily the incident to which you refer but I kept no diary at the time and have no idea as to the year or month to which you refer. I was Paymaster of what was the Kansas Pacific Ry. Co from Oct 1 1866. to Oct 1. 1871. just five years. during 1867. 1868. and perhaps in 1869 the Indians were very troublesome on the Plains and a regiment of colored soldiers did guard duty along the line of the road west of Hays City. but for some distance east of [illegible] 20 miles.

On the occasion to which you refer the pay train went West ahead of the excursion train and remained at Fort Rendall over night. For some reason which I cannot now recall the train you were on left for the East ahead of us reversing the order of the day before. and I think my train was about a half hour behind the excursion train.

Just where you were thrown from the track I do not remember; but do remember that as we came over a rise of ground in Summer of 1867 we discovered a flag tent back as a warning. and at about the same time saw the train you refer to in the ditch or off the track. Almost simultaneously the road master and myself looking northward discovered figures on horseback which we took to be Indians. and I fired one or two shots at them but I judge did not kill any. I am glad to be able to give you even this bit of information. and want a copy of your article.

The place was Rendall. Ft Fort Rendall.

Very truly

for twenty-three years in the Sunday schools at Marysville and Waterville. He was a very great favorite among children. A recreation hall has been added to the church in Waterville since his death and in his honor has been called "Farwell Hall."

The following is from the "History of Marshall Co., Kan.," pub. 1917.

Mr. Farwell was a man of much ability; possessed a splendid education, a lover of good literature, a great student of history, contributing a number of historical facts to this present volume. His life in the county connects the early pioneer times with the present, coming as he did when much of the county was unbroken prairie, he has seen the transition to the splendid farms, fine homes, and up-to-date towns and cities. He is one of the progressive men of the district, and today is one of the best informed on the past and present time. To him is due much of the progress in the educational, moral and physical development of this section of the state. His life has been a most active one and he is known as the "grand old man" of Waterville.

HANNAH DUSTIN IN HISTORY.

According to Dr. N. Bouton's History of Concord, Mass., Thomas Dustin married Hannah, the oldest child of Michael and Hannah Emerson, Dec. 3, 1677. They had thirteen children. It was this Hannah (Emerson) Dustin who became famous.

During an incursion by the Indians upon Haverhill, Mass., on March 15, 1697, a party attacked the house of Thomas Dustin, captured Mrs. Dustin in bed with an infant seven days old, and her nurse, Mary Neff. They dashed out the brains of the infant against a tree, and set fire to the house. The captives were marched through the wilderness to the home of the Indians on a small island where the village of Penacook now is. In the night, when the Indians were asleep, the two captive women, with the assistance of a boy who had been captured in Worcester, Mass., some time before, killed ten of the Indians by striking them upon the head, and the three captives escaped and returned to Haverhill. On the 21st of the following April the three went to Boston, carrying with them the scalps of the Indians, and other evidences of the exploit. They received as a reward £50 from the General Court, and many valuable presents from other sources.

A few years ago a monument was erected to the memory of Hannah Dustin on this island, and to mark the spot where the tragedy occurred.

JOHN DAVIS FARWELL[8] No. 3228,
of Titusville, Pa.

John Davis Farwell worked at farming and in the lumber business until 1860, when he moved to Titusville, Penn., attracted by the discovery of petroleum. He engaged in the oil business, and was one of the pioneer oil operators in the Oil Creek Valley, at Pithole, Pleasantville, Church Run, and other historic places, which were the scenes of the early excitement, and of the search for oil, which beginning at the famous Drake Well on Aug. 27, 1859, has spread across the entire continent and grown to be the greatest and most important industry in the world. He also owned and operated one of the earliest oil refineries at Pioneer on Oil Creek, a few miles below Titusville.

In 1872 he left the oil country and moved to Turners Falls, Mass., where he spent the remaining years of his life in the paper-making business. He was a Baptist when a young man, and later became a Unitarian.

Mr. Farwell d. in Lake Forest, Ill., Sept. 23, 1903. Mrs. Farwell d. there Sept. 25, 1905.

Mr. Farwell attended Elmira Academy, near his home in Steuben County, N. Y. He was a student of unusual ability and showed himself remarkably proficient in mathematics. In 1838 he accompanied his parents to Illinois, and soon thereafter secured a position with a party of government surveyors. He worked with them for three years, and for the next three years he was employed alternately in surveying and helping his father on the farm. Among the treasures much cherished by his children are the finely traced and painstakingly executed drawings which he made during this period of his life.

In 1844 Mr. Farwell, with a scant supply of money in his pocket, went to Chicago, where from the position of a clerk in the office of the County Court he rose steadily as a business man, financier and political leader of Chicago, until 1870. He was many times elected to U. S. Congress, and later represented his district in the U. S. Senate. He was a prominent, successful and honorable politician, and did much towards bettering banking conditions while a member of the Committee of Banking and Currency, on which he served the greater part of the time he was in Washington. See "A Musician and his Wife," by Mrs. Reginald de Koven, for further details of Mr. Farwell's life.

The following interesting document has lately been placed in a Massachusetts Historical Society.

"At Lanesboro, Sept. 1, 1843

This short narrative is wrote for my great granddaughter Mary Eveline Smith, and I am the sixth generation from Gregory Dexter who came from England and settled in Providence Rhode Island in 1643. I was born in Smithfield, Rhode Island on July 22, 1759 and when at the age of sixteen I slung my pack and shouldered my loaded gun in defence of my dear country which was infested by a cruel and destructive enemy for seven years. When by the word of God and the swoard of Washington they were taken captive and drove back to their infernal den. I from my youth have stood firm in the shoes of democracy and may God bless my dear country with peace and prosperity and happiness until time shall be no more.

This above lines wrote by the aged infirm and trembling hand of Nathan Dexter in my eighty-fifth year."

3286 JOHN *VILLIERS FARWELL[8] (Henry[7], Simeon[6], Daniel[5], Daniel[4], Joseph[3], Ensign Joseph[2], Henry[1]), b. in Campbelltown, Steuben County, N. Y., July 29, 1825; m. (1) in Daysville, Ill., Apr. 18, 1849, Abigail Gates Taylor, who was b. Feb. 9, 1828, in Gilsum, N. H. She was the dau. of John and Catherine Taylor, of Dubuque, Ia. She d. in Chicago, May 9, 1851, and Mr. Farwell m. (2) in Hartford, Conn., Mar. 8, 1854, Emeret Cooley, dau. of Noah and Sophronia (Parsons) Cooley, of Granville, Mass., who was b. Jan. 25, 1826.

Up to the age of sixteen Mr. Farwell remained at home on his father's farm, attending school during the winter months. He then entered Mount Morris Seminary, and devoted himself earnestly to his studies until he had completed a thorough business course.

In 1845 he went to Chicago, Ill., and at once secured employment in the City Clerk's office, but did not long remain in this position. He left it to take a position in a dry-goods house. He was honest, thrifty and ambitious and applied himself strictly to his work, and, although without funds when he went to the city, he made his way up from one position to another until in a few years he was a member of one of the largest dry-goods houses in Chicago, and in less than ten years he became the head of the firm. He possessed an unusual ability and it was not long until he became a dominant figure in the business world there.

*Spelled Villars in "Farwell Memorial," 1879.

(For an extended biography see, Holton, "Farwell Memorial," 1879)

Aside from his business enterprises he was a supporter of many movements to help the growth of his home city, and he always made it a point to encourage and assist young men. He was one of the first men in Chicago to aid the Young Men's Christian Association.

He took an interest in political affairs and was a presidential elector on the Lincoln ticket in 1860, and he also rendered valuable service on the United States Christian Commission during the Civil War, on which another member of the Farwell family, Mr. Royal Estabrook Farwell, was a conspicuous worker.

Mr. Farwell believed in Evangelistic work and was a strong supporter of Mr. Moody and his meetings, although he was personally in religious belief a Presbyterian. He maintained his home in Lake Forest, Ill., for many years, and was an elder in the Presbyterian church there for thirty-six years. His was a strong, independent and self-reliant character, and in his long and eventful life he accomplished much. His home associations were ideal and he lived to see his children grown and married, and to have many of the dreams of his youth realized. He d. Aug. 20, 1908, in Lake Forest, Ill., and his wife d. there Apr. 6, 1912.

3306 STEPHEN ALLEN BEMIS[8] (Miriam Thurston Farwell[7], Simeon[6], Daniel[5], Daniel[4], Joseph[3], Ensign Joseph[2], Henry[1]), b. in Fitchburg, Mass., Feb. 6, 1828; m. May 31, 1854, in Chicago, Ill., Hannah Jane Thomas, who was b. in New York State, Jan. 27, 1835.

Stephen Allen Bemis who as a young lad had accompanied his father in the removal from New York State to Illinois, went from the farm on Rock River to Chicago, in 1846. There he attended school for two years, supporting himself. Being of an adventurous disposition, undeterred by the experience of his father there, he determined to try his luck in the California gold fields.

After two fruitless years he returned to Chicago, and joined a friend, Coolidge by name, in farming and stock raising near Sycamore, Ill., from 1855 to 1860.

He again returned to California with his wife and children, where he resided seven years.

His brother, Judson Moss Bemis, having his business well established, feeling the need of some one he knew to be dependable and trustworthy, offered him a position in the bag factory in St. Louis.

Thereafter he was connected with it, in charge of the manufacturing and selling, eventually becoming a partner in the firm Bemis, Brown & Co. In 1873 the name of the firm became Bemis Brother Bag Co. He lived to be 91 years old, dying Sept. 27, 1919.

Children:

4464 I. Fanny Ann Bemis b. Oct. 11, 1855, in Sycamore, Ill.
4465 II. Miriam Farwell Bemis b. Sept. 27, 1857, in Sycamore, Ill.

3308 JUDSON MOSS BEMIS[8] (Miriam Thurston Farwell[7], Simeon[6], Daniel[5], Daniel[4], Joseph[3], Ensign Joseph[2], Henry[1]), b. in Fitchburg, Mass., May 18, 1833; d. Apr. 6, 1921, in Wellesley, Mass.; m. in Cambridgeport, Mass., Nov. 21, 1866, Alice Cogswell, dau. of Daniel and Mary Davis (Randall) Cogswell, who was b. in Ipswich, Mass., Jan. 5, 1845, and d. Oct. 18, 1917, in Colorado Springs, Colo. Mrs. Alice (Cogswell) Bemis was 8th in line of descent from John Cogswell, b. at Westbury Leigh, Wiltshire, Eng., 1592, who m. Elizabeth Thompson, dau. of the Vicar of Westbury. They emigrated to the Colonies on the bark "The Angel Gabriel" 1625.

Judson Moss Bemis was destined by the intuition of his parents, when not yet six years old, to be the financier of the family, which destiny was singularly correct, as he developed the qualities of a man of business to a remarkable degree.

He, of all the family, displayed a genius for initiative and upbuilding of the industry he founded.

His schooling was fragmentary, attending for two winters Mount Morris Academy, which all his cousins, the Farwells, attended, and which was one of the first schools to be established in the Rock River country; but he read much and had the mentality to make use of what he read. Most of all, he learned to think and think straight, from his contact with the world.

In 1858 with small capital, in casting about for some business of his own, he decided upon the manufacturing of bags and St. Louis, Mo., as the place to start. His first sign was a flag flying over his small beginning with "J. M. Bemis & Co., Bag Manufacturers," most thrilling to the young man, who looked at it and who realized that at last his dream had come true, and he had a business of his own.

This business grew and prospered until fifty years afterward The Bemis Brother Bag Co. had a dozen great and widely scattered factories and their own cotton mills, even reaching to the Far East, Calcutta, India, for the supply of jute.

The whole with the growing town of Bemis, Tenn., constituting the largest concern of its kind in the world.

The cotton mills at Bemis and the building and laying out of the model town of Bemis, Tenn., were the plans of Mr. Bemis' son, Albert Farwell Bemis, who in 1909 took over the Presidency of the Company, his father retaining only the position as a Director and acting in an advisory capacity.

He was one of the Trustees of Colorado College, where his children had received part of their education, giving the money for a handsome dormitory, Bemis Hall, and later, by a liberal gift, establishing "The Judson M. Bemis Department of Banking and Business Administration." In 1920 the Colorado College conferred upon him the degree of Master of Business Administration.

On Nov. 21, 1916, Mr. and Mrs. Bemis celebrated their golden wedding anniversary in Colorado Springs.

His death occurred eight years after his retirement, Apr. 6, 1921, and he survived the passing of his wife, brother and sister.

Children:

4472 I. Judson Cogswell Bemis b. Dec. 8, 1867, in St. Louis, Mo.; d. May 10, 1885.

4473 + II. Albert Farwell Bemis b. Nov. 11, 1870, in Boston, Mass.; m. Faith Mary Gregg.
4474 + III. Maude Bemis b. June 30, 1874, in Newton, Mass.; m. Reginald Hascall Parsons.

The following interesting notes on the pioneering adventure of this branch of the Farwell family was sent to us by Mr. Albert Farwell Bemis, of Boston, Mass. (1924).

My father, Judson Moss Bemis, writes of his childhood as follows:

"I was the third child of Stephen and Miriam Thurston (Farwell) Bemis, and was born in Fitchburg, Mass., on May 18, 1833. Soon after I was born, our family moved to Big Flats, Chemung County, N. Y., where my mother's brother Henry Farwell and his family were living.

"One of the first incidents I remember is being with the family in a covered wagon, which was on the deck of a steamer going from Buffalo to Detroit. This was in 1838 when Uncle Henry Farwell's family and ours were moving from New York State to Illinois. From Detroit we traveled in our wagons to Chicago. Being afraid to remain in Chicago over night for fear of catching fever and ague, we were ferried over the Chicago River where Randolph Street Bridge now is, and camped for the night at Oak Ridge, now Oak Park. I remember nothing more of our journey till we arrived one evening at our log hut at Light House Point, Ogle County, Illinois.

"Uncle Henry's family of seven lived in the covered wagons until he had built a good-sized log house. Our family of five stayed in the cabin. The first view of our new surroundings was not encouraging especially to my mother and my aunt who probably shed a few tears. On the morning after our arrival Uncle Henry said: 'We will hitch up and go back to York State.' His wife spoke up and said: 'We came here to bring up our children and here we will remain.'

"In this rude cabin at Light House Point my mother, Miriam Farwell Bemis, died in January 1840, only a little more than a year from the time of our arrival in Illinois and at the early age of 33. She was a devoted mother to us three children, and was a deeply religious woman."

She was a well known writer of children's books, a contributor to magazines, and also a writer of verse. She was an editor of Young Folks Library in 1902. Following is a list of her books: Book of Saints and Friendly Beasts, 1900; The Lonesomest Doll, 1901; In the Days of Giants, 1902; A Pocket full of Posies (verse) 1902; The Curious Tryst.

Thou knowest I have not forgot,
Though few the pilgrimages made
Unto that empty and unmeaning spot
Where but thy name is laid.

Thou knowest that my love and trust
And childhood's faith abide with thee,
Not scattered with the vagrant, outworn dust,
But quick in memory.

Thou knowest I will keep the tryst,
And with a child's glad greeting come,
Hold up the face thy father-lips have kissed
For thy dear welcome home.

She was a winner of two prizes for short stories; author of the Cantata, "Rock of Liberty," and many song texts and choruses.

Her clubs were: Boston Authors, American New England Poetry Club and Poetry Society.

Miss Brown d. in Boston, Mass, Mar. 4, 1927. She was a talented woman and one who made full use of the great gifts which she possessed. She began writing verses and stories for children when only a child herself, and continued to write until within a short time before her death. Her later books, written for adults, at once gave her a permanent place among the serious poets of our day. The editors of this book are pleased that they are permitted to reproduce her poem "Tryst" just as it came from her pen.

4489 II. Ethel Carter Brown b. in Boston, Mass., is an artist of unusual ability, who as a very young child illustrated the poems she wrote, which appeared in "The Catkin," a hand written magazine. Later "The So and So Family" from her pen and brush appeared. After courses in art schools, she made illustrating a profession for several years. She illustrated poems and stories of her sister's and three of her books, besides doing illustration work for various magazines. She studied art in Boston and New York City. More recently she has devoted herself to the writing of children's books—books written with the wish to put the love of Old New England and her old-fashioned ways into their minds and hearts. A list of her works follows: The Three Gays; The Three Gays in Maine; The Three Gays at Merryton; The Three Gays at the Old Farm; The So and So Family; The Green Gates to the Sea.

Miss Brown has become a great favorite among juvenile readers, who also know and enjoy the clever illustrations she makes for her own and her sister's books.

*"Oliver K. Harwood '07 met his death in the city (Syracuse, N. Y.), on Sept. 1, 1911. He was accidentally killed while attempting to rescue a fellow engineer who had become overcome in the Syracuse intercepting sewer which is under construction.

Harwood, with Rexford J. Lyon, was making some measurements in the completed portion of the sewer. Lyon was in the manhole and Harwood above, when the latter was seen to call below and then to descend hurriedly. When others arrived both men had been overcome by gas and were dead when their bodies were recovered.

Oliver K. Harwood was probably one of the best known of the recent graduates of the University. He played tackle on the football team throughout his college course and was always known as one of the best and headiest players of his time. He was a graduate of the civil engineering course of the College of Applied Science and ever since his graduation has been employed by the city. He had become an assistant engineer on the intercepting sewer work.

He was very popular personally, whole-souled and kind-hearted, and everyone who knew him called him friend. He was a member of the Zeta Psi fraternity and Tau Theta Upsilon and Monx Head societies. Since his graduation he has been an active member of the Alumni Association, and has always been enthusiastic for Syracuse. Just a year and two days before his death he married Miss May Naramore, '08.

He died as he had lived, fearlessly and thinking more of others than himself. In his death Syracuse University lost an ardent alumnus and a hearty friend."

SERIES I. Vol XLII, pt. I. War of the Rebellion Official Records. Page 236, Richmond Campaign.

At ten o'clock Gen. Mott moved out, followed by Gen. Egan.....The cavalry commenced withdrawing by the Quaker road at 10:30.....A party of about 70 men belonging to 1st Minnesota and 7th Michigan Vol., under command of Capt. Farwell was left on the field through some neglect and remained until nearly 9 o'clock on the morning of the 28th. when they commenced withdrawing. They were twice charged by the enemy's cavalry but both charges were repulsed and Capt. Farwell marched his command into the wood between the Dabney Mill and Quaker road, followed for some distance by the enemy. By this display of excellent judgment and tact Capt. Farwell extricated his little command. ....Capt. Farwell has been recommended for advancement one grade by brevet for good conduct on this occasion.

Capt. Farwell remained there (in the field) all night, narrowly escaping capture in the morning. He fought the enemy several miles on his retreat and got through. To prevent the capture of his colors he tore his state color from the staff and his color sergeant wrapped it round his body, under his clothing. Tearing his national colors into pieces each star was given to a man, and the other pieces also distributed so that the enemy would have failed to capture them except after the death of the whole command.
